CHARGES INSULLS PAID DIVIDEND AS BAIT TO INVESTORS

Government Presents Letter Stating Martin Advised Action as Necessary to Sell Stock.

SAMUEL IS SAID TO HAVE OPPOSED IT

Represented as Feeling Corporation Securities Co. Had Not Been Established Long Enough.

the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The Government charged today, at the trial of amuel Insull Sr. and 16 associates r mail fraud, that Insull's Corpoation Securities Co. of Chicago paid dividend as bait for investors.

From a sheaf of Insull correndence, Leslie E. Salter, Special stant Attorney-General, read a ter quoting Martin J. Insull, Sam's brother, as saying that witht the dividend it would be impossle to sell stock which the comny was about to issue.

The Insull family was split on the estion, the latter indicated. Sam Insull, it said, preferred not to a dividend so early in the comy's history. But Martin, acrding to a letter to H. L. Stuart, sident of Halsey, Stuart & Co., ght it imperative.

"To sum up Mr. Martin Insull's as," said the letter, which bore initials of C. T. MacNeille of the rporation Securities Co., "he does t think we can get the distribun we want without paying a divend on the common stock."

Stuart, according to a telegram so put into evidence, had advised e leaders of the new company to ait until it had "a history." Maslle's letter said "Junior," Sam Insull's son, reported that his ther also preferred to wait.

Mraket Operations.

Salter introduced a series of telems and letters concerning atmpts to keep stock at high mart quotations while new selling mpaigns were under way.

In one, the Corporation Securis Co. agreed to "protect the maron securities already out e another Insull company, the lities Securities Co., was selling 50,000 shares of common stock in rp."

An officer of Utility Securities Co. o was appointed to handle these aker ventures, said another let. He was F. H. Scheel, one of e defendants.

The common stock selling camgn brought the company $31,250,- in the spring of 1930, it was tesd by V. Lamont, still on the as the Government's first wits Lamont, formerly comptroller Halsey, Stuart & Co., was for a e an officer of the Corporation urities Co.

Shakes Finger at Insull.

Shortly before noon, a woman, t middle age, walked to the rails of the courtroom, shook her ger angrily at Insull, sitting 50 t away beneath Judge James H. lkerson's bench. She then lked back to he rseat. She was detained. Attorneys were dying a document in the case, the woman held the trial stage mentarily, the jurors craning to what she did.

The first annual report of the urities Co., as of Dec. 31, 1929, another object of the Government's attack today.

MRS. RICHARD T. COINER

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT ON HONEYMOON

Mrs. Richard T. Coiner Jr., Ex-St. Louisan, Loses Life, Husband Injured Near San Diego, Cal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Richard T. Coiner Jr., former St. Louisan, was killed in an automobile accident near here yesterday while on her honeymoon. Her husband, a Second Lieutenant in the Seventh Cavalry, was slightly injured.

Mrs. Coiner was the former Lorraine de Courval Bell, daughter of Col. Ola W. Bell, who was commanding officer of the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Bliss, Tex., before being transferred recently to Portland, Ore., in charge of Organized Reserves there. Col. Bell formerly was on duty with the 102nd Division in St. Louis.

Lieut. Coiner and his bride, who were married Oct. 2 in St. Mary's Cathedral, Portland, were on their way from Portland to Fort Bliss when he lost control of his car and crashed into a telegraph pole. He was charged with manslaughter.

Policemen who went to the scene of the crash in response to a telephone call from a resident of the neighborhood, reported that Coiner's car jumped a curb and ran 24 feet before striking the pole. They expressed the opinion that the driver had fallen asleep at the wheel.

Mrs. Coiner, 20 years old, was a graduate of the Sacred Heart Academy in St. Louis. She was a granddaughter of Mrs. R. N. Poulin, 10 North Kingshighway boulevard, St. Louis. Her mother died about a year ago.

Lieut. Coiner, graduate of West Point in the class of last June, is 23 years old. His mother, and Col. Bell arrived here last night by airplane from Portland.

CONGRESS MUST VOTE FUNDS FOR PROPOSED TREE BELT

Comptroller Holds That $15,000,000 Is Too Much to Take Out of Relief Money.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—F. A. Silcox, head of the Forest Service, said yesterday a recent ruling by Comptroller-General McCarl had caused the decision to put the proposed 1000-mile tree belt up to Congress.

About $15,000,000 had been alloted for work on the shelter belt, which would stretch from the Canadian border to the Texas Panhandle to alleviate drouth and soil erosion, but McCarl held that only $1,000,000 could be allocated for the trees.

He said the $15,000,000 was from the $525,000,000 drouth relief fund and that expenditure of more than a nominal amount would be contrary in spirit to the act of Congress which authorized the entire fund, and that expenditure of $15,000,000 would virtually obligate the Government to proceed with the work.

"We then decided," Silcox said, "to put the matter up to Congress and try to get a statute authorizing the work and making the funds available."

Preliminary work is going forward with the $1,000,000.

Fewer Jobless in Germany.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—A national reduction of unemployment amounting to 115,000 in September, cutting the number of jobless in Germany to 2,282,000, is announced. The number on relief rolls is now 1,733,000. A further attempt to reduce unemployment by sending youths to labor camps was announced.

Convention Adopts Proposal of Council for Long-Term Changes in NRA Organization.

ENFORCEMENT OF SECTION 7-A URGED

Delegate Says Bargaining Clause Has Been Used Against Workers — National Board Criticised.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—An attack on the NRA as it applies to workers was made before the American Federation of Labor convention here yesterday.

Robert J. Watt, a Massachusetts delegate, said the collective bargaining clause of the recovery act had been "used against the workers themselves." He asserted employers, including Henry Ford, had been permitted to interpret the act as they pleased.

Matthew Woll of New York, a federation vice-president, said the recovery act virtually required employers to organize but said there was no comparable requirement that labor join in a majority movement for its own benefit.

Labor, said Woll, must obtain the same right to organize as capital "or labor will be enslaved under the NRA instead of made free."

Labor Board Criticised.

Decisions of the National Labor Relations Board were criticised by Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union.

"If we are to have a vital application of the NRA to the right of organized labor to bargain with employers," said Howard, "the federation will have to get a proper interpretation of the recovery act."

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, assailed "certain employers" who refuse to abide by the Recovery Act.

"Those reactionary industrial groups who have 'eyes but see not' and 'ears but hear not' should no longer be permitted to thwart the objectives of sound public policy or prevent the prompt realization of economic recovery," he said.

Neither, he continued, should "their indefensible tactics and disregard of law be permitted to bring about an industrial revolt which would inevitably be attended by the menace of Communism or Fascism.

After hearing the criticisms, the convention adopted its executive council's report on unemployment, which placed the total number of unemployed at about 10,000,000.

Recommendations on NRA.

The convention approved the council's recommendations favoring changes in the recovery setup.

The recommendations were:

"1. The NRA should be re-organized from the point of view of a longer period than to June 16, 1935. It becomes increasingly evident that some action will be necessary for perhaps a long time to come.

"2. Codes should be reopened for such changes as will bring about the original purpose of the act—re-employment and increased wages.

"3. Codes should be reopened on petition by labor as well as on the initiative of industry or the administration.

"4. Compliance machinery should be divorced more completely from the NRA administration. An independent compliance board, answerable directly to the President, would be better able to assure unbiased and prompt action.

"5. Every resource of the Government should be used for the enforcement of the code provisions and the decisions of the Labor Relations Board.

Against Company Unions.

"6. Collective bargaining between bona fide trade unions and employers must be assured through enforcement of section 7-A and the destruction of company unions.

"7. Adequate information, reporting and planning agencies must be created by the Government.

"8. Labor must be made an active partner in the supposed partnership of Government, industry and labor.

"9. Service industries should be included under codes. The distinction between intra-state and interstate commerce is not a legitimate basis for the extension of protection to some workers and the denial of protection to others.

"10. The entire agricultural labor population has so far been left without protection in regard to wages, hours, organization, or in dealing with employers. Some extension of the National Recovery act to the field of agricultural labor should be made, either through

MORE HIGH WAVES ON COAST OF CALIFORNIA; THREE MISSING

Fishermen's Boat Upsets Off Eureka and Is Washed Ashore; Other Disturbances.

By the Associated Press.

EUREKA, Cal., Oct. 11. — Three men are missing following the sinking of a small boat yesterday. Coast Guardsmen searched the beach at Trinidad, near here, while a cutter patrolled the offshore fishing grounds. The men were the crew of the fishing boat Crescent, the keel of which was washed on the beach 14 miles north of Eureka. The missing men were Skipper Fred Swanson, Red Johnson and Verne Clark.

Mysterious high tides and waves without wind, which recently caused considerable property damage at Newport Beach, recurred yesterday and washed the unoccupied house of G. E. Armantrout into the ocean.

So far, there has been no generally accepted explanation of the Southern California tidal and wave phenomena. One theory is that they result from storms in equatorial and Southern Pacific regions not covered by weather reports.

MAJOR OIL COMPANIES CUT PRICE OF GASOLINE IN CITY

Regular Now Selling at 14.5 Cents, Third Grade, 13.5; Ethyl Unchanged at 17.7.

The price of regular and third-grade gasoline was cut 1 cent a gallon today at the filling stations of the major oil companies in St. Louis.

The new price for regular gasoline is 14.5 cents a gallon, and for third grade, 13.5 cents. Ethyl gasoline remains unchanged at 17.7 cents. These prices include city, State and Federal taxes totaling 3.5 cents.

In East St. Louis, where a price war is in progress, regular gasoline is being sold for 10.4 cents, including 4 cents in taxes.

MORE DEVALUATION POSSIBLE

Senator Bulkley Makes Statement After Visiting President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Senator Bulkley (Dem.), Ohio, discussed the monetary situation with President Roosevelt today and afterward told reporters further devaluation of the gold dollar should not be dismissed as a possibility.

Bulkley, while declining to give the President's view of the situation, said he personally believed further devaluation would not be needed and certainly saw no need for it at this time, but that it was still a possibility in the future. The President invited one of his monetary advisers, Prof. George F. Warren, to luncheon, presumably to talk about Warren's recent trip to Europe and monetary questions in general.

AIR LINER'S BUMPY LANDING

Ship at Chicago Can't Use Wheels, Gets Down Anyway.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—A United Air Liner from the West coast, with nine passengers aboard, was landed at its airport safely early today after the pilot, J. A. Smith of Seattle, Wash., was compelled to circle the field for 15 or 20 minutes because the landing wheels could not be completely lowered.

The ship kicked up a lot of dust as Smith, assisted by Paul Walters, co-pilot, brought it to the ground but none of the passengers was hurt. There was no apparent damage to the plane. The ground crew gave radio directions to the pilot as he circled over the field and called an ambulance. Pilot Smith won the praise of the crowd on the field for his accomplishment.

Liner 24 Hours Late.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Twenty-four hours late, the liner Majestic docked yesterday after one of the roughest crossings of its service. The second day out, waves rolled high over the fo'castle deck, battered in even the glass-inclosed control room atop the bridge. The master, Captain Edgar Trant, suffered a deep gash on the forehead and was confined to his cabin after infection set in. He was sent to a hospital here.

TWO MEN HELD AS ACCOMPLICES OF KING'S ASSASSIN

Three Seized by French Police at Railway Station Escape, Pair Caught at Swiss Frontier.

ONE HAS A PISTOL CLIP LIKE KALEMEN'S

Passports Show Prisoners to Be Natives of Italian Towns in Area Once a Part of Austria.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Passports carried by two suspects arrested as accomplices of Petrus Kalemen, the assassin of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France, show them to be natives of Italian towns which were in Austrian territory before the war. The two suspects are Wladislav Benes and Yaroslav Novack.

According to their passports, of apparent Czecho-Slovakian issuance, Benes was born at Zara, Italy, in 1903, and Novack at Goritza, Italy, in 1900. Both passports were issued by the Czecho-Slovakian Consulate at Trieste, according to the stamps on them.

A third suspect, who got away was Sylvester Chalny, but before he escaped under police fire police took from him an automatic pistol clip which corresponded to that found in Kalemen's sub-machine gun.

Get Away but Are Recaptured.

The police at Fontainebleau arrested Chalny at the railroad station. It was Chalny, authorities said, who accompanied Kalemen to Marseilles. Chalny slipped out of their hands, however, and ran into the forest there. Policemen shot at him. A posse was summoned to comb the woods.

The Fontainebleau police had the other two men in their hands yesterday and they, too, got away, but were seized today at Thonon just as they were attempting to cross Lake Geneva to Geneva or Lausanne. Police said they believed Benes and Novack were the same pair who accompanied Kalemen to Paris.

Chalny, Benes and Novack were sitting in the railroad station in Fontainebleau last night, awaiting a train. The police picked them up and began to search Chalny. They extracted from his pockets a ticket to Evian and while they were further searching him, he suddenly broke loose, ran across the tracks, jumped a fence and disappeared in the darkness. The other two men ran away in the resultant confusion and jumped a moving train. They eventually gained the frontier, where they were arrested.

In his flight, Chalny dropped his pocketbook. The gendarmes opened it and found inside a passport bearing his name and which was, like that of Kalemen, purported to have been issued by the Czecho-Slovakian consulate at Zagreb. It gave Chalny's residence as Praha and, like that of Kalemen, bore a visa showing his entrance into France Sept. 28, through Callorbe, on the Swiss frontier.

French Police Under Fire.

France's police, under nationwide fire because of the assassinations, questioned their suspects throughout the day in an effort to solve the mystery of the double assassination. The feeling of the French people is running so high, not only because of the assassinations, but because of previous alleged shortcomings of police work, that rumors are spreading that the Government of Premier Gaston Doumergue may resign in order to reorganize.

Benes told his questioners that Novack was really Nikomir Nalis, whom police have been seeking as a terrorist agitator ever since Belgian authorities, two weeks ago, told them he was on French soil and intended to assassinate Alexander. But the police were none too sure of this identification, for Chalny, in his escape at Fontainebleau, dropped a passport bearing the name Sylvester Nalis. It appeared possible that the real Nalis was neither of these men. Chalny's passport showed he was born at Karlovach, a Croatian city.

Hunting for Two Others.

Police say they are hunting not only for Nalis but also Egon Kramer, who accompanied Kalemen to Aix-en-Provence, en route to Marseilles.

The Marseilles police, who said Nalis was convicted of robbery there Dec. 12, 1933, were unable to pick up his trail, although a warning was spread among all the local police of France. They have learned, however, that Kalemen, with "a mysterious, thin-haired foreigner," had a noisy dispute with a cafe waiter Sept. 29 in Marseilles over their inability to understand

4 KILLED; TRAIN PLUNGES INTO CREEK IN IOWA

Local Carrying 25 Passengers Leaves Trestle Near Guttenburg—Eight Persons Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

GUTTENBERG, Ia., Oct. 11.—Four persons were killed and eight seriously injured when a Milwaukee passenger train left the rails near here this morning and plunged into a creek.

Among the identified dead were Charles Strazinsky, 69 years old, the engineer, of Dubuque, and Frank Mann, 55, fireman, also of Dubuque.

The train, a local from Savanna, Ill., to La Crosse, Wis., carried among the 25 passengers in its single coach several school children who boarded the train at Turkey River shortly before the accident.

Rounding a curve en route to Guttenberg, the train plunged from the creek trestle into the stream bed. The engine boiler exploded and the cab and tender were torn away as the locomotive struck the water. A mail dispatching car and the passenger coach were derailed and overturned.

In the excitement the less seriously hurt crawled from the cars and began rescue work. Aid was summoned from Guttenberg and nearby farms.

DEPUTY, 3 PRISONERS MISSING

Texas Officer Disappears While Transferring Men.

By the Associated Press.

McALLEN, Tex., Oct. 11. — A State-wide search was under way today for Deputy Sheriff Jack Rapp, whose unexplained disappearance while transferring three prisoners from McAllen to Edinburg aroused grave concern for his safety.

Officers combed South Texas last night without finding a trace of Rapp or the prisoners, D. M. Hood, 45 years old, and his two sons, Carl and Clifford, accused of burglary.

Stock Exchange Staff's Pay Cut.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange has reduced the salaries of all employes of the exchange 10 per cent. The reduction will become effective Oct. 16. In the case of employes without dependents, salaries will not be reduced below $17.50 a week, and, in the case of employes with dependents, will not be reduced below $27.50. This is the second time within three years that the exchange has reduced the salaries of employes by 10 per cent.

BIG DISCREPANCIES THUS FAR IN FIFTH DISTRICT RECOUNT

Incomplete Figures for Constables and Magistrates Show Change of 1000 in One Case.

A partial recount of votes for Republican candidates for Justices of the Peace and Constables in the Fifth District has disclosed large discrepancies between the official tabulation and ballots found in the boxes, according to reports.

The recount, ordered by Circuit Judge Ryan in connection with election contests, has been completed for 11 precincts of the Nineteenth Ward and several precincts of the Fifth Ward, it is understood. It is reported that one of the contestants gained about 1000 votes in the Nineteenth Ward and that in several precincts individual contestants gained as many as 100 votes.

James A. Waechter, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, said if the results of the recount showed any fraud, the board would take steps to remove election judges and clerks in the precincts where discrepancies were disclosed. He said this after Peter Barrett, representing the contests, appeared in Judge Ryan's court seeking settlement of a dispute over the method of making the recount and told the Court that some frauds had already been disclosed. In the recount, he said, some ballots had been found unfolded.

The contests are by Maurice J. Gordon against G. M. Allen, Republican nominee for Justice of the Peace in the Fifth District, and by Samuel J. Lane and Jeff Covington against Ira Dorsey, nominee for Constable. The recount is being made secretly by representatives of both sides. The Fifth District includes 24 precincts in Wards 4, 5, 19 and 20.

It is considered likely that the grand jury, investigating charges of election frauds, will ask for the results of the recount when it is completed.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE KILL SIX IN HALIFAX DWELLING HOUSE

Two Mothers and Two Children of Each Lose Lives in Unexplained Blast.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 11.—An explosion, followed by fire, wrecked a three-story dwelling house today, killing at least six persons.

The dead: Mrs. Daniel Dudas, wife of the owner; Peter Dudas, 1 year old, and Donny Dudas, 5, her children; Mrs. Robert Cruse, wife of an unemployed laborer, and Kathleen and Joseph, her two children. The body of a man employed by Dudas who may have been in the building, was sought in the ruins.

The cause of the explosion was not determined. Dudas, who was away at the time, told the police there was no gasoline in the building and "not more than a stick of dynamite."

KIDNAPER OF LOUISVILLE WOMAN ASKS FOR $50,000

Wife of Wealthy Oil Man, a Niece of Ex-Senator Sackett, Taken From Home by Fake Telephone Repairman.

RANSOM DEMAND IS LEFT IN NOTE

Maid Says Abductor Stayed in House Hour and Half Before Hitting Victim on Head and Carrying Her Away.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, wife of a wealthy oil man and niece of former Senator Frederic M. Sackett, was kidnaped yesterday afternoon from her home by a man posing as a telephone repair man who left a note demanding $50,000 ransom.

A widespread search, directed by Federal agents, was under way today. Mrs. Stoll, the former Alice Speed, was struck on the head before being taken from her home. She was clad only in a negligee and coat. She had been ill and relatives feared the effects of the shock of her abduction. She is 26 years old, a Bryn Mawr graduate, and a Junior League member.

The ransom money is said to be ready.

Phone Call Interrupted.

Stoll renewed his requests to police today that all persons except two policemen at the gate stay away as a result of an interrupted telephone call during the early morning hours. A man called the Stoll home, but before he had identified himself the connection was broken.

"We are not so much interested now in the capture of the kidnaper as we are in the return of Alice," Stoll explained. "All we want to do is to get her back alive."

Roads leading north were barricaded in Indiana. Kentucky Sheriffs, notified by radio, teletype and telephone, watched their roads.

The victim was seized in her home on Lime Kiln Lane in the fashionable but remote upper river road section of Louisville, eight miles from the city proper. The kidnaper went to the place about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, saying he had come to repair the telephone, which had been giving trouble.

Story of the Maid.

Ann Woolet, 24-year-old maid, whose husband is a caretaker on the Stoll estate, admitted him. She said he "looked and acted like a fiend." He "fooled around with the wires" she said and then ripped away the connection. Mrs. Stoll, who had been ill several days, came downstairs when she heard the noise.

The man threatened Mrs. Woolet with a pistol, forced her to tape the hands of her mistress. Then he tied the maid to a chair, gagged her and told Mrs. Stoll he was going to kidnap her.

They talked about the matter for some time. Mrs. Stoll offered the man a check if he would let her go. He replied by hitting her on the head with a piece of iron pipe. Her head was cut and began to bleed but the maid said she was not unconscious.

Allowing her a checked blue and white coat to cover her negligee, the kidnaper then forced his victim to go with him. Mrs. Woolet caught a glimpse of his car, a late model Ford coach or sedan. He said: "If Berry comes, I'll kill him," the maid declared.

Stayed Hour and Half.

The man was in the house about an hour and a half in all. The two women were alone. All the time help was near if they had been able to summon it. Frank Hardin, 55, Negro hired man, was working in a nearby field. He had a rifle, as sheep-killing dogs have been giving trouble.

The Stoll's 140-pound Great Dane, Bruno, played nearby.

Hardin said he saw the kidnaper drive up to the house, but suspected nothing wrong.

The kidnaping was discovered by Stoll when he reached home at 5:30 o'clock last night. He telephoned police from a neighbor's home.

Police hurried to the Stoll home, followed by Mayor Neville Miller, Director of Safety Dunlap Wakeingly." Schmidt said the note promised the kidnapers would get touch with the family "within five days."

Berry Stoll issued a statement

DEFENSE BLOCKS QUICK TRANSFER OF HAUPTMANN

Brong Court Sets Habeas Hearing for Monday Despite New Jersey Plea for Immediate Action.

PRISONER ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Extradition Warrant Served After Extortion Case Is Removed From Trial Calendar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The State of New Jersey suffered a setback today in its efforts for the immediate removal of Bruno Richard Hauptmann to its jurisdiction for trial on an indictment charging him with the murder of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Over the plea of Attorney-General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey for an immediate hearing on an application ofthe defense for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to prevent the extradition, Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer granted a request of the defense and set Monday at 11 a. m. for the hearing.

Hauptmann, meantime, will be in the custody of the New York Police Commissioner, occupying his same cell in the Bronx Countq jail, where he was placed in default of $100,000 bail on the extortion indictment returned against him in that county.

The technical legal maneuvers moved rapidly in two Bronx courts. During them Hauptmann technically was a free man fora few seconds.

Hauptmann in Court.

Hauptmann, his shoulders erect and his face freshly shaved, was led into Bronx County Court before Senior County Judge James M. Barrett for the first ofthe court proceedings.

District Attorney Saumel J. Foley, of the Bronx, addressed Judge Barrett, informing him that extradition papers calling for Hauptmann's removal to New Jersey on the murder charge had been signed by Gov. Lehman yesterday afternoon. Foley then asked that the extortion case be removed fro mthe trial calendar.

Judge Barrett assented to Foley's request and then James M. Fawcett counsel for the defense, asked for a reasonable length of time in which to apply for a writt of hebeas corpus before his client was taken to New Jersey.

Judge Barrett vacated the $100,000 bail requirement imposed on Hauptmann at the time of his arraignment on the indictment in Bronx County charging him with extortion in connection with the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom payment. This act made him technically free, but within a few seconds Police Lieut. Finn placed him under arrest on the Governor's warrant.

Habeas Corpus Petition Filed.

Fawcett hurried from the room to file the application for the writ. In the chambers of Justice Hammer, a 20-minute conference followed with Foley, Fawcett and Attorney-General Wilentz.

Foley announced that until the petition foh the writ is disposed of Hauptmann will be in the custody of the Police Commissioner. Technically, the extortion case is held in abeyance, although the indictment still stands and Hauptmann may be brought to trial on it if he is acquitted in New Jersey.

Prior to the proceeding in County Court, Fawcett announced that he was prepared to produce "four or five witnesses," who, he said would testif that Haptmann was not in New Jersey the night of the kidnaping. After the application for the writ had been filed, the defense attorney said he was prepared to introduce "six or seven witnesses, all from the Bronx and New York, including Mrs. Hauptmann," in an effort to prove that Hauptmann was not near the scene of the kidnaping and murder in New Jersey.

Department of Justice Considers Its Work Done, Withdraws.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Department of Justice has written finis to a manhunt it has pursued since it entered the case of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. The department considers its work done now that Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been indicted for extortion and murder in connection with the kidnaping.

"We have nothing more to do," said William I. Stanley, assistant to Attorney-General Cummings. "The case has moved to a point where it is a question of complications."

What these complications may be were not explained by Stanley, but it is no secret that Federal operatives disagree as to the course which should be taken against Hauptmann. Some Department of Justice Agents feel that an airtight case of extortion has been built up against the German carpenter, while the murder case against him is more circumstantial. No hint of any friction, however, was contained in the statement with which the Department of Justice wound up its active part in the case last night.

saying he had "just found the note regarding the ransom and that arrangements are being made accordfield and other officials.

Having telephoned, Stoll returned home and on his wife's bed on the second floor found the ransom note in a sealed envelope. Maj. William Schmidt, Night Chief of Police, disclosed that it was perfectly typed on two sheets of legal cap mostly in black, but in some parts in red ink.

It was understood the note first warned the family not to notify Federal officers, and that it went on to point out three other cases where Federal officers had been called in to solve kidnapings, and families of the victims had to pay the ransom money demanded. The note also was understood to have advised the family to see certain individuals of national importance. No intimation of their names was forthcoming. Toward its close the note, it was reported, referred to the fact that the gardener, Fowler Woolet, husband of Mrs. Stoll's maid, was away and that the kidnaper would have to hurry.

The note was directed to "Stoll": It contained abuse of the family and a hint that Stoll's brother, William A. Stoll, would "be next." Schmidt said there were no misspelled words, that the typing was neat and the diction good.

Apparently Well Educated.

"It's my opinion that the man who wrote the note was an educated man," Schmidt added.

There was a typed demand for $30,000 ransom. That was scratched out and $50,000 inserted.

Stoll armed himself and went with Hardin to look over some barns and empty houses in the vicinity. He found nothing. This search was repeated by citizens and officers later last night.

Mrs. Woolet described the kidnaper as 30 or 35 years old, weighing about 150 pounds, with dark hair, slicked back and dark complexion.

The Department of Justice entered the case at once. F. E. Hurley, Chief of Louisville agents, took charge. At the Stoll home his deputy, E. J. Wynn, set up headquarters and questioned Hardin, Mrs. Woolet, and her husband, Stoll and neighbors and other servants.

William Marshal Bullitt, former Solicitor General of the United States, now a Louisville attorney, visited the house several times.

J. O. Jenkins, Indianapolis special agent, here as a witness in Federal Court, was called to duty. Jenkins represented the Federal men in conferences at police headquarters. Mrs. Woolet spent more than two hours there looking at pictures of known and suspected kidnapers. Her husband accompanied her.

William Stoll told reporters the family would welcome negotiations from the kidnaper. Later he issued the following statement:

"It is our desire that every opportunity be kept open for Mrs. Stoll's safe return.

"To the end, we will appreciate phone lines of my residence and those of other members of the family be kept as free as possible—and therefore it is requested that only necessary calls be made.

"Our chief concern is, of course, for the safety of Mrs. Stoll."

The Stoll home on Lime Kiln lane is a mile and a half from the Ohio River. A Coast Guard cutter and the county police patrol boat took officers to Six-Mile Island, which lies off the shore near the home, last night. They hoped the kidnaper might have hidden there, but found nothing.

Two Bridges Over River.

There are only two bridges across the river which are open to traffic. Officers discounted the chance the kidnaper used one of these. It was suggested that if the man went north he crossed by boat and used another car he had on the Indiana side. Barricading the roads by Indiana highway policemen was believed to be the best hope of catching him in this direction.

Safety Director Wakefield ordered all policemen who were off back to duty and put his 60 detectives on continuous service. The large county police force did the same.

Officers were placed in the Harrod's Creek phone exchange, which serves the Stolls' neighborhood. All calls to homes of any of the family were checked.

Mrs. Stoll is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Speed, of a family prominent in Kentucky for generations. Her husband is vice-president of the Stoll Oil Refining Co., which produces and refines oil and operates a chain of oil stations in Louisville. As said, she is a niece of Frederic M. Sackett, former Senator and Ambassador to Germany in the Hoover administration. The families are regarded as among the wealthiest in this section.

Fingerprints on the piece of pipe wielded by the kidnaper, which was found in the house, were photographed, and a search was made for other fingerprints.

Mrs. Stoll has taken an active part in Louisville's society affairs. Her marriage at an elaborate wedding in St. Paul's Episcopal Church June 11, 1927, was an outstanding social event.

Mrs. Stoll's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Shallcross Speed. Speed's father was the late James Breckinridge Speed, in whose memory the J. B. Speed Memorial Museum was erected by his widow. Mrs. Stoll's aunt, the former Olive Speed, is the wife of former Senator Sackett.

Berry Stoll formerly was a member of the City Park Board.

Rogers Case Recalled.

The kidnaping recalls the mysterious and unsolved disappearance of Mrs. Ella McDowell Rogers, 31, in 1928.

Mrs. Rogers disappeared from an apartment house the night of Oct. 7, but the fact that she was missing was not discovered until Oct. 10 after repeated calls to her apartment had been unanswered.

Several occupants of the apartment house told authorities they heard three distinct screams by a woman on the night of Oct. 7. Another resident said he heard heavy gasps, almost moans, in the unlighted basement of the apartment on the night Mrs. Rogers disappeared. Mrs. Rogers was presumed to have gone to the basement to find the janitor after the lights in her apartment went out.

A police search of the Rogers apartment included the shifting of ashes from the furnace and the incinerator. Clinkers and pieces of bone burned white were analyzed by chemists but threw no light on the case.

Rewards totaling $1000 were offered, but today Mrs. Rogers' disappearance remains a mystery.

Victim a Cousin of Mrs. John T. Abeles.

Mrs. Stoll is a cousin of Mrs. John T. Abeles, 4522 Westminster place, who formerly was Miss Abby N. Speed of Louisville.

Passenger Coaches Derailed.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Oct. 11.—Two coaches of Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 8, bound for St. Louis, were derailed last night at Harviell, Mo., south of here. The cars were said to be damaged, but no injuries were reported. The derailment occurred when the train was going onto a sidetrack to wait for a southbound train to pass.

QUEEN IN PARIS, JOINS BOY KING OF JUGO-SLAVIA

Marie, Widowed by Assassin's Bullet, Will Leave Soon for Belgrade With Son, Peter.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia came to Paris today to join her son, the boy king, Peter II. Unusual precautions were taken to guard her and she was virtually smuggled through the streets to the Jugo-Slav legation, where Peter was waiting to meet her.

President Albert Lebrun of France and Mme. Lebrun, who accompanied the Queen from Marseilles, departed before the Queen left her train.

Heavily veiled, Mme. Lebrun sat beside the President in an automobile that headed the procession from the station and crowds thought she was the Queen.

Marie remained in the train, which arrived at 9:20 a. m., for half an hour, and then was taken swiftly, under heavy guard, to the legation.

Peter, arriving from London last night, was taken from the train outside Paris.

Two to Leave Tonight.

Marie and her son will leave Paris tonight for Belgrade, where the Parliament met today to approve a proclamation making him King.

The schedule of the Queen's train from Marseilles was changed at Avignon, where is was sidetracked. A regular train was sent ahead in case there had been sabotage. The Queen, meanwhile, moved into another car of the special train.

At Paris she waited inside until the crowd around the station had dispersed. Fifteen minutes after the presidential party had gone, Marie's mother, the dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, and her sister, Princess Ileana, arrived and greeted the widow. Leaning heavily on her mother's arm, she walked through a guarded passage to an automobile, after police had cleared the way.

Body in Jugo-Slavia Tomorrow.

While Peter and his mother met here for the first time since he entered an English boarding school several weeks ago, the Jugo-Slav destroyer Dublovnik steamed through the Mediterranean with King Alexander's body in a flag-draped casket on the afterdeck. It will arrive in Split, Jugo-Slav port on the Adriatic, tomorrow. Two French cruisers and six destroyers form an escort of honor.

Also arriving in Paris from Marseilles was the body of the French Foreign Minister, Louis Barthou, a victim of the same weapon used to kill Alexander Tuesday. A national funeral will be held Saturday for Barthou.

Movie of Assassination.

A motion picture of the assassination was studied in an effort to identify accomplices. Police think an international band of terrorists plotted Alexander's death. Petrus Kalemen, the assassin, they said, used a forged Czecho-Slavakian passport. Every effort is being made to determine Kalemen's antecedents. Police say he belonged to a secret Macedonian revolutionary society.

Raids have been made by police in various cities of France on homes of Balkan suspects in an attempt to find clews leading them to Kalemen, a victim, with four others, of his own fanaticism.

Girl Dies of Wounds.

Yolande Parisis, a 14-year-old girl wounded by stray bullets in Tuesday's assassinations, died at Marseilles today.

The condition of Gen. Alfonse Georges of the French Superior War Council was described as satisfactory. His temperature and pulse were normal.

A Serbian decoration which the General wore over his heart saved his life, doctors said, by deflecting the bullet which entered his breast.

One name was removed from the list of dead in the assassination when authorities announce Policeman Galli still lived. The police had announced Galli's death but it was said at the hospital he is alive, although his condition is serious.

Groups of demonstrators on the boulevards yesterday shouted insults at police and Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Interior, for failure to prevent the assassinations. Police dispersed the groups with little difficulty but there were predictions Sarraut and possibly other ministers might be forced to resign.

JURY VOTES DEATH SENTENCE IN ATLANTA HOLDUP MURDER

Man Convicted of Killing Iowa Automotive Engineer in Downtown District.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 11.—Death in the electric chair was the verdict of a Fulton County jury yesterday in the case of Robert Riley, who was charged with the holdup murder of Max Sjoblom, automotive engineer of Davenport, Ia. The jurors deliberated one hour and 10 minutes. Judge G. H. Howard formally passed sentence on Riley, fixing the date of electrocution as Nov. 23.

Riley offered nothing in his defense except a statement to the jury in which he said that after several drinks "I don't remember just what took place."

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "my family is in destitute circumstances. My life depends upon your decision. I ask you all to have mercy. That is all I have got to say."

Counsel for Riley, appointed by the Court, confined their activities to pleading for mercy. A plea of insanity had been abandoned when three alienists appointed by the Court found Riley sane.

Detectives previously announced that Riley had confessed that he shot Sjoblom when the latter resisted a holdup in Atlanta.

BOY PROCLAIMED JUGO-SLAV KING

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 11.—The boy Crown Prince Peter was proclaimed King of Jugo-Slavia today by both houses of Parliament.

The members sitting as a national assembly took the oaths to make the 11-year-old son of the murdered Alexander King Peter II. Each member took the oath individually to support the King's constitution and the law of the land.

Prince Paul, Alexander's cousin, and head of the newly-appointed regency, looked down from the royal inclosure at hundreds of sad deputies, as each raised his right hand and with the left on the Bible pledged himself to the new ruler.

After swearing faithfully to serve his country and to preserve the unity of its people, Prince Paul said: "Thank you for your confidence in me. I think you have not made a mistake in me."

The deputies then broke into prolonged cheers.

27 Military Planes Ready.

The country was outwardly normal, but 27 military airplanes were made ready for instant takeoffs. The planes were wheeled from their hangars at Zemum, just across the river.

Otherwise, no special security measures could be observed. Many parts of the country reported there were no signs of any popular effort to overthrow the Government. Some observers said the only possibility of unexpected action would be the seizure of power by the army—but this, they added, is highly improbable.

The regency council which is to direct the country during Peter's minority is without authority until he comes home. Then the three members will swear allegiance to him and the Cabinet will resign.

Whether the Cabinet would be called back was uncertain. Objections were made in some quarters to the regents named in King Alexander's will, holding they are not nationally known, and that would mean the army would control civil affairs.

Plans for Funeral.

An elaborate funeral will be given Alexander. He will be placed in the sarcophagus he completed only a few weeks ago.

For two days Alexander will lie in state here. Then, after consecration services at the national cathedral, the body will be borne to the royal memorial church at Topolo, where the sarcophagus is, beside that of his father, King Peter. Topolo is Alexander's native city.

Alexander took especial pride in his tomb. It is built of vari-colored marble and mosaic in Serbo-Byzantine style. A large dome, crossing four smaller domes, surmounts it. Figures of the Madonna and Christ are above the sarcophagus.

Efforts to trace Petrus Kalemen, Alexander's assassin, in this country have failed. The Government opposes any effort to place blame on other nations for Alexander's death.

Thousands of black flags flutter from buildings and homes throughout the country. Public entertainments have been canceled.

Members of Regency.

The members of the regency are Prince Paul, former Minister of Education Stankovitch, and Gov. Banterovitch of Zagreb. Paul's wife, Princess Olga, is a sister of Princess Marina, bride-to-be of the Duke of Kent, son of King George of England.

Authorities ridiculed an old story which had been popping up abroad for the last 10 years that Prince George, Alexander's eccentric elder brother, had escaped from his confinement near Nish.

A miracle alone could let the deposed Prince regain his liberty, they said, because the house in which he has been confined by the King since 1925 for mental abberations is carefully guarded by soldiers and machine guns, by stone walls, barbed wire and electric flood lights.

Disquieting Reports From Jugo-Slavia in Italian Papers.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 11.—Italian newspapers printed disquieting reports from Jugo-Slavia today.

Il Tevere headlines said, "An uncertain situation exists in Jugo-Slavia following an uprising of Croats." Il Piccolo reported an anti-Italian demonstration was held in Belgrade.

In an editorial Il Tevere said: "The personal dictatorship of Alexander was the iron hand that pressed into unitary political formation divers and recalcitrant nationalities. With the supreme custodian of the formation gone, the danger of disintegration is not imaginary."

The Italian navy will send a light cruiser flying an admiral's flag and one squadron of destroyers to escort the body of King Alexander when it passes through the Strait of Messina. The ships will accompany the Jugo-Slav destroyer Dublovnik as far as the end of Italian territorial waters.

$300,000 SHORTAGE IN FINANCE COMPANY

President of Connecticut Concern and Woman Secretary Are Missing.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 11—The office of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn disclosed last night that an extensive police search is being made for Frank A. Tillman, president of the Underwriters' Finance Co., and his secretary, Miss Beatrice Kauffman, of New York.

The State's Attorney said an investigation had disclosed a shortage of $300,000 in the funds of the finance company, and that bench warrants for the arrest of Tillman, missing since Saturday, and Miss Kaufman, would be requested in Superior Court.

County Detective Edward J. Hickey, representing Alcorn's office, said an investigation by Judge Henry H. Hunt of Glastonbury and himself had shown a conspiracy of large proportions.

The investigation, under way for two weeks, has led Hickey to New York City, he said, to view a hotel room from which Tillman departed just before Hickey's arrival, leaving his coat, vest, topcoat, hat and suitcase.

Authorities said they found evidence Tillman wanted to convey the impression he had committed suicide.

Hickey, with Lieut. William King of the Metropolitan Bureau of Missing persons, searched New York City over the weekend, visited the morgue and later obtained evidence that Tillman was alive.

They said Miss Kauffman had left her apartment in New York, taking her automobile, riding habit and other clothing.

The State's Attorney's office spokesman said large sums were being traced to Miss Kauffman's account, from the finance company.

Three Burned to Death at Ottawa.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Canada, Oct. 11.—Three persons were burned to death in a fire which destroyed two houses today in the small village of South Hull, across the river from Ottawa. The dead: Mrs. Moise Payette, 75 years old; Thelma Hutchison, 4-year-old child who was sleeping in the Payette home, and Donat Gunville, 24, a neighbor who tried to save the others.

Expected Attempts in Paris.

All the suspects are believed the police to be members of a Ma donian revolutionary ring of terr ists. Their ability to elude the p lice is attributed by the investig tors to frequent changes of stoppi places and to falsified passpor which appear to be genuine.

The seeming laxity in the prote tion of Alexander at Marseilles attributed in informed quarters the authorities' belief an attempt o the King's life would be made Paris. Elaborate precautions been taken to safeguard him af his arrival in the capital from t Mediterranean port where, howev no attack was expected. The t rorist gang, according to the poli theory, heard of the plans for pr tection in Paris, hastily chang the scene of attack to Marseill and sent Kalemen there.

LAZIA LINKED WITH KANSAS CITY UNION STATION KILLINGS

aid to Have Arranged Conference of Miller and Floyd, Alleged Machine Gunners.

E IS NAMED BY GANGSTER RIVAL

e Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—he name of John Lazia, recently ain lieutenant in the political or-nization of Tom Pendergast, was ked today with the machine-gun lling of four officers and their isoner here, June 17, 1933.

Federal agents checked state-ents that Lazia had arranged a eeting of three outlaws that led the slaying of the officers and ank Nash, their prisoner, in ont of the Union Station.

The Kansas City Star says it has arned that James La Capra, a ngster rival of Lazia now held in nnection with the politician's am-sh murder, has told Federal in-stigators that Lazia played a part the killings that grew out of an tempt to liberate Nash. Much of Capra's story, the paper says, been found by the investigators lly with evidence they already ve obtained.

Miller and Floyd Named.

The Government yesterday med Verne C. Miller, since slain gangsters near Detroit; Charles retty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma des-rado, and his confederate, Adam chetti, both at large, as the men o turned a blast of machine-gun e on the officers in their attempt free Nash, Miller's friend.

The Star says La Capra told that when Miller learned sh was to be brought through re on his way to prison at Leav-worth, Kan., he sought the aid Lazia men in the delivery plot. zia, the story goes, refused to rmit his men to take part, but ggested that Miller obtain the of Floyd and Richetti, then in e city.

Says Lazia Sat In.

La Capra said, the paper states, at Lazia arranged a meeting be-een Miller and Floyd and Richet-himself sitting in on the session, e night before the killings. Lazia n, the gangster is quoted as say-aided Floyd and Richetti to es-e from the city and for 24 hours er the crime had secreted them the North Side, the part of the over which Lazia ruled.

La Capra, who twice has escaped ter attempts to kill him since zia was shot down, is being held a death cell for safe keeping. Po-lay the attempts on his life to zia associates.

While Miller, Floyd and Richetti re named as the actual slayers, other persons have been named the Government as involved in plot through conspiracy.

Woman's Alleged Part.

Two of the alleged conspirators, hard Tallman Galatas and his Elizabeth, were brought here er their arrest Sept. 22 at New leans. Mrs. Galatas was ar-gned yesterday and her bond at $25,000. Galatas had been cted previously.

Mrs. Galatas is accused of hav-been the one who set in mo-the plans for the delivery plot. er the arrest of Nash at Hot rings, Ark., she is alleged to have ephoned the information to Herb rmer at Joplin, Mo., thus form-the first link in a chain of tele-one calls that led to hatching of plot.

Information Tallies.

La Capra's information concern-the actual killings was de-bed as tallying sharply with evi-ce since gathered by Federal and Sheriff Thomas B. Bash. he killers parked their automo-a position where they easily command the machine Nash ered. Two of the killers, La ra said, had machine guns; the er, apparently Richetti, was ed with an automatic pistol etti was the driver of the car was Miller who approached the cers machine and demanded h, La Capra said. As he gave order, Nash attempted to pull of the car but at that time, D Grooms, a Kansas City detec-opened fire.

Capra said Floyd had stepped n the left side of the killers' car was standing beside the run-board with a machine gun ed on the officers. Richetti part way out on the opposite Miller stood ahead and a lit-o the left the slayers' machine.

Says Floyd Was Wounded.

e of the bullets from Groom's ol struck Floyd. Immediately three of the gangers opened the two machine gunners rak-the car, killing four officers Nash, and wounding two other cers.

Capra said the three men er left Kansas City that day d was wounded in one shoul-and he and Richetti went to hideout.

at night, La Capra charged, er found Lazia and several men prominent in the North Democratic Club at the Union Station restaurant. He conferred with Lazia privately. The next day, La Capra said, Miller left town.

Meanwhile, La Capra said, a physician treated Floyd's shoulder wound. The killer had lo considerable blood and was in a weakened condition. The day following the slaying, a conference was held in the North Side among Floyd and Richetti and Lazia and several of his men, according to La Capra.

The Getaway of Floyd.

La Capra gave detailed information concerning Floyd's getaway in a car which, he said, was owned by Jack Griffin, alias Jack Gregory, the St. Louis hoodlum accused of taking part in the slaying of Lazia July 10. Griffin has been missing for weeks.

La Capra said Floyd asked for a machine gun and swung it into a firing position. When he learned he was able to operate the weapon despite his injured shoulder, he informed the other men he was prepared to go.

An escort of North Side gangsters, all of whom La Capra named, was selected to accompany the two killers onto the highway. Here, it was said La Capra informed the agents, Lazia announced in a loud voice the escort should stop at nothing if trouble came and then when Floyd and Richetti were out of hearing distance he informed his gang to take no chances, to stay far enough behind the killers' machine so that they would be safe in any event.

Wound Treated in Cleveland.

La Capra told the agents Floyd and Miller arranged a meeting in Cleveland several weeks later. However, La Capra said Floyd went directly to Cleveland, where a gang there obtained medical treatment for him. He said the car Floyd and Richetti drove, which had belonged to Griffin, later was found near Cleveland in a charred condition, containing the body of an unidentified person burned to death.

Coincident with the capture of Nash in Hot Springs, Floyd and Richetti had kidnaped Sheriff Jack Killingsworth of Bolivar, Mo., in an encounter at Bolivar. At Osceola, Mo., the outlaws held up Walter Griffith and forced him to drive them, with the Sheriff still a hostage, to Kansas City. The Sheriff and Griffith were released in the Kansas City industrial district, and Floyd and Richetti transferred to a sedan the two machine guns they were carrying. Later, they apparently joined their associate and went to Union Station to await the arrival of the officers and Nash.

Fritz Mulloy, indicted on conspiracy charges in the Union Station case, disappeared recently. After he returned home, reports were current that Government agents had been questioning him. During the world series in St. Louis, Dominick Binaggio, a friend of Lazia, was picked up by Government agents there. He was questioned and released.

Same Machine Gun Used in Both Killings, Paper Says.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—The same machine gun that was used in the Union Station killings also was used in the ambush slaying in July of John Lazia, the Journal-Post says in a copyrighted story.

The Journal-Post says machine gun shells found at the Union Station and shells found at the scene of the Lazia slaying bore the same markings, according to Merle Gill, Kansas City ballistics expert, who subjected the shells to a minute examination.

a broadening of the act, or a supplementary act pertaining to agricultural labor."

The convention last night upheld its Executive Council in declaring illegal the convention of the Building Trades Department, which refused to allow re-affiliation of the carpenters, electrical workers and bricklayers.

Representatives of the strongest unions of the federation backed President William Green in his demand that the three unions be allowed to re-affiliate.

The roll call was on a report of the Adjustment Committee which on appeal had affirmed the report of the Executive Council. That body had declared the building trades convention illegal and ordered that unless its differences were composed within 45 days after the close of this convention, a new building trades meeting should be held at Washington, to transact the department's business and elect its officers.

During the debate, delegates admitted the squabble was over the retention of the present officers of the department, now headed by Michael J. McDonough of Oakland, Cal.

The vote was: Yes, 19,398, and no, 3826.

Besides the three involved unions, the bricklayers, carpenters and electrical workers, which control nearly 3600 votes, the following large unions supported President Green:

Ladies' Garment Workers, United Mine Workers, Musicians, Teamsters, Railway Clerks, and Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Most of the opposition came from the other building trades unions, including Structural Iron Workers, Elevator Constructors, Metal Sheet Workers, Molders, Painters and Decorators, Plasterers, Plumbers and Steamfitters, Railroad Telegraphers and the Typographical Union.

NEW UNIT DESIGNATED IN RELIEF CAMPAIGN

It Will Seek Subscriptions From Corporations With Branches in St. Louis.

A new unit of the United Relief Campaign will be formed to solicit donations from about 300 national business organizations with branch offices in St. Louis, Leo C. Fuller, campaign chairman, announces today. The campaign will open Nov. 14. The exact amount to be sought has not yet been fixed, but it will be about $3,000,000.

Arnold G. Stifel, general chairman of lasts year's campaign, will be chairman of the new unit, which will be known as the national corporations group, and will be a special unit of the larger subscriptions division. Among the other members of the committee are E. H. Steedman, Morton May, Sidney Maestre, August A. Busch Jr., L. W. Baldwin and Felix E. Gunter.

Fuller said that while national business houses with St. Louis branches have been solicited in previous campaigns, the approaching one will be the first in which a separate group has been organized for this purpose. Last year, he said, about $38,000 was received from corporations having branches here.

BURGLAR GETS DIAMOND PIN

Also Takes Wrist Watch From Apartment.

A burglar jimmied the door to the apartment of Mrs. Clara Shield, 6145 Waterman avenue, during her absence yesterday and stole a platinum barpin set with 13 diamonds, and a wrist watch.

She did not estimate the value of the jewelry.

STATE TESTIMONY IN SIKO MURDER TRIAL CONCLUDED

Defense Files a Demurrer Contending There Is No Substantial Evidence Couch Fired Fatal Shots.

Testimony for the State in the trial of George Couch, paroled convict charged with the murder of Patrolman Albert Siko, was concluded at noon today before a jury in Circuit Judge Hogan's court. The defense filed a demurrer, contending that their was no substantial evidence that Couch fired the shots, which killed Siko. The demurrer will be argued in Judge Hogan's chambers and, if over-ruled, the defense will begin presenting evidence at 2 p. m.

From Couch's brother-in-law, William A. Whitter, and from his boyhood friend, George F. Schumaker, the jury last night heard testimony that Couch told them he had attempted to hold up a street car motorman and "had to shoot a copper" to get away.

Says Couch Told Details.

Schumaker, who lives at 1216 South Seventh street, gave the more detailed and graphic account of Couch's statements. He said Couch went to his home at 2 a. m. on the night of the murder and told him all about it.

Couch, 27 years old, his face showing the pallor of confinement—he had been out on parole from the penitentiary at Michigan City, Ind., only a ilttle more than a month before he was arrested for the murder of Patrolman Siko—followed Schumaker's testimony intently. He leaned forward frequently to consult with his attorneys, fidgeted with his hands, and at times stared fixedly at Assistant Circuit Attorney Flynn.

Couch, Schumaker said, woke him up by knocking on the kitchen door of his home at 2 o'clock on the morning of April 30, about three hours after Siko was shot and mortally wounded in an alley near Second street and Delmar boulevard. When Couch arrived, Schumaker said, he was hatless, dressed in a dark blue suit. His hands were scratched, Schumaker said, and his clothing was dirty.

"Se said, 'Open the door and leave me in, I've just shot a copper,'" Schumaker testified. "I said, 'You're crazy; sit down.' He showed me a pistol; it was a large blue steel pistol.' At that point Schumaker was shown Patrolman Siko's revolver, found, police testified, in Couch's room. Schumaker said it was like the weapon Couch showed him.

Tells of Conversation.

The witness, up to that time, had testified in short sentences, answering questions put to him by Flynn. He began then, however, to give a continuous narrative of his conversation with Couch, and was not interrupted by questions.

"He said he was on a street car on Franklin avenue," Schumaker said. "He tried to stick up the motorman. He wouldn't stand for it, and started hollering, 'holdup! holdup! take a look at him!' He told the motorman to open the door, but he wouldn't do it, and he kicked the glass out, and when he opened the door he jumped right into a copper's arms.

"He said he started running and got one, two or three blocks away and he ran out of wind. He couldn't run any more. He ran into an alley. The alley was dark and the policeman followed him. He said, 'Throw up your hands and gimme that pistol.' He said he swung around and shot him in the face. He said the policeman fell down.

"He said another big flatfoot followed and he threw a couple of slugs or peas (bullets) at the big so-and-so, and all he could see was feet. He said he went down the alley and got behind some barrels. Then he got out and climbed a drain spout and got on a roof and stayed there a while and the scout cars were lousy over there. Then he made his way to my house. He said he left his hat on the roof."

Again answering Flynn's questions, the witness said Couch stayed at his house until about 9 o'clock the next morning. About 2 o'clock, and again at 5 o'clock, Schumaker said, Couch asked him to telephone to his (Couch's) sister to have his brother come for him, but he was unable to reach the sister.

"Tough Break for De More."

"When I went out at 5 o'clock," he said, "I got a morning paper and read it to George. He asked me to read it to him because his eyes were watering and he couldn't see. He said De More being identified by the motorman was a tough break for him. When I got to the part about the railroad detective, he laughed and said, 'That must have been the Hoosier I shot at, he sure could run.'"

The De More mentioned was Louis de More, once sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of which Couch is now accused. De More was pardoned last week by the Governor, and may be a rebuttal witness for the State.

Schumaker had been timid and hesitant in his direct examination, but when Louis E. Miller, of defense counsel, took him for a stiff cross-examination of more than an hour, he became angry and aggressive, sarcastically giving obviously wrong answers to questions he considered pointless, and when he left the witness stand he made an uncomplimentary grimace at Miller.

Miller's questions failed to shake Schumaker's testimony. The attorney sought an admission that Schumaker's account was based on newspaper stories and information given him by police who threatened him. But the witness said, "I talked only after the police told me Russell Couch (brother of the defendant), had talked."

"Did the police ever say anything to you about you holding the bag?" "That's why I was afraid to talk at first. I thought I might be charged as an accessory after the fact."

"Who told you that?" "George himself told me that."

Mrs. Schumaker a Witness.

Schumaker's wife, a witness today, corroborated his testimony that Couch was an early-morning visitor at their home after the murder. She heard Couch and her husband talking in low voices, she said, but could not hear what was said. Her husband told her, she said, that Couch was "in a little trouble," and when she arose about 7 o'clock, Couch called her attention to the morning paper, with a story of the shooting of Patrolman Siko, and said he supposed that was why police were shooting at him, Mrs. Schumaker said.

Miss Mary Matthews, 4221 West Pine boulevard, a friend of Russell Couch, told of accompanying him and John Pohle to the Schumaker home, where they picked up George Couch and took him to the Cass avenue address. She was unable to fix the date of that incident, but said it was the morning after a visit she and Russell had made to the Witter home. George was there when she arrived at 11 o'clock that night, she said, but she was unable to say when he left.

Whitter, who at the time of the Siko murder lived at 3513 Cass avenue with his wife, Couch's sister, said he is now separated from his wife and lives at 1434 Hills terrace. Couch, he said, stayed at their home on occasions. He identified Patrolman Siko's pistol, an exhibit at the trial, as "like" one that he found at his home under the cushions of a sofa on which Couch slept.

Couch, Whitter testified, was at his home from about 8:30 o'clock until about "three-quarters of an hour before midnight.' Siko was shot at 11:15 o'clock. Couch, the witness said, returned to his home about 7:30 o'clock the next morning, accompanied by his brother, Russell, and another man and woman.

"Later George told me he tried to hold up a street car man, but he wouldn't stand for it and he tried to get away and had to shoot a copper," Whitter said.

Cross examination developed that Whitter was uncertain about the date of the incidents he had testified about. One thing which aided him in fixing the date, he said, was that he had been looking for a job at a shade company, but Miller brought out that April 29 was a Sunday.

Then the witness said he could not have been looking for a job at a shade company on that day, but insisted, regardless of dates, that the night Couch was at his house was the night before he came there at 7:30 a. m. with his brother Russell and the other man and woman. George Couch's hand was scratched on that morning, he recalled.

SCALES 3 OUNCES OFF, GROCER IS FINED $100

Inspector Testifies Prepared Packages in W. J. O'Toole's Store Also Were Short Weight.

William J. O'Toole, a grocer, 4643 Easton avenue, was fined $100 by Police Judge Vest today on his plea of guilty of possessing faulty scales and selling foodstuffs in short weights.

H. W. Kessler, an inspector for the Department of Weights and Measures, testified he purchased three items at the store Oct. 4, asking for a pound of each. Later weighing showed them to be three ounces short, he said. Kessler also stated that prepared packages at the store were found to be short. O'Toole told the Court that he always had tried to be fair and give full measures.

In assessing the fine, Judge Vest said, "Even considering that he has been in business 12 years and has never been arrested, in these times it is hard enough to get money to buy things with, without being short-weighted."

WOMAN IN JAIL SINCE WEDDING GOES TO TRIAL

Mrs. Helen Gottlieb Accused in Counterfeiting; Husband Serving Term.

The trial of Mrs. Helen Gottlieb, 33 years old, of Kankakee, Ill., who has spent her time in City Jail since her marriage last May 14 to Julius L. Gottlieb, with whom she had been arrested for possession of counterfeit coins, continued today before a jury in Federal Judge Davis' court.

Also on trial is Miss Virginia Smith, 22, of Charleston, W. Va., who attended Mrs. Gottlieb as bridesmaid in the ceremony performed by a Justice of the Peace in the office of United States Marshal Fahy.

The bridegroom and Harris O. A. Ware, arrested at the same time, pleaded guilty of possessing countrefeit coins last July and were sentenced to five-year prison terms.

The men were arrested in an attempt to pass spurious half dollars in Wellston and the women were taken into custody when police found 200 counterfeit coins in a rooming house in the 1800 block of Wash street, where the four were living.

Taking the stand yesterday, Mrs. Gottlieb contended she and her codefendant did not know Gottlieb and Ware were passing counterfeits when they accompanied them here by bus from Chicago. Although the men asked her to help pass the coins, she said, she refused.

She admitted that, as Miss Helen Shaw, she had served a prison sentence in Michigan 14 years ago for raising a $10 bill to $50.

COE GLADE PROVES ALLURING "CARMEN"

Giovanni Martinelli Gives Pleasing Performance in Opera at Auditorium.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

BIZET'S "Carmen," the second offering in the St. Louis Grand Opera Company's three-week season, was presented last night at the Municipal Auditorium before a large and friendly audience. Coe Glade sang the title role and Giovanni Martinelli made his first appearance in this series of operas as Don Jose. The performance in general realized the exciting possibilities of the musical and dramatic text. It was well paced, well integrated and exhibited, most of the time, the effects of its intelligent direction.

In her portrayal of a role that bristles with so many traditions but at the same time is weighted down with so many unfortunate associations, Miss Glade had many things in her favor. The impresaric who dreamed of a Carmen who would weigh less than a bull would have been delighted with her appearance for she was Carmen to the life—torrid, sensuous, cruel, physically alluring and a thoroughgoing Gitana. Miss Glade also exhibited a generous vocal endowment. The voice, a rich contralto, had depth and range. Moreover, Miss Glade knew the role thoroughly and all her movements were as well synchronized with the ebb and flow of the musical text as her singing.

Off to a Bad Start.

Nevertheless one had to take the word of the toreador, the soldier and the Sevilian hangers-on that Carmen was irresistible, for Miss Glade as a femme fatale was something less than convincing. Perhaps the reason lay in the fact that she got off to a bad start. The two most important numbers in the opera, the habanera, in which the character of Carmen is established, and the seguidilla, in which she gains her first, complete ascendancy ove rDon Jose, were her worst. Her voice was lacking in resonance, the habanera was sung almost entirely off key and the vocal line was not well articulated. She improved steadily throughout the evening, but not enough to offset the impression made in the first act.

Martinelli's Don Jose was impressive vocally and touchingly sympathetic in its comprehension. The part needs acting as well as singing, for this unfortunate soldier is far more than the usual operatic puppet. His moral dissolution, in fact, is the thesis around which the action swings and from which the music takes its character. Martinelli gave a veracious portrait, with the changes in his character accurately reflected from act to act.

Hardly less penetrating was Lucy Monroe's presentation of the flaxen-haired, blue-skirted and oh-so-good Micaela. This little Navarese girl is generally a bore. But Miss Monroe obviously realized that Micaela was introduced into the opera for serious dramatic reasons and not merely a provide a major role for a soprano. Micaela is a perfect counter-foil for Carmen. Besides that, her appearance in the third act not only enables the composer to complete his characterization of her, but is a means for measuring the moral degradation of Don Jose.

In Miss Monroe's version tenderness and innocence were positive instead of negative virtues. She managed her voice well, colored it effectively and made it subtly responsive to the meaning of the text.

Alfredo Gandolfi as Escamillo was a fine looking toreador—all the characters looked their parts—but was more heroic as an actor than a singer. The small parts were all well taken especially the role of Frasquita, sung by Margery Maxwell. The card duet in the third act, in which Miss Maxwell was ably seconded by Ada Paggi was one of the most finished episodes of the evening.

Finally one must again pay tribute to Conductor Papi's never flagging comprehension and control, to the singing of the chorus and the excellent sense of stage composition displayed by the stage director. Unfortunately, the chorus tended to collect in lumps during the first act, but the second and fourth acts went off with an affecting fervor. The fourth act ballet—though scarcely a manifestation of finished choreography—had a convincing spontaneity and gave Miss Delaporte and Mr. Mahoney their first real opportunity of the present season.

The chorus was reinforced in the first act by the boys from the Holy Name choir. They deserved nothing but praise for their singing, but it would have been better if they had sung in French instead of English.

EASTMAN AGAINST PUBLIC RAIL OWNERSHIP

In Kansas City Speech, U. S. Co-Ordinator Calls for Terminal Unification.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Co-Ordinator of Transportation, said today he was not ready to recommend public ownership and operation of railroads.

In an address before the Trans-Missouri-Kansas Shippers' Board and the Kansas City Traffic Club, Eastman said:

"Last January I discussed that possibiilty (public ownership) in detail in a report to the President and Congress with the conclusion that I was unwilling to recommend such a plan under existing conditions. Reserving the right to change my mind if good reason develops, I have not changed it yet."

Preliminary estimates, the co-ordinator said, indicate that railroads could save between $35,000,000 and $50,000,000 annually through terminal unification.

"The railroads need that sum and need it badly," he added. "They will need it even if business conditions materially improve. They are up against far different conditions than they have ever faced heretofore."

The savings through terminal unification, Eastman admittedX would be at the expense of labor. He said, though, that "it is quite possible" to devise a substitute for the provision of the Railroad Emergency Act protecting employes in the work they had in May, 1933. Such a substitute would set up a system of dismissal compensation to give benefits to younger men who are laid off. The benefits would be similar to those provided for older employes under the Railroad Retirement Act.

"With such a system and the retirement act," he said, "the railroads would gain immediately a substantial measure of economies, and the gain would increase steadily and quite rapidly each year thereafter."

In Chicago Speeches, He Again Urges Co-ordinated Carriers.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Joseph B. Eastman again advocated public regulation of all forms of transportation yesterday. The Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation set forth his views in addresses before the Chicago Association of Commerce and the American Life Insurance convention.

"Public regulation is needed for the welfare of industry itself, to promote order and stability, prevent exploitation and curb destructive competition and waste," he declared.

This supervision should be co-ordinated under a single head, he added.

He lives at 420 East Madison avenue, Kirkwood.

SUIT OVER ED WYNN SCRIPT

Boston Firm Enjoined From Using Comedian's Radio Remarks.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—A decision was handed down in Federal Court yesterday enjoining a Boston company from advertising, selling or publishing script of Ed Wynn, the comedian, under the name of "Uproars" or in any other manner.

The suit disclosed that Wynn received $5000 for each radio performance on an oil company program and that Graham McNamee, the announcer, received $250 for each appearance with Wynn in the weekly broadcast. The Boston concern had filed suit against the National Broadcasting Co. and the oil company saying it had been prevented from advertising the pamphlet over the radio. The concern said it had received permission from Wynn to put the script in pamphlet form, but the Court ruled Wynn had given sole right to the scrip to his empolyer.

JACK HARRIGAN, BOAT CLUB MANAGER, INJURED BY TRUCK

In City Hospital With Fractured Skull; Woman Crushed in Collision.

Jack Harrigan, manager of the Century Boat Club, suffered a skull injury when struck by a truck in the 200 block of North Broadway yesterday afternoon. He is in City Hospital. Angel Nenkoff, of East St. Louis, the driver, told police that Harrigan walked from behind a street car into the side of the truck. Harrigan, 51 years old, lives at the boat club, 5500 South Broadway.

Mrs. Amos Hail, 26, Elvins, Mo., was crushed when a truck on which she was riding with her husband overturned in a collision with a transfer truck at the intersection of Highways 32 and 61 yesterday. She was taken to Barnes Hospital, where physicians said she had suffered a fractured pelvis.

HERE'S THE DIFFERENCE between Florsheims and Ordinary Shoes!

Florsheim uses ONLY
THE HEART OF THE HIDE

● No matter how well a shoe is made, it can be no better than its leather. That's why Florsheim uses only the finest imported and domestic skins.

But that is not enough. The outer edges of a skin are always thinner, rougher, and more apt to split and tear... so Florsheim uses only the heart of the hide. Strong, smooth, luxurious leather that can take hard punishment without losing its fine appearance.

As a matter of fact, that's one of the reasons why Florsheim Shoes are better, why they keep their good looks longer ... just part of Florsheims policy of sticking to fine lasts, fine leathers and fine labor

BRITISH ECONOMIST FINDS NRA DANGEROUS

Sir Arthur Balfour Says "You Cannot Buy Confidence at Any Price."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Sir Arthur Balfour, British economist, warned American business men yesterday of dangers in the path of the NRA. Speaking at the British and North American Luncheon Club, he said:

"Great Britain faced the economic crisis by cutting down expenses and increasing taxation to fit the budget, controlling her trade balance and quietly reducing wages and the cost of production.

"You in America have gone in for huge public expenditure. You have deliberately increased costs by shortening hours and raising wages. You have deliberately increased prices and you have filled the banks with credit with the idea that people will take it.

"You have also done something which is rather dangerous: You have made promises to labor which in economic fact you can never implement.

"Then you have used the radio for a psychological boost such as the world has never seen.

"You cannot buy confidence at any price. The only thing which uys confidence is the feelings in the individual that if he undertakes an enterprise his Government won't interfere and he will be able to carry on his business quietly with no great Government experiments in front of him to upset the apple-cart.

"The President of the United States has in his hands today power such as no man ever had before. He is allowed to raise or lower tariffs by 50 per cent. If he reduces tariffs substantially allround he completely breaks down his scheme of prices; if he raises tariffs, he will be in a quarrel with the farmers.

"Therefore, I don't think you or I want the President's job."

Senator Hebert Renominated.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 11.—United States Senator Felix Hebert was renominated and Gen. Luke H. Gallan, veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars, was nominated for Governor at the Republican State convention yesterday.

TWO HELD IN CITY WANTED IN WASHINGTON BOND THEFT

Arrested When St. Louis Broker Says They Attempted to Steal Securities Here.

The Police Department today received a request from Washington (D. C.) police to hold two men arrested here yesterday as alleged bond thieves. According to the Washington police, the men are wanted there in connection with the theft of $50,000 in securities from the Riggs National Bank.

The men gave their names as Ralph Oakes, 33 years old, and William Evans, 40. They denied knowledge of the Washington robbery and also denied knowing each other. Police records disclosed that Evans, also known as Warner, had served prison terms in Boston and New York for larceny.

They were arrested at Eighth and St. Charles streets yesterday after a chase by police following a report by Ralph Nolan, cashier for A. G. Edwards & Sons, 409 North Eighth street, stock and bond brokers, that they had attempted to steal about $14,000 in securities from a cage in the brokerage office. They denied the charge.

3000 AT OPENING OF DEMOCRATIC CITY CAMPAIGN

Cochran Attacks Republican Leaders as Hoover Agents Seeking to Discard New Deal.

PLEA FOR CONGRESS LOYAL TO ROOSEVELT

Ex-President Is Trying to Win Re-election by Defeating Recovery, Congressman Charges.

National Republican campaign leaders are the spokesmen of Herbert Hoover who is attempting to obtain the Presidency again, Congressman John J. Cochran, nominee to succeed himself in the Thirteenth District, said last night at the Democratic City Committee's opening campaign meeting at North Side Turner Hall.

The North St. Louis meeting was something like St. Patrick's day in Dublin. More than 2000 persons jammed the hall, corridors and the stairway, half as many more overflowing to the sidewalks for a half-block in each direction at Twentieth and Salisbury streets. Many sat in Hyde Park were speeches were audible from amplifiers placed outside the hall.

There was no prominent speaker from another city—the usual attraction at opening campaign meetings. It wasn't necessary, for North St. Louisans of Irish extraction turned out in family units under the spell of such names as State Senator Joseph Brogan, who opened the meeting, and Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, who introduced Jack Cochran, Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan, Thomas S. Hennings Jr., and John T. Fitzsimmons.

All "Friends of Hoover."

"The men in charge of the Republican National Committee, the Senatorial and Congressional Campaign Committees, are the friends and spokesmen of Herbert Hoover," said Cochran, who made an unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator and was placed on the Congressional ticket after the nominee, Joseph A. Lennon, had withdrawn.

"It is common knowledge that he picked them because they held his views and will do his bidding. They misrepresent the average Republican. Their purpose is to defeat the President's program for helping all who need help. Mr. Hoover is attempting to regain control of the whole Republican party. He is attempting to capture all of its instrumentalities. His object is to re-elect himself President.

"That is why he saw to it that his close friend and follower, Henry P. Fletcher, was named head of the Republican National Committee. That is why Mr. Hoover's former appointees are spending time and money in this campaign. It is why he is writing articles and books and even making speeches to keep his name before the public.

"It is the reason Mr. Hoover's agents are making an effort to elect Mr. Strodtman and use his votes to discredit and defeat President Roosevelt's program at the next Congress."

Ex-Sheriff His Opponent.

Cochran then spoke in complimentary terms of former Sheriff George W. Strodtman, his Republican opponent for Congress.

"He is an outstanding citizen with a record both in private and public life that anyone would be proud to possess," Cochran went on. "He is a good man and a good citizen but let us consider whether he would be a good Congressman under present conditions.

"The Republican leadership is attempting to elect Senator and Congressmen who would undo all President Roosevelt has done and halt further legislation for employment of the jobless and for the relief of suffering. It is trying to elect Mr. Strodtman and is undoubtedly affording him practical assistance. He must, therefore, feel an obligation to follow, if he is elected, the leadership of those whose help he is at present accepting.

"If ever there was a need for electing Congressmen loyal to a national administration, sympathetic with its program, certainly there is such a need this year. To send men who would swell the opposition to the President's program would be an act so hurtful to the people of this district and of the whole country, that I know the voters in this election will refuse to do anything of the kind."

Judge Ryan Speaks.

Circuit Judge Ryan, nominee to succeed himself, stated he did not believe that a candidate for judge should speak of his own qualifications nor of those of his associates on the ticket for that position.

"The office is of the highest importance and should be filled only by men of integrity, ability and experience fitting them for its grave and arduous duties," he said. "Therefore, learn for yourselves all you can as to the character and qualifications of candidates for the bench and vote for those you think best qualified."

Judge Ryan became partisan, however, in discussing the rest of the ticket.

"The man I regard as the leading figure in the campaign is John J. Cochran," he continued. "It was profound regret to all of us he could not have led the State ticket as candidate for the United States Senate. The people said otherwise in the primary and to their verdict we bow, and now with good grace, since we have come to know more of the ability to fill that high office of the nominee, Mr. Truman."

Chairman Predicts Victory.

Chairman Hannegan predicted that the last of Republican officeholders would be swept out at the Nov. 6 election.

"Numerous Republican officeholders in St. Louis, through the apathy of voters and unscrupulous organization, have perpetuated themselves in office so long that they regard these offices as their own individual kingdom," he said. "But the voters will refuse to grant them another extension of their long leases next month and will sweep them out."

Woman Dies on Street.

Mrs. Nora Hartwig, 64 years old, employed as a maid at the Y. W. C. A., died yesterday afternoon while walking at Fourteenth and St. Charles streets. Death is believed to have been due to heart disease. Mrs. Hartwig, a widow, resided at 3600 North Twenty-third street. Her son, Patrolman Clarence Hartwig of Carr Street District survives.

WALLACE ADDRESSES CATHOLIC CONFERENCE

"More Than Any Administration's Job" to Find Way Out, He Declares.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 11.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told the National Conference of Catholic Charities last night that mankind can no longer continue with "a civilization half steel, half putty." The "steel," he defined as corporate power, the "putty" the small business men, farmers and the like.

"We will never," he said, "find our way out of this depression until the majority of the people recognize that man is more than an economic matter, more than a reasoning animal."

He said that finding and following the way out "is more than a day's job, more than any administration's job, a job greater than within the lifetime of any of those here." For, he said, "the land frontiers are gone. We must learn to live with each other. We have no more natural resources ready to spring into wealth at the touch of a hand. Our period of rapidly expanding population is at an end."

Archbishop on Profits.

Archbishop John T. McMicholas, of Cincinnati, told the conference that "those who have reaped great profits would like the old order restored. God grant that this may never be.

"For the coming years, the employer must be satisfied with a small profit and be willing to share profits with the employed. I have no hesitation in saying that I wish every man in gainful occupation would, with entire freedom, choose some union to which he would belong; and would that all our unions were characterized by sanity and fairness, not only to the employer, but to the general public.

For Unified Work Relief.

The conference went on record as favoring a permanent program of unified work relief. Declaring "it is not the American system of life to depend completely on Government for physical sustenance," it said the Federal Government could not continue the financial burden of direct relief. While suggesting that "certain relief functions have had to be administered" by the Federal Government which "in the permanent scheme might be better exercised by local communities and State governments," it pointed to "considerable confusion" in fixing responsibility as proof of need of a unified plan.

The Rev. Edward Roberts Moore, member of the New York Municipal Housing Authority, said the Federal housing program was not properly conceived, declaring that after two or three years of discussion, the objective of the housing program was not primarily better housing, or in itself a recognition of Government responsibility in this field, but rather the stimulation of employment.

Election of Officers.

Delegates re-elected the Most Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University, Washington, as honorary president, and Mgr. R Marcellus Wagner of Cincinnati as president. Peoria, Ill., was selected as the meeting place for 1935 and Seattle for 1936.

John A. Reilly of St. Louis was elected vice-president. Three members of the Executive Committee continue in office, completing three-years terms. They include the Rev. John J. Butler of St. Louis.

Committee chairmen and vice-chairman, respectively, include:

Committee on Families: Miss Frances Hoynes, Washington, D. C., and Wiltha Kelley, St. Louis.

Committee on Health: The Rev. Alphonse Schwitalla, St. Louis University, St. Louis, and Dr. Miriam Dunn, Washington.

Committee on Social and Economic Problems: The Rt. Rev. John A. Ryan, Washington, and Dr. James E. Hagarty, Ohio State University, Columbus, O.

HEARING ON THE TVA AND STATE REGULATION

Lilienthal Says Directors Can't "Voluntarily" Submit to Tennessee Control.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11.—David E. Lilienthal, power director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, expressed the opinion yesterday that provisions of the Constitution would prevent the TVA from "voluntarily" accepting regulation by state agencies.

While saying that "I dislike to be asked to commit my board (of directors) on questions that have not arisen yet," Lilienthal told the State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission that "my recommendation to the board would be that we cannot under the Constitution voluntarily subject ourselves" to state regulatory action.

The hearing, the subject of which is the sale of Tennessee Public Service Co. properties at Knoxville to the TVA for $6,191,000, was interrupted frequently by objections of TVA counsel to questions by Forney Johnston of Birmingham, counsel for petitioners opposing the transaction.

Johnston demanded detailed information regarding TVA plans, after Lilienthal had testified that acquisition of the Tennessee company holdings was part of the "yardstick program" under which Knoxville and other municipalities are to receive TVA power. He asked if the TVA rate schedules would "fairly reimburse the cost of the service, including return on investment and the usual prudent reserves set up by private utilities."

Lilienthal replied that "we want to get a basis of comparison, a basis of measurement for private utility rates." The authority's program, he added, "does not contemplate that the TVA should actually include in its accounts items not actually expended."

The attorney produced a copy of a letter from the TVA to the Alabama Public Service Commission stating that the authority would not submit to the commission's jurisdiction. Lilienthal demanded to know how he obtained the communication, and Johnston termed the question "an impertinent inquiry."

James L. Fly, general TVA solicitor, rose to protest, but Chairman Harvey H. Hannah of the commission banged a gavel for order and Commissioned W. H. Turner instructed Johnston to proceed with his questioning.

Johnston asked if state and local taxes were paid by the TVA "as a matter of discretion—a matter of grace" rather than as "the recognition of an obligation." Saying that "it is the decision" to make payments to taxing districts "equivalent to the taxes," Lilienthal added that these payments would "not be paid as taxes," but "as a matter of policy," without "any concession that might embarrass the United States Government throughout the country."

PROPOSAL IN EAST ST. LOUIS TO FINISH ZONING SURVEY

Council Considers Suggestion of Commerce Group; Funds Unavailable Now.

The East St. Louis City Council yesterday took under advisement a proposal by the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce that the city undertake the completion of a survey to obtain data for a city-wide zoning ordinance. The survey, begun under the CWA, was about 30 per cent completed when the CWA was abolished.

It was estimated that completion would cost the city about $2600, using workers from the relief rolls. If the proposal is rejected, the work done under CWA will have gone for naught, and the city will have to start over and spend upwards of $5000 if a survey is made in later years.

Mayor James T. Crow said the city was unable to undertake the survey this year, but would likely include the project in next year's budget. The purpose of the survey will be to determine "land usage" and from this information to divide the city into commercial, residential and industrial zones.

$252,000 MISSION GIFT TO EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Contribution Is Result of Campaign Among Men of Organization.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 11. — A contribution of $252,000 from the men of the Protestant Episcopal church was announced after the opening session of the triennial convention of the church yesterday.

This contribution was the new "everyman's offering," the result of the first concerted effort on the part of laymen to obtain support for the missionary program.

Following an appeal by the national council, the plan for the new offering was evolved by the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, retired Bishop of Massachusetts, and was set into motion last February by a committee headed by Charles P. Taft II of Cincinnati, son of the late President Taft.

A member of the national committee is President Roosevelt, who is listed as a contributor.

The committee found through a survey that 75 per cent of the Episcopal laity had never contributed to the missionary work of the church.

Presiding Bishop's Address.

Presiding Bishop James de Wolf Perry of Rhode Island, addressing 20,000 laymen, clergymen and Bishops at the opening of the convention, called for united action by the entire church to take the burden which "can no longer be left to the efforts of the faithful few."

"Never has a Christian council met under more critical conditions," he declared. "Industrial unrest, attended by untold suffering most sorely felt where least deserved, threatens disruption of the social order. Panic clutches the minds of men driving them collectively and individually to measures of despair. Worst of all is the defiance of fixed moral standards, the only foundation on which a wholesome civilization can endure.

"These are the signs of a crisis not to be ignored. Neither may it be forgotten that the confusion, hostility, fear and evil-doing are of the world, not of the church. They may contaminate the channels through which the life-giving current flows, but so much more persistently must the stream maintain its course with purifying power."

Election by Deputies.

The Rev. Ze Barney T. Phillips, chaplain of the United States Senate and rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, was unanimously re-elected president of the House of Deputies for his third term. He formerly was rector of St. Peter's Church, St. Louis.

Women representing every American diocese and districts in Japan, China, South America and Mexico gathered for the organization meeting of the women's auxiliary today and named Elizabeth Matthews of Glendale, O., as their presiding officer.

DECISION PUT OFF ON PETITION FOR ROADS TO BABLER PARK

State Highway Commission Considers Request of 250 St. Louis County Residents.

The State Highway Commission has taken under advisement a petition by about 250 residents of the western part of St. Louis County for construction of new roads leading to the new Babler Memorial State Park, on Wild Horse Creek road.

Pointing out that this large park area is accessible now only by dangerous, single-track gravel lanes the petition urged extensions from Olive Street, Clayton and Manchester roads to the park and conversion of Wild Horse Creek and Ossenfort roads, along the western side of the park, into a boulevard. It also requested construction of a spur to the proposed bridge over the Missouri River at Weldon Springs, which would carry a new location of U. S. Highway No. 40.

The petitioners were of the opinion the commission would arrange for a western connection to the park also, extending from a State supplementary route in Franklin County, which parallels the Missouri.

TOWN CLUB BLDG. TO BE SOLD UNDER FORECLOSURE OCT. 30

T. M. Sayman Holds $280,000 Mortgage; Women's Organization Has Disbanded.

Foreclosure sale of the seven-story Town Club Building at 1120 Locust street under a $280,000 mortgage held by T. M. Sayman, wealthy soap manufacturer, is scheduled to take place Oct. 30 at the Real Estate Exchange. The club, a women's organization, disbanded recently because of financial difficulties.

Sayman stated recently that he intended to re-establish the club and make it "one of the greatest women's organizations in the country." Last summer he purchased the five-story building at 1124 Locust street, just west of the Town Club Building.

COUNTY REGISTRATION 95,157

Total of 2856 Added by Supplementary Enrollment.

A total of 2856 names was added to the registration books of St. Louis County in the supplementary registration ended yesterday, bringing the total number of registered voters in the county to 95,157.

Two years ago the total registration was 105,685, which was greatly reduced by a canvass made last summer. During the 10-day supplementary registration just ended 460 transfers of voters who had moved since the last general registration were made, and the office of the St. Louis County Board of Election Commissioners at the Courthouse in Clayton will continue to receive transfers up to Oct. 30.

Tap and Ballroom Classes.

Tap and ballroom dancing classes will begin tomorrow at the Central Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street. The tap classes, which will be held at 5:45 p. m., are open only to women. The ballroom dancing, starting at 7:45 p. m., is open to men and women.

•SEE HOW SIMPLE IT IS —JUST READ THESE EASY RULES
1 Anyone may compete, except employees of Procter & Gamble (and affiliated companies), the Union Central Life Insurance Co., and their families.
2 Write 100 words or less on "Why Camay Is the Best Beauty Soap for My Skin." Attach to your letter 3 green and yellow Camay wrappers or 3 copies. Write as many entries as you wish, but each must be accompanied by 3 Camay wrappers or copies and signed by the actual writer.
3 Print your name and address, and the name and address of your regular dealer or grocer on your letter.
4 The First Prize of $1,000 a year for life will be awarded each Christmas Day, beginning Christmas, 1934, for the remainder of the winner's life to the contestant whose letter the judges think best. (If the winner elects, a lump sum of $10,000 cash will be paid as First Prize in lieu of $1,000 a year for life.) First Prize guaranteed by the Union Central Life Insurance Co. All prizes except First Prize are one-time cash payments.
5 Letters will be judged on the clearness, sincerity, and interest of the statements you make about Camay, and prizes will be awarded for the best letters meeting these requirements. Judges will be: Katharine Clayburger, Associate Editor, Woman's Home Companion; Hildegarde Fillmore, Beauty Editor, McCall's Magazine; Ruth Murrin, Beauty Editor, Good Housekeeping Magazine. The judges of this contest are unbiased. They will judge only the effectiveness of the arguments submitted. Their decisions shall be final and without recourse. In the event of a tie, identical prizes will be awarded to tying contestants. All entries submitted become the property of The Procter & Gamble Co.
6 Mail your entry to Camay, P. O. Box 629, Cincinnati, Ohio. All entries must be postmarked before midnight, October 15, 1934. Prize winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible after the contest closes.
Contest applies to United States only and is subject to all provisions of Federal, State, and Local Regulations.

"Everybody Compliments Me on My Skin"
A few months ago a young teacher wrote us this letter: "I used to worry about my complexion. It has always been so drab and unattractive. My sister suggested I use Camay because it is such a fine, mild beauty soap. I have Camay to thank for the clear, fresh look that has come into my skin. Now everybody compliments me on my skin."
This letter may assist you in writing your Contest letter.

REORGANIZATION PROPOSAL FOR FAIRMONT HOTEL CO.

Action Begun in Federal Court Under Amendments to Bankruptcy Law.

Hearing of application to reorganize under the recent amendments to the Federal bankruptcy act, filed yesterday by the Fairmont Hotel Co., operating the Fairmount Hotel, Euclid and Maryland avenues, will be heard today by Judge Davis.

In the debtors' petition the company admits its inability to meet current obligations, including interest on mortgage bonds outstanding amounting to $248,000. In addition to mortgage indebtedness the company owes general claims of $247,954.

The hotel, under the management of Seneca C. Taylor, receiver appointed in the Circuit Court, is being operated at a profit, the petition says, and with improvement in business can be reorganized so that substantial savings can be effected for creditors and stockholders.

VANDERBILT HEIRESS 'TREATED LIKE ORPHAN'

So Maternal Grandmother Testifies at Hearing on Custody of Child.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Ten-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt, heiress to $4,000,000, was treated "substantially" like a "poor orphan" by her mother, it was charged in testimony yesterday during Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's court fight for custody of her child.

Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt and grandmother of the child, made the statement behind the closed doors of the courtroom where the action is being tried.

Supreme Court Justice F. Carew, summarizing testimony at the close of the session, said Mrs. Morgan had given "substantially" the same testimony she gave in an affidavit in which she described the child's treatment by her mother as that of a "poor orphan."

"Mrs. Morgan testified in general terms that the child's mother was lacking in maternal affection and instincts," he said.

Judge May Talk to Child.

The Justice disclosed that he may see and talk to the child, to help him determine whether the girl would be better cared for by her mother or her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who now has her in charge.

Mrs. Whitney's attorneys want him to question the child, he said, whereas Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorneys have emphasized that a child of that age is "very susceptible to surrounding influences." If he does talk to her, Justice Carew said, he preferred to do it in the presence of everyone concerned.

A report that the case, which has aligned mother against daughter and brought accusations against the character of Mrs. Vanderbilt, had been settled out of court was denied yesterday by attorneys for both sides and the Justice as well.

Other rumors spread about as Justice Carew, the attorneys and Mrs. Morgan went to his chambers. The Justice said later he had moved the hearings there so witnesses subpenaed by Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorney would not hear the testimony.

Grandmother Weeps.

Mrs. Morgan wept several times during the day, saying she loved her daughters. Justice Carew said Mrs. Vanderbilt, too, "showed emotion" as she heard her mother attack her own maternal fitness.

Asked whether Mrs. Morgan corroborated the testimony of Emma Keislich, the child's nurse, about the two women looking through a crack in the door and seeing Prince Hohenlohe in Mrs. Vanderbilt's bedroom, he replied: "Her testimony was of such a nature that the law says it may be taken in private."

Mrs. Morgan told in "much more general terms than other witnesses of a round of all-night parties in Mrs. Vanderbilt's Paris home," the Justice said.

Helped Support Mother.

Mrs. Morgan said in her testimony she did nothing until Mrs. Vanderbilt applied last month for full custody of the girl's $2,800,000 estate.

It was this estate, according to a petition filed yesterday in Surrogate's court with the application for custody, that provided Mrs. Vanderbilt's only income of $48,000 a year and enabled her to contribute to Mrs. Morgan's support.

Justice Carew said that testimony showed that Mrs. Morgan had received a $5000 yearly pension contributed by Mrs. Vanderbilt and another daughter, Lady Furness. Mrs. Morgan testified that the pension ceased last month, but she denied that she expected it to be continued by Mrs. Whitney in the event she wins custody of Gloria and her estate.

REPUBLICANS TO OPEN CITY CAMPAIGN NEXT TUESDAY

PRINCETON REINSTATES BEER PARTY SENIORS

Dormitory Incident Closed — Student Beats Col. Breckinridge in Debate.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 11. — The affair of the dormitory beer-drinking political rally was formally closed on Princeton's campus today with the reinstatement of the two university seniors, Edward F. Prichard Jr. of Paris, Ky., and Kelvin M. Fox of Flagstaff, Ariz., who had been indefinitely suspended because of their connection with the incident.

The two seniors were reinstated this morning after university authorities had received letters from the students' parents. For Prichard the reinstatement came virtually on the heels of his oratorical victory over Col. Henry Breckinridge of New York.

The students were suspended for serving two kegs of beer at a dormitory political rally attended by 60 students without first obtaining permission of the dean.

Although under suspension Prichard was permitted to lead the Whig Hall debaters last night against the Cliosophic Hall debaters, headed by Col. Breckinridge. The question, "Resolver, that the New Deal is in harmony with the Constitution," was supported by Whig Hall.

Clio took the negative. At the end of the speeches 96 students cast their votes for Prichard. Breckinridge, member of the class og 1907, and his fellow debaters received 72 votes.

"I was merely doing my bit in the cause of Roosevelt and recovery," Prichard said in an interview in the Daily Princetonian. "After all does not the Democratic platform call for the legalization of beer? When the Democratic party calls I hear no other voice. If Princeton is so backward as to be behind Rooseveltion liberalism then I will be crucified. However, the sentence is no more than just."

The question debated last night was: "Resolved, that the New Deal is in harmony with the Constitution." Prichard supported the affirmative.

MRS. HILLYER EASTMAN DIES IN FLORIDA; MISSOURI POET

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Hillyer Eastman, 69 years old, Missouri poet whose verses have appeared in many national magazines, died yesterday at the home of a son, George Eastman.

A year ago her "A Song at Evenings" was read at the annual meeting of the Poetry Society of America.

Mrs. Eastman was born in Chillicothe. She came here six years ago. She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and of the Daughters of the American Revolution and was a World War director of the Missouri Red Cross.

Funeral services will be tomorrow with burial here.

GIFT OF $100 GOLD BILL

A $100 gold certificate, all of which were called in by President Roosevelt last year, was received by Welcome Inn yesterday among its contributions.

The sender closely guarded his identity. The bill was sent in an unregistered letter. The address on the envelope was made up of the lines, "Mrs. Nat Brown, chairman," "Welcome Inn," and "St. Louis," clipped from a story in Sunday's Post-Dispatch. The bill was of the 1922 series.

NEW NRA BOARD'S FIRST ORDER FIXING PRICES

It Continues 13-Cent, Two-for-a-Quarter Rate on Popular Cigarettes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Popular brands of cigarettes will continue to sell for 13 cents a package or two for a quarter until Jan. 11, by order of NRA's new governing board.

This action yesterday was the first by the board involving the controversial question of price fixing. It continued a 90-day emergency order by Hugh S. Johnson, which otherwise would have expired October 13.

The cigarette order does not include State stamp taxes which would be in addition to the 13 cents for one or 25 for two packages of the four popular cigarette brands. The same is true of the 20 for 10 cents cigarettes, which under the order will continue to sell for a dime.

As an indication of the Recovery Board's attitude on the price and production control issue, the cigarette order was not considered of major importance. It followed a statement earlier in the day, formally assuring the bituminous coal industry that its price fixing code still was in effect and would not be changed unless the industry was consulted and given a hearing.

The coal statement was considered NRA's official reply to protests which flooded the administration after public statements by Donald R. Richberg, policy advisor to President Roosevelt, had indicated a future trend away from code limitations on prices and production. The coal statement and the cigarette order were regarded as new evidences that any NRA policy changes will be gradual.

During the day the board received from its special three-man committee a report of the investigation into a proposed work week cut from 40 to 36 hours in the cotton garment industry. The committee handed in a list of sealed recommendations and the board sent them directly to the White House without comment.

On the basis of the committee's findings, which were kept secret, President Roosevelt must determine whether to let the 10 per cent work week slash become effective Oct. 15 or to continue the stay he ordered Oct. 1. Labor is for the shorter week and the garment industry for the longer.

Departing from NRA, probably for good, is A. R. Glancy. He served as field compliance administrator under Johnson, remained two months longer than the half-year period he agreed to devote to NRA and now plans to return to private business in Detroit.

Another personnel change was the appointment of A. S. Fedde as special advisor to Leon Henderson, director of research and planning. Fedde, who is chairman of the Committee on Practice Procedure of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants, will develop ways of auditing code authority budgets which in the aggregate run into many millions annually.

CENTER FIELD ONLY PROBLEM FOR CARDINALS TO SOLVE

TERRY MOORE MAY FILL BILL; FRISCH WOULD PREFER VETERAN

Pepper Martin's Injured Left Arm Is Placed in Cast

PEPPER MARTIN, Cardinal third baseman, has his left arm in a cast today after a visit to Dr. Robert F. Hyland. Dr. Hyland's examination showed a chipped bone in the arm and he was thinking of operating but the inflammation was so bad that he put it in a cast instead and sent Martin to his home in Oklahoma to remain for three weeks after which he is to return here for the operation.

Martin played the last game of the series with his left arm so stiff he could hardly use it.

Pepper had intended to spend some time hunting mountain lions, wild boars and bears in Mexico with two friends, Otto Kruger and Mac Blocker, but that will have to be postponed.

By J. Roy Stockton

There will be changes in the Cardinal personnel before the 1935 pennant race starts, but the new world champions do not need much added strength to qualify with the favorites when the experts turn to their spring prognostications.

Branch Rickey thinks that Terry Moore, a young St. Louis product, who has been playing center field for the Columbus club of the American Association, will solve the Redbirds' outstanding problem.

Centerfield was an experimental station and a valley of trouble during the 1934 campaign and caused Fordham Frankie Frisch many a sleepless night.

One day in New York Frank was sitting with the writer in the lobby of the club's hotel. A stranger entered and edged up to the Cardinal manager.

"Mr. Frisk," the pest said—and when Frankie turned—"Do you remember a feetsball player named Reilly what was wit you on de Fordham team when you was de Flesh?"

"That's a long time ago," Frank countered.

"But he was quite a feetsball player. You should think of him Reilly. Quite a feetsball player."

Something Else on His Mind.

"Mister," confided Frisch, "I'm trying to think of a so-and-so, so-and-so who can catch a fly ball in the outfield."

That was the day after a game had been lost in Philadelphia because a couple of flies had fallen safe. There had been a run of short flies that fell safe in the valley of trouble. And when Frisch gets around to wrting to Santa Claus, he will ask first for a center fielder.

Frisch thought his troubles were over when he obtained George Davis during the spring training period. But George didn't hit. He was traded for Chick Fullis, who failed to perform up to his 1933 form. Orsatti was still the best center fielder, but he was handicapped by numerous injuries, and while he is a fine team man and an excellent center fielder when he is all in one piece, Frisch still wants a center fielder who can play most of the 154 games and bat against right-handers and southpaws.

Moore May Fill the Order.

Branch Rickey thinks that Terry Moore will fill the order. But it is not safe to expect too much of a first year man. And while Frisch admits that he likes what he has seen of Moore, he would prefer to have an experienced center fielder on the roster.

Trade rumors already are flying. Pat Malone has been traded to the Cardinals for Bill Hallahan, according to the latest report from Chicago. But Malone is not exactly the kind of player Branch Rickey would choose and Bill Hallahan showed so much improvement in the last part of the season and Frisch will not give him up for a song or even a singer.

However there are likely to be trades involving some of the St. Louis pitchers. With the two Deans, Tex Carleton, Bill Walker and Hallahan all approximating their best form, a couple of strong-armed relief pitchers would make the Cardinal staff highly satisfactory.

There is no infield problem. Collins, Frisch, Durocher and Martin, barring accidents, will be the first line of defense again and in Whitehead the team has a fine fielder. Pat Crawford's chief value during the 1934 race was as a pinch hitter, although he filled in occasionally on the defense.

With Bill DeLancey and Virgil Davis on the roster, the catching will be taken care of satisfactorily. Bill showed great improvement during his first year in the majors, and made few mistakes in the last weeks of the season. He made a good prophet of Branch Rickey. Last winter Rickey said DeLancey was good enough to win a job as first string catcher on any ball club in the major leagues. That was a broad statement. But Bill did become the Cardinals' first string catcher. A man must be the first-stringer when he catches every inning of seven world series games.

The Bluejays Will See a Lot of These Billikens Tomorrow

Rossini to Replace Axtell At Tackle for Billikens in Creighton Game Tomorrow

By James M. Gould.

Figuring that Creighton will offer considerable opposition, Friday night, and desirous of opposing the Omaha Bluejays with his strongest combination, Coach Muellerleile of St. Louis University has again had to make changes in his starting lineup. Injuries which failed to mend as rapidly as expected are responsible for these latest team alterations.

"Mull" had intended using Cagle and Rollen at the ends against Creighton but Cagle appears definitely out of the week's argument and Rollen is a doubtful starter so Mitchell and Fitzgerald may be his first flankers. Morrie Black, who was to have taken over the first-string quarterback job, also is a casualty and either Bittner or Drone will start in command. The shifts of Captain Kane to left half and the assignment of Carl Wood to right half with Rossini in at left tackle in Axtell's place, have, however, been confirmed.

Creighton and St. Louis really are similarly situated so far as their 1934 elevens are concerned. Both teams are under new and young coaches. Eddie Hickey formerly coached Creighton Prep and was promoted to the varsity last winter. Muellerleile has had command of the Billikens, after a year as a high school coach, only a few weeks. Hickey and Muellerleile are graduates of the schools they now coach.

Billikens Outweigh Bluejays.

According to "Mull's" assistant, Jack Corcoran, Creighton is not as heavy as the Billikens. Corcoran saw them lose to the Haskell Indians last week but has reported that they were several times in position to score in the contest which they lost, 7 to 6.

The Billikens showed a nice pass defense against Illinois Wesleyan and, as Corcoran also has reported that Creighton was not very adept in this department, the chances are that some of the Billiken pass-plays will be used on the theory that it's better to pick up 50 or 60 yards on two or three air-plays than to take 15 or 20 plays to net the same distance on the ground.

Muellerleile has held a "school for quarterbacks" all week and it isn't likely that the signal-calling mistakes of the opening game will be repeated. In the handling of this quarterback situation, Muellerleile has shown he knows good psychology and this puts him in line to be a big-league coach.

It will be remembered that, in the Illinois Wesleyan game, the Billikens started their attack with two running-plays that gained 15 yards and put the ball in enemy territory. Then, to everyone's amazement, the Billiken quarter—it was Lou Drone—called three passes in succession. Seasoned observers almost fell out of the press-box and Muellerleile was caught before he collapsed on the bench.

Drone Sure to Prove a Star.

He didn't take out Drone, not for many minutes. And, he was right. This Drone is a good football player. He was a star at McBride High and was All-Star in the Prep League almost every year. There is no question that he will be a star in college. But, the lad was in his first varsity game and he was nervous. "Mull" knew that. He also knew that, if he immediately pulled Drone out of the game, Lou might be spoiled as a varsity player, his confidence gone. So, he was kept in the game and it is 1000 to 1 he'll never be nervous again.

Score one for Muellerleile and Old Man Psychology—and keep your eyes on the young Mr. Drone. Before the end of the season he'll be recognized as a star.

Unless all signs fail, it will be a "new" Billiken team that takes the field against Creighton. There's a new deal on. Those players temporarily demoted have taken their medicine like regular soldiers and, on the scrubs in earlier practice this week have worked harder than ever before. Which means that they will be back on the varsity probably no later than tomorrow night.

Lintzenich in Uniform.

Joe Lintzenich, former Billiken captain and later a star in the pro ranks with the Chicago Bears, put on a uniform and practiced, or rather played, around yesterday. Joe was one of the greatest kickers ever developed in this section and he showed yesterday that he hasn't forgotten all about the art.

There is no disposition to put Coach Muellerleile "on the spot" because he didn't win his opening game. Nor, probably, would there be if his team disappoints tomorrow night. You can't judge a coach's ability in two games. Look at Carideo at Missouri. He had two terrible years but, this season, appears to be well on the way to success.

Senior Golfers Play Tomorrow In Annual Event

Golfers who are 50 years old or more will compete tomorrow in the St. Louis District Golf Association's annual senior tournament at the Normandy Golf Club. The tournament will be an 18-hole medal play event on a handicap basis.

Among the entries already received are those from Albert Stracke of the Triple A club, defending champion, and J. T. Clabaugh of Normandy, runner-up last year.

Senior golfers who have not entered thus far may do so today or tomorrow by filing their names with Bonner Miller at Normandy.

The starting time for the following foursomes follows

1:30 P. M.—Dr. W. D. Black, Normandy; J. T. Claubaugh, Normandy; Albert Stracke, Triple A; Dr. W. B. Bush, Triple A.

1:40 P. M.—Charles P. Hatfield, Triple A; T. Kajaware, Triple A; Charles Morsey, Normandy; Fred W. Hemker, Normandy.

1:50 P. M.—E. A. Hatfield, Glen Echo; Charles Pope, Glen Echo; Louis Rosen, Westwood; Moe Jacobs, Westwood.

1:55 P. M.—Dave Carroway, Normandy; Elmer Doerr, Normandy; Thomas Draper, Sr., Forest Park; E. P. Pelton, Forest Park.

2 P. M.—C. Frede, Glen Echo; J. R. Conly, Glen Echo; Max Levis, Westwood; A. Stein, Westwood.

COUNTRY CLUB POLOISTS MEET MISSOURI TODAY

The University of Missouri's polo team will meet the veteran St. Louis Country Club four this afternoon in the first of a two-game series at the Country Club field at 3 o'clock.

The University team is made up of members of the R. O. T. C. and the ponies used are furnished by the Government. Lieut. Charles Whitmore is now in charge of the team, Capt. Beiderlinden, last year's coach, having been transferred to the Philippines last summer.

Two members of last year's four will be on the field for Missouri today, with Ernest Jones playing the No. 3 position and Joseph Greeg playing back. Tom McHarg at No. 1 and either Dwight Smith or Fristoe Mullins will complete the team.

Representing the Country Club will be the team that has played for many years, with George Forest at No. 1, Mahlon Wallace Jr. at No. 2, E. K. Love Jr. at No. 3, and Hayward Niedringhaus at back.

Sixteen ponies have been shipped down for the Missouri players. This is considered a large enough string for a seven-chukker match such as will be played in these two games. This number of ponies will allow four changes during the game.

The Country Club players have a stable of 30 ponies, but it is probable that they will also use only 16 ponies during the game.

LITTLE RESUMES HIS STUDIES AT STANFORD

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 11.—Lawson Little, British and American amateur golf champion, resumed his studies yesterday at Stanford University where he is majoring in economics. Little, a junior, plans to keep his golf game on edge through regular practice on the Stanford course.

WAYNE SMITH DEFEATS FISCHER FOR TITLE

Wayne Smith defeated Bud Fischer, 6-4, 10-12, 6-1, 1-6 and 6-4, for the championship of the Forest Park tennis club's Open men's singles tournament at the Jefferson Memorial courts yesterday.

The match began last Sunday but was stopped by darkness with each having won two sets and Fisher leading in the fifth, 3-1.

15,000 STORM OKLAHOMA CITY FIELD TO SEE DIZZY AND PAUL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11. — Up East, they think Oklahoma's Pepper Martin is wild. They call him the "Wild Horse of the Osage." But the East "ain't seen nuthin' yet." They should have been out at Texas League Park last night when 15,000 of Pepper's brothers and sisters "under the skin" stormed the gates just to get a glimpse of Dizzy and Paul Dean.

The Holdenville horrors, baseball's latest idols, were here to pitch in an exhibition game against the Kansas City Monarchs, world Negro champions.

As far as the game was concerned, it was a travesty, being called at the end of five and one-half innings because the supply of baseballs was exhausted. Every time a ball went into the overflowing crowd it was a gone gosling. The score stood 4-0 in favor of the Deans when the halt was called.

Long before game time, 8:15 o'clock, the park was a sea of scrambling humanity. The stands were loaded before sundown and by the time the lights were turned on thousands had pushed their way out onto the diamond.

Customers Refuse to Move.

Although the police were called out—all six of them—the cash customers refused to give an inch along the first and third base foul lines. They were packed in from 10 to 20 deep right onto the playing field. In the outfield, there was a circle of men, women and children, not more than 30 feet back on the grass.

Dizzy and Paul stuck it out for five innings, and then headed back to the city with hundreds of autograph seekers following them out of the park and a small bodyguard of policemen protecting them.

Paul worked the first three innings for the Oklahoma All-Stars and was nicked for eight hits. Most of them would have been easy outs under normal conditions, however, and in the pinches he bore down as if he were still in the world series and fanned three.

When Dizzy came in the mob, which had been surprisingly quiet, began to get excited. A half dozen fist fights broke out all over the place, even one in the press box, but Dizzy went along calmly, allowing the Monarchs only one scratch hit and striking out four in two innings.

The Deans depart this morning for Wichita, Kan., where they appear tonight, then go to Kansas City, Chicago, Milwaukee and Newark.

McBride Meets Soldan Eleven In Game Today

McBride, defending champion of the Preparatory League, will have its full strength for the first time this season, when it meets Soldan this afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium, in an interleague high school football game.

Bob O'Connor, flashy halfback, who was out of the lineup when Roosevelt took the Irish into camp, 20 to 6, last week, will return to take over the left half position. Joe Burke, fullback, who missed the Cleveland and Roosevelt games, will appear for the first time.

In its two starts, Soldan lost to East St. Louis, 6 to 0, and tied Beaumont, 6 to 6, in a City High School League game.

DEAN BROTHERS WERE STANDOUT IN WORLD SERIES, BABE RUTH SAYS

By Babe Ruth.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—I got a fifty-fifty break on the world series. I predicted that it would go seven games and it did. I predicted that the Tigers would win, and they didn't, so I close the season of 1934 with a .500 guessing average.

It was one of the most unusual series ever played. The presence of two brothers, who pitched one team to victory, made it different from anything that had gone before. There have been other series in which two pitchers won two games apiece, or series in which two hurlers bore the burden as Paul and Dizzy did this year, but they weren't brothers, so they didn't attract such attention. The fact that the brothers had been coupled in a salary strike and in an exhibition game strike during the season, and in most of Dizzy's interviews, increased the public interest in them.

They sure did come through with a grand job for their team. They overshadowed everybody else in the series and there were plenty of good ballplayers on the field every day.

Odd Plays in Series.

The riot in the final game, with the refusal of the crowd to let a player stay in the lineup, was also unique. So was the hitting of a player on the head and knocking him unconscious, as happened to Dizzy Dean in the fourth game. Some of the oddest plays I have seen anywhere came up in this series. The one in which Greenberg raced De Lancey to first base for a double-play but lost the decision, and then got up and doubled Medwick off second base in the fourth game, comes first to mind.

There was more rough play in this series than in any other that I recall. Both sides were doing it. It all led up to the feeling against Medwick. It didn't strike me he was as rough as some of the other fellows were at other times. But his jam with Owen was the spark which touched off the fire.

Three times in the series games were held up because of injuries to players. Dizzy Dean, Frisch and Cochrane all were stretched out at one time or another, receiving first aid. All of these injuries were clearly accidental and no hard feelings resulted. But there were several other plays which were plainly more like football than baseball.

Crude and Clumsy.

The interferring with the work of the infielders and catchers was crude and clumsy at times. But, as I said before, both sides were doing it. I believe in hard sliding and in aggressive play that keeps teams keyed up. But it can be carried beyond reasonable bounds.

If you ask me who the heroes were, I'd place the Deans all by themselves in the top class, with Dizzy ahead of Paul even though the latter did not lose a game and Dizzy lost one. Don't forget that the big fellow started three and he pitched well in all three of them, with a shutout as a finisher. He pitched the opener and also the final game.

Next to the Deans, I run into a snag. Several players distinguished themselves for one thing, and in another respect they weren't so hot. For instance:

Hank Greenberg drove in more runs than any other player, and he also struck out more frequently.

Leo Durocher was the fielding star, but he did no hitting worth mentioning up to the sixth game, and he didn't drive a run across during the series.

Great Fielding by Frisch.

Charlie Gehringer was an outstanding hitter for the Tigers, but he was below his usual form in the field.

Frank Frisch did some marvelous fielding, but he wasn't the usual Frisch with the stick. Pepper Martin hit well and fielded poorly.

Medwick and Collins hit well, but there was nothing unusual about their fielding, because it was never difficult.

White made the best outfield catch of the series and fielded well throughout, but his hitting was a big disappointment.

So it went. I guess we'll just have to pin the medals on the Dean brothers and let it go at that. But it was a great series, interesting all the way. When the Tigers failed to make it close in the final game, the crowd supplied the excitement.

INDIANAPOLIS TABLE TENNIS TEAM TO PLAY LOCAL SQUAD SUNDAY

A team from Indianapolis will play a group of local players in an intercity table tennis match at the St. Louis Table Tennis Club, 4525A Olive street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The St. Louis squad will be composed of Mark Schlude, Missouri State champion and third national ranking player; Richard Tindall, fifth national ranking player; Ernie Trobaugh Jr. and Leonard Radunsky.

Indianapolis is sending Joe Inman, Jerry Jacobs and Tony Manley, all players who have won numerous state titles.

Preceding the intercity matches, Washington and St. Louis University teams will hold a series. Representing Washington will be Carl Tietjen, Jack Nix and Norman Schwartz, while St. Louis University's team will be Leonard Radunsky, Paul Britt and William Farrell.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Lay Off the Commissioner.

THE bombardment of Commissioner Landis continues. The barrage of verbal cabbages goes on. Even though the tumult has died, the shouters are still after the Jedge's scalp, for removing Medwick from the last game of the world series.

Persons hundreds of miles from the incident, admittedly knowing nothing of the rules, one of them a lawyer of standing in this community, went to trouble of berating His Highness, the Comsioner, by mail.

Landis.

In the Commissioner's defense it may be said that he is fully empowered by the rules to act in the best interests of baseball. And it is hardly to be questioned that averting riot and injury are commendable reasons for doing almost anything. Whether Joe kicked Marvin or Marvin booted Joe or whether both booted each other was not the issue before the Judge.

"I made my decision in order to avert a demonstration leading to possible riot and injury and to protect Medwick from violence," the Commissioner told members of the Post-Dispatch sports staff. "At the same time Medwick admitted kicking Owen, while Owen denied kicking Medwick."

Both the evidence and common sense seem to have dictated the Judge's decision. Why not give the old guy a break and toss him a few bouquets instead of verbal stench bombs?

It Really Happened.

IT WAS during the final game of the series. At a gathering of ladies assembled to transact organization business—the organization shall be nameless—the agenda was broken into by one of the members. It occurred about the time King Alexander was being shot in France and the Cardinals were mopping up on Detroit in that final world series game.

First Lady: "Wasn't that assassination terrible?"

Second Lady: "When was that—in the sixth inning?"

The president of the ladies' society ordered the remark struck out of the minutes of the meeting, we are informed.

Great Team Work, Dizzy!

NOW it comes out—the real reason Dizzy Dean was knocked out by Rogell's thrown ball in the fourth game of the series, played here.

We all had supposed that Dizzy, sliding into second, had the bad luck to start his slide just as the shortstop threw to first to catch the runner there.

But a Cleveland colleague puts us right. He says that Dizzy deliberately leaped into the air and into the path of the ball so as to prevent a double play. We quote from the article:

"There was the case of Dizzy Dean, who ran for Virgil Davis after the latter had singled in the fourth inning Saturday.

"Martin punched to Gehringer, who tossed to Rogell for the force out and pivot. It looked like a sure-fire double killing, as Rogell worked like greased lightning. Dizzy sensed the second out at first and leaped into the air to throw Rogell off his throwing stride.

"That's where he made a mistake. He leaped just a little too high. That was his tough luck. The ball hit him kerplunk on the right side of the head and laid him full length on the ground."

Lightning Calculation.

WELL, Dizzy has proved a self-sacrificing guy, thus far, and perhaps he would think of that one. Putting ourself in Dizzy's place, as we dashed down to second base, we probably would have thought something like this:

"There goes Gehringer after that ball . . . Looks like I can beat the toss if I slide. . . . Nix, it can't be done—there, Rogell is on the bag. . . . Now what'll I do . . . Gotta keep Martin from being tossed out at first—How about jumping in the air. . . . Then his throw will hit me in the head and Martin will be Okey at first. . . . Might get hurt . . . Nix, you can't hurt a Dean in the head. . . . Besides, I gotta do some team work even if I can't pitch tomorrow or ever again. . . So up we go! Ouch!"—— Two hours later, on recovery: "Guess that's using the old bean, eh, Frankie!"

Rank Head Work.

WELL, maybe Dizzy didn't reason just like that. Perhaps our Cleveland colleague was just viewing the situation from the viewpoint of the American League, where it's an old college custom to get the head knocked off to prevent a double play.

But we are here to say, if Dizzy deliberately interposed his $250,000 skull in the way of a 10-cent throw, the team-work was terrible and the headwork worse.

Dizzy Says He Enjoyed the Parade Here as Much as the Parade of Detroit Pitchers

By Dizzy Dean,

Leading Pitcher of 1934.

I'll have to rush through this article as I'm going to hurry o to Oklahoma by plane, most likely. Some of the boys are through with baseball for a while, but me and Paul has to go out and show the people over the country how the Deans pitch; so the world series won't be over for us maybe till the snow starts to fall. And I won't see none of it falling, because down at Deanville, Fla., where I live all we get is sunshine.

Now that all the shouting is over, I want to confess something. It's true, and me and Paul are right smart chuckers of baseball, but listen. We wouldn't have done much if it hadn't been for the Cardinals. That's a great team, and make no mistake about it. And it's going to be a better team, now that the fellers have found out how good they are. They'll have the old confidence next year, just like me and Paul always has had.

I never saw a team play such ball as the Cardinals played. Just think of it. A month ago we was seven games behind the Giants, and now look where we are, with both the Tigers and Bill Terry behind the eight ball.

It was a good, enjoyable series, and we got many a laugh. We figure we got shorted in one split of the series, though. I figure all that fruit and stuff that was thrown on the field at Medwick should have been split 60 and 40, just like the money was, but I understand it was all turned over to Cochrane.

By the way, there was some pretty good prospects for American League pitching staffs in the left field bleachers that last game. Some of those boys could throw a mean orange and grapefruit, and me and Paul would like to invite all of them to come along with Schoolboy Rowe and enroll in our winter baseball school.

Talking about Detroit pitching staffs reminds me of parades. We had a swell one when we got back to St. Louis and while I'm thanking the people of that city, I might as well say it to the Detroit fans and all the rest of them along the railroad, who was certainly kind to me and Paul and the rest of the Cardinals. The parade was a little longer than the one Mickey Cochrane's pitchers held in that last game, but it wasn't no more enjoyable.

My advice to Mickey is to keep on trying. He's got some good looking boys on his club, but when it comes to meeting the Cardinals most of his boys is three or four years away, as the scouts say. But some of 'em did right well considering what they was up against. That Jo Jo White may be a base on balls hitter, but he can go a long way for a ball and I'd say he's about ready for the National League, especially if I could brush him up a bit in his hitting.

Reviewing the series, like I've been asked to do, I'd say that last game was most enjoyable. After that big inning, when Mickey's parade passed, we just sat in rocking chairs and takes it easy. I didn't have to bear down, the way I was feeling. And when the boys saw that I was getting a shutout they went to work and they just wouldn't let the Tigers score. We told Schoolboy how he was doing maw, when he was in and out of that inning. That Gerald Walker's a good guy at that, too. We gives it to him good when he goes to bat in the eighth and he grins at us. No hard feeling. Just good clean fun. And we knew all along that we couldn't be stopped. Like Leo Durocher says, we got momentum. And me and Paul and momentum and the Cardinals just couldn't be beat.

Irwin Striebel, St. Louis, won from Ray Doll, Chicago A. C., technical knockout, fourth round. Heavyweight class.

Russell Ringenberger, Peoria, defeated Art Pierson, St. Louis, four rounds, decision. Weight—135.

Armand Sicilia, Springfield, Ill., defeated Maxie Scholss, Du Quoin, Ill., four rounds, decision. Weight—118.

Keith Graves, Chicago, defeated Herman West, Du Quoin, Ill., four rounds, decision. Weight—175.

Referees—Al Neis and Harry Kessler. Judges—Jim Solari and Harry Cook. Announcer—Biz Kenney.

By Harold Tuthill.

Watching boxing matches has become a woman's diversion as well as a man's, and if you don't believe it you should have been at Benny Kessler's amateur show last night at the Coliseum, when nearly half of the 1600 crowd was composed of women.

They saw eight good fights, seven of which went the limit of four rounds and the other ended in a technical knockout in the fourth round.

The lone technical knockout came when Irwin Striebel, St. Louis' ponderous amateur heavyweight, towered over Ray Doll of Chicago and hammered him unmercifully. Doll gave away about 50 pounds to Striebel, a handicap too big for the Chicago boy to overcome. He took it for three rounds and part of the fourth, but then Referee Harry Kessler decided that Doll had had enough, so he stopped the fight.

Golden Gloves Rivals Meet.

The most satisfactory bout was that between Armand Sicilia, Springfield (Ill.) bellhop, and Maxie Schloss of Du Quoin, Ill., which Sicilia won. Both were Golden Gloves winners last year and Sicilia, who battles under the ring name of Kid Chinsky, went so far as to win the National A. A. U. bantam championship at the Arena last winter.

Being champion hasn't hurt Shinsky any because, he said, he has been fighting about five times a week. He looked like he had, for a four-inch strip of adhesive tape decorated his left eyebrow. Shinsky knows all the tricks of boxing and he used them, although Schloss was too smart to leave himself open very long. Shinsky chiefly earned the decision because he kept boring in, and although he was wild at times, he landed telling right and left hand blows all over Schloss.

Another Golden Gloves winner, Russell Ringenberger, of Peoria, barely gained a decision over Art Pierson of St. Louis. After Ringenberger had won the first round, Pierson came back strongly and pecked at Ringenberger's left eye until it began to bleed.

Decision Is Close.

In the third round, Ringenberger kept Pierson at a distance, but the St. Louis boy hammered Ringenberger's eye until he could scarcely see out of it. During the rest period between rounds, Ringenberger's seconds patched up his eye, so that he finished strong and thereby overcame the slight margin that Pierson had accumulated.

About the only match that didn't meet with the approval of the fans was the last one between Keith Graves, Chicago Golden Gloves champion and Herman West of Du Quoin, who holds the same title down in Southern Illinois. Graves gave the impression of being too cautious in that he would check his leads until he was absolutely sure that they would find their marks. This manner of fighting met with the approval of the judges, but the crowd found it a wee bit too slow. They weighed 135 pounds.

The boys did considerable dancing in the first period, neither getting an edge. In the second round, Graves opened up a little and made his blows count. In the third, West finally found he had a left hand and flicked it several times in Grave's face, but instead of following up this attack, West tried to trade punches with Graves, which was a mistake, for the Chicagoan was the better ring general. West had a longer reach and it appeared that it might have won the fight, but the judges voted it to Graves and that ended that.

In the preliminaries, Bill Schreiber defeated George Mruzik, Al Beauhuld won from Henry Struzik, and Gene Sutcliffe took a decision from Louis Wallach. Jimmy Webb won the first special bout when he trimmed Johnny Martin of Springfield, Ill., in a close fight.

The crowd of 1600 paid $687, while the State and city tax was $33.73 and the Federal tax, $17.82.

VASHON PLAYS MEMPHIS ELEVEN THIS SATURDAY

Vashon High School of St. Louis will play the strong Manassas High of Memphis in one game of a doubleheader to be played at the Public School Stadium beginning at 1 o'clock, next Saturday afternoon.

The line of Vashon will average 185 pounds per man while the backfield will average 165.

Rowe Can't See Why Cards Didn't Win National League Pennant by a Big Margin

By Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe.

Now that the series excitement has died down we can look back on those seven games with the Cardinals and view them in a calmer way. And before offering a few observations I want to make one thing clear. I am not trying to offer an alibi. Some things went against us and some against them. That's all part of baseball. They won the deciding game very decisively and the honors are clearly theirs.

Rowe.

My chief regret, outside of the fact that I didn't pitch well enough to win the sixth game, and thereby bring the title to the Tigers, is that the last game showed us to such poor advantage. The big score made it appear that we were completely outclassed in the series. I don't think we were. If we had been I am sure that the series couldn't have reached a seventh game, with the scoring exactly even after six games had been played.

I must admit that the Cardinals were better than we had expected they would be. We believed they would be tired out from their hard fight, and that Dizzy Dean would not be himself after all the pitching he did in the last few days of the season. Instead, we found the Cardinals at their best, and Dean in grand form, even in the game he lost.

In fact I think the Cardinals perhaps were a little better than they had been during the National League season. I can't figure that a team as good as they looked in the series could have come to so close to losing the pennant as they did. When you stop to figure that the Giants had to lose three of their last five games to make the Cardinals' victory possible, you stop and wonder if they were as good all year as they were in the series.

Where Cards Were Strongest.

Anyway, they did all that was needed to win the big test. The pitching of the Dean brothers, the fielding of Durocher and the hitting of Medwick, Collins and Martin were the things I remember most vividly in the work of the Cardinals.

I should include the peppery work of Martin, who sure lived up to his nickname while he is out on the field. Pepper's fielding wasn't so hot, but his enthusiasm was always high.

Our own team didn't strike the same gait that we hit during the greater part of the season. We sagged in spots in both our pitching and hitting. I mention the pitching first because the sagging in this department includes my own failure. Jo Jo White and Marvin Owen are far better hitters than they showed in the series, and that goes against any kind of pitching. Ballplayers never know when a slump will hit them, and it was their hard luck to be in hitting slumps during this past week. Every world series catches somebody just as as this one caught them.

Single Pitch Turned Tide.

I can still see one pitch, which, to my mind, turned the series. That was the one Paul Dean hit in the seventh inning of the sixth game. The score was tie at 3-3, and I pitched him a high curve, which didn't break properly. It hung in the air, as a ball sometimes will, and he hit it for the single that won the game. If this one had got by him, we might have got the important run before the Cardinals could get it. And then, that seventh game wouldn't have been necessary.

It was the first world series I ever saw, being in it added to the thrill. We tried hard, but didn't have enough at the finish. That is the answer.

BEARS' HEAVIER BACKS TO START AGAINST WABASH

They may be all wrong, but the Washington University Bears certainly expect to overflow "the banks of the Wabash" eleven, Saturday night when they meet the Crawfordsville collegians at Francis Field, in the third game of the 1934 schedule.

In order to be familiar with the plays of the opposition, Coach Conzelman has had Wabash scouted twice, and while Jimmy deplores over-confidence, it is true that there was nothing very worrisome in the reports of the scouts. Wabash is said to have a pretty fair line, which averages around 185, and not such a threatening backfield, which will average 178. The Indiana team uses a Notre Dame system which was in vogue at South Bend 10 or 12 years ago, and the ball carriers, while sturdy, are not regarded as especially dangerous.

Bears to Be Heavier.

Moreover, it will hardly be good news to Wabash that Washington will start against them a heavier team than that employed last Saturday against the University of Illinois.

This comes about because Wagner and Hudgens will be the starting halfbacks instead of "Broken-Finger" Droke and Captain Harry Brown. Tony Konvicka will start as guard in Bill Wendt's place and Ray Hobbs will play end at the beginning of hostilities instead of Moller. Hobbs is 15 pounds lighter than Moller, but Konvicka is 10 pounds heavier than Wendt; Hudgens, 15 pounds heavier than Brown and Wagner, 20 pounds heavier than Droke. So, net, the Bears have added 30 pounds to their starting lineup.

Droke, of course, won't see action against Wabash and, like all the men who had to battle so hard against Illinois, Chick would like to do some packing of the ball against easier opposition. It's a natural feeling. But, Droke being one of Conzelman's best blocking backs, will be saved for future engagements, when his allround cleverness will be more needed. It is entirely probable that most of the Washington varsity squad will see action Saturday night—that is, unless it proves that the strength of Wabash has been greatly underestimated.

And, these so-called "little" colleges have furnished their full quota of surprises in the last few seasons.

The advance sale of tickets for the Washington - Wabash game would indicate that curiosity will bring out a good crowd to watch the Bears in action. Football fans want to see for themselves if the reports of Washington's strength as indicated by their 12-7 game with the Illini are exaggerated.

All of which is grist to the Washington financial mill. It was thought that, with a conflict with a world series game, the Bears would lose money at the Illinois game because of the handsome guarantee made Zuppke's team. However, there was no loss. The game paid its way and then some.

Wabash is not a newcomer to Washington's schedule, but it is 19 years since they came from Crawfordsville to engage the then Pikers. It is a matter of record that, on that occasion, Wabash humbled Washington, 13 to 3, so Saturday night's game will give the now Bears a chance to even the score between the two schools.

School for Hockey Players Is Opened By New York Club

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Oct. 11.

THE first school of hockey instruction on record has begun in connection with the New York Rangers training activities here. Twenty amateurs, all but four from Western Canada, attended the first session conducted by Lester Patrick, Ranger manager, yesterday. They are under no obligation to the club and will not lose their amateur status but those who learn well enough may eventually land in big league hockey.

Among the students were Lynn Patrick, a son of Lester, and one "student" from the United States, Vince Papike of Eveleth, Minn.

RIVA AND GOLUB TO MEET IN MAT BOUT

Bob Riva, St. Louis Italian, will meet Morris Golub, Washington University art student in the feature mat bout at the Municipal Auditorium Exposition Hall tonight, heading a four-bout card. Riva was disqualified in his last appearance here when he wrestled Bob Corby of Gary, Indiana.

Johnny Anderson, wrestling coach at St. Louis University, will meet Johnny Demsko in the semi-final.

Wesley Vilda of Wilbur, Neb., will meet Al Haemmerle of Maplewood in second preliminary. The curtain raiser will bring together Tony Rath of St. Louis and Dick Heibel of Overland. Starting time for the show is 8:30.

MISS BAUR MEDALIST IN GLEN ECHO GOLF MEET

Miss Adele Baur won the medalist honors in the Glen Echo Country Club women's golf championship, the 16-year-old Mary Institute student shooting 95 for the 18 holes.

Mrs. George H. Sido, former champion, won the approaching and putting contest.

REVOLTA TOTALS 207 TO WIN IN OHIO GOLF MEET

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11.—His war clubs beating out a succession of pars, birdies and eagles, Johnny Revolta, pro golfer of Milwaukee, Wis., yesterday captured the Queen City Open golf tourney, nine up on old man par. His 54-hole total was 207.

Revolta, who carved out a 68 on his opening round, came back with a similar card in the morning round yesterday.

Five strokes behind him were Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati member of last summers' Walker Cup team, and Al Espinosa, Akron, O., each with 212.

Fischer made a ticklish three-foot putt on the home green while the Akronite's bid for a 67, and a new competitive course record, lipped the cup from eight feet but refused to roll in.

Phil Perkins, Cleveland pro and former British amateur champion, followed with 216, with Leonard Schmutte, Lima, O., and Willie Goggin, Los Angeles, tied for next place at 218.

Wiffy Cox, veteran of the golfing wars from Brooklyn, and one of the pre-tournament favorites, was tied with Abe Espinosa and Butch Krueger, Milwaukee, for tenth place, carding 220.

MAX BAER'S BROTHER SCORES EARLY KAYO

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 11.—Buddy Baer, the big little brother of the heavyweight champion, Max Baer, made work for the dentist when he knocked out Maxie Brown, 195-pound Oklahoman, in the first round of their four-round bout here last night.

Little Buddy put his 247 pounds behind a left to the chin 30 seconds after the bout started and Brown's front teeth flew here and there as he went down.

The Oklahoma battler pulled himself upright at the count of nine, only to receive a right-hand haymaker on the other side of his jaw which ended the contest 1 minute and 35 seconds after the gong.

Brother Max was on hand to applaud the knockout.

Football Team Sought.

The entry of another football team will be accepted for the National Amateur Football League, which will play at the National Park, Kingshighway and Arsenal, it was announced last night following a meeting of league officials. Teams desiring to enter should communicate with Pete Colombo, PRospect 8681.

SPORT SALAD
by L. C. Davis

The Fruits of Victory.

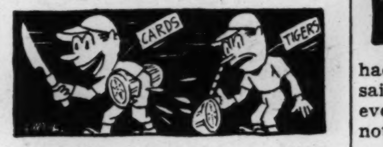
YES, we have some bananas,
We've lemons and oranges, too;
We have peaches and cherries,
And try our raspberries,
The best that a bush ever grew.
We have apples and potatoes,
We have overripe tomatoes,
And yes, we have some bananas,
We have some bananas today.

Preparedness.

The fans of Detroit evidently came to the ball game prepared for any emergency, but if the mix-up at third base hadn't occurred they would have had a lot of perishable fruit left on their hands.

When the customers laid down that barrage of assorted fruit in the seventh inning the Cards must have thought they were back in the dear old Grapefruit League.

However, the Cardinals had the last laugh as the lion's share of the world series melon was theirs to have and to hold.



When Bill Rogell accidentally beaned Dizzy Dean in St. Louis the fans and Diz showed that they could take it. They simply carted Dizzy off to the hospital and the incident was closed.

Cheer Up, Mickey.

Mickey Cochrane was naturally downcast over the failure of a Tiger team to win a world series for the fourth time. However, winning the pennant is the big thing in any man's league. Any team is liable to win a world series.

Our only regret is that the fans up in Henry Ford's bailiwick couldn't take it like the game and gallant Mickey.

After the St. Louis Redbirds had won the world series, the Red Birds of Columbus turned on the flood lights and won the little world series from Toronto. Another feather in the cap of Farmer Rickey.

"Papi's Baton Factor in Success."

Okay, Papi, now let's go;
Spare the baton and spoil the show.

Goose Goslin says that Dizzy Dean is the best pitcher he ever faced. And when you consider that the Goose faced the best the Giants had to offer in the 1933 series, he said a mouthful that would make even Joe E. Brown sit up and take notice.

"GOOSE"
ARE YOU TELLING ME??
"DIZZY"

"Brick" Owens is the first umpire to have a decision reversed in a world series. Brick fined Bill De Lancey $200, but the "Jedge" reversed him and made it $50.

The "Jedge" also plastered a fine of $50 on Bill Klem for using profane language to Goose Goslin, thereby establishing another world series record.

That's the second decision Bill lost this year—
And maybe in his entire career.

38,756 Persons See Londos Win In Straight Falls

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—Jim Londos, New York, recognized in most states as the world heavyweight wrestling champion, won in straight falls from Man Mountain Dean of Georgia before a crowd of 38,756 persons at Wrigley Field here last night. The champion weighed 200 pounds, 117 less than his opponent.

The bewhiskered giant was pinned to the mat with a half nelson after 21m and 12s for the first fall. Then Londos picked the Man Mountain up and heaved him backward out of the ring to take the second fall in 1m 22s.

What Londos did in that short time it took a squad of half a dozen police to undo in 15 or 20 minutes.

With great effort the law men hoisted the inert Dean, shoved him into the ring feet first and deposited him on the other side where a stretcher awaited.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES HELPFUL TO FOOTBALL, ZUPPKE SAYS

NORTHWESTERN VISIT TO COAST ADDS COLOR TO THE SCHEDULE

By Bob Zuppke,
University of Illinois Football Coach

Northwestern will play football against Stanford at Palo Alto, Saturday, and we'll all be pulling for Dick Hanley's Wildcats. But, win or lose, an occasional intersectional game like this is a fine thing. Geographical rivals are the logical opponents on most schedules, especially in the Big Ten, where old and keen rivalries can never be replaced by intersectional matches. They lack the background of eager partisans who mingle in daily life.

But an important intersectional game adds color to a schedule. It destroys insularity and provincialism. It is a good thing for us to learn more and understand more about the people in other parts of this huge nation.

Value to Players.

And it is certainly valuable for the players themselves to travel once in a while and see something of the country. Too much traveling for too great distances might be criticised as detrimental to studies but players must keep eligible in their scholastic work and if they are smart enough to do that, they can stand a trip even so far as the coast once in a while.

I hope and expect that Northwestern will do better than the previous Big Ten teams which have gone to the Pacific Coast. Iowa traveled to Los Angeles and an 18-0 defeat by Southern California in 1925. Then there was that unhappy trip of Ohio State in 1920, after the Buckeyes had defeated Illinois for the Big Ten championship. California beat Ohio State, 28-0. That was a post-season game.

At least two Big Ten teams will travel to the western coast in the next few years. Illinois will open a home-and-home series with Southern California at Los Angeles in 1935 and Ohio State will succeed us on the Trojan schedule in 1937 and 1938.

There are thousands of Big Ten alumni on the Pacific Coast and it means a lot to them to see a team from the conference. At Los Angeles our alumni are staying up nights trying to find out a way to bring out the Illinois band with the Illini next year.

Intersectional games with the East and South are more common on Big Ten schedules. A middle-western team can go East with little more loss of time than is required for a trip in its own territory.

Comes the Army.

The outstanding intersectional to be played on a Big Ten gridiron is probably the Army-Illinois match on Nov. 3. This will be the first visit of the cadets to Illinois since we encountered Chris Cagle's fine crew back in 1929.

But Georgia Tech plays at Michigan and Colgate at Ohio State, both on Oct. 20. Minnesota will travel to Pittsburgh the same date. Purdue will make two trips East, first to meet Carnegie Tech, Oct. 27, then to play Fordham, Nov. 17.

Indiana goes to Philadelphia next week to see what Pop Warner has developed at Temple and brings Maryland to Bloomington, Nov. 17.

Big Ten students, alumni and other supporters would probably grow tired of a steady diet of intersectional games and howl for the old traditional contests but they relish a few now and then as a seasoning for the conference dish.

DOROTHY ROUND AND OTHER ENGLISH TENNIS STARS ARRIVE IN U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A group of English tennis players, headed by Dorothy Round, winner of the women's title at Wimbledon, reached New York yesterday en route to Australia. On the same ship was William T. Tilden, professional tennis ace.

Miss Round, who was unable to compete in the American women's championship this year, said she hoped to play at Forest Hills next summer. With her were E. M. Dearman and M. M. Lyle, Wightman cup doubles players, and George P. Hughes, non-playing captain of the group.

Tilden was enthusiastic over the development of professional tennis in England and France, and said he and Ellsworth Vines plan to return there for events in November. He also spoke highly of the playing of Gottfried von Cramm, German amateur.

SOUTH SIDERS ADVANCE IN SOFTBALL TOURNEY

With Marie Berger striking out eight batters, the South Side Dairy girls' team defeated the Hellrungs, champions of the Maplewood Athletic Park, last night in a first-round game of the Greater St. Louis open softball tournament at the National Association Park, Kingshighway and Arsenal. The Barn team won from the Thirteenth Ward Democrats, 10 to 1, and the South Side Boosters eliminated the Fracchia team, 6 to 3, in men's games.

In tonight's girls' game, at 7 p. m., the Phelim O'Tooles will meet the Sunshines of Maplewood. In the men's games the Sansones will play the Maier team at 8 p. m., and the Grady Tigers will oppose the Vics at 9:15.

Off to a Good Start—But He Soon Came to Grief

"Cotton" Warburton, Southern California star, getting under way with two opponents, Hind and Dover of Washington State, about to smear him for no gain. The Washington Cougars took the Trojans for 19-0 defeat that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Fan Take Up Business of Signing the Deans for Next Season

By W. J. McGoogan

The World Champion Cardinals began leaving the city today and it won't be many hours before most of them will be started toward their winter homes or places of off-season activities.

Rickey.

But to Sam Breadon, president, and Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the club, Mr. and Mrs. Fan and all the little fans, baseball is a 12 months' business. So Branch and Sam and all the fans will now settle down to a discussion of signing the Deans, who now are started on a barnstorming tour.

There will be plenty of guessing as to how much the boys should get and it is likely that no documents since the signing of the Declaration of Independence will provide more oratory than those all-important papers to which Dizzy and Paul will affix their signatures for the 1935 campaign.

Outwardly, at least, the most unworried persons are Breadon and Rickey. They say they will take the natter up at the usual time, that is, shortly after the first of January, when contracts are mailed to players.

Deans the Greatest Attraction.

"The Deans are the greatest attraction in baseball," said Rickey, "to say anything else would be dishonest and futile and that is the basis upon which I will approach the task of signing them for 1935.

"At the same time the organization which produced all of our pennant winning teams will produce four or five more in the next nine years and, without any implication whatsoever, I say that we won four pennants and two world championships before we had the Deans.

"But they're a great pair of pitchers and they will be even better next year, in my opinion, and they have the greatest boxoffice appeal in baseball.

"Our problem is to produce two more winners in succession, something which is very difficult to do. It has been done and I would like to do it with the Cardinals. But you have no idea how difficult it is to keep a team keyed up for three campaigns.

"Some players on title winning clubs become lazy, some too rich, some indifferent and it is these things we have to watch."

Frisch, of course, will manage the team again next season for Breadon and Rickey both have said so flatly and probably the first one of the organization signed this year will be the leader who said he would remain in St. Louis about a week before going to his home in New York.

Frank plainly showed the stress under which he has labored in recent weeks after the final game of the series and declared he was going to bed for five days before he thought of doing anything else.

Joe Medwick, left fielder, is to return to his home in Carteret, N. J., for the winter. He said he had no definite plans but that he was sure he would do no hunting, as the accident to Charley Gelbert convinced him that hunting was not a good pastime for a major league ball player.

Virgil Davis, catcher, on the other hand, is to head straight for his home in Birmingham, Ala., and do nothing but hunt and fish.

Mike Gonzales, coach, whose job of managing a ball club in Cuba last winter was disturbed by a revolution or two is going to Cuba to lead one of two teams there. Adolfo Luque, veteran pitcher, manages the other.

How They Scatter!

Rip Collins, first baseman, will relax in Rochester, N. Y., and may go on the radio soon as a sports announcer.

"You can tell the world for me I'm going to see all the football games I can" declared Collins, "because I like that game."

Leo Durocher, shortstop, will leave soon for a six weeks' trip to the Pacific Coast. Ernie Orsatti and Jack Rothrock, outfielders, also will go to California for the winter.

Bill DeLancey will spend the winter at his home in Greensboro, N. C., while Bill Hallahan, southpaw, will go back to Binghamton, N. Y.

Chicago Bears Rout Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11. — Performing as champions, the Chicago Bears marched to four touchdowns last night and lambasted the Pittsburgh Pirates, 28 to 0, in a national pro league football encounter.

Approximately 20,000 persons, the largest football crowd of the season in Pittsburgh, saw the Chicagoans, leaders of the league last year, score their fourth straight victory.

The game was advertised as the farewell appearance of Red Grange, one of the big men in the Bears' backfield.

The victors registered their first touchdown late in the initial period on a short pass, Brumbaugh to Ronzani from the six-yard line. In the second period Beattie Feathers dashed 82 yards to score.

After a scoreless third period, Keith Molesworth banked through tackle from the two-yard line for a touchdown. A few plays later Molesworth whipped a spot pass from the three-yard marker to Johnsos for the last six points.

Jack Manders, a Minnesota product, split the goal posts with four perfect placement kicks.

DINNER AT EIGHT FOR FOOTBALL MEN AFTER CRIMSON-TIGER GAME

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11.—The football teams of Harvard and Princeton will do more than just play each other on the day when they resume relations on the gridiron at the Harvard Stadium, Nov. 3. They will sit down to dinner together and talk it over afterwards!

So came the announcement from Harvard officials yesterday. Prof. Julian L. Coolidge, master of the Lowell House, is behind the dinner. He first suggested that the rivals dine together on the eve of the game but William J. Bingham, director of athletics, proposed that the dinner follow the contest, subsequently the idea was accepted by Princeton.

GUNNERS WORK ON PASSES FOR CHICAGO GAME

Coach Charles "Chile Walash's St. Louis Gunners will take to the air Sunday afternoon in their professional football contest with the Chicago Tigers at the Public Schools Stadium. The game marks the local pros' second appearance of the season. They won from the Oklahoma City Chiefs, 19 to 7, in their inaugural last week.

The Gunners, for the past few days, have been stressing passing and blocking. Walsh is highly satisfied with the way his gridders can block and pass so he intends to let his men cut loose with their aerial attack in the approaching battle.

The Gunners are well fortified with long and accurate passers and fans who turn out for the attraction will see at least six men taking part in advancing the pigskin via the passing route.

The offensive combination of Quarteback Blake Workman, Halfbacks Gene Alford and Cy Casper and Fullback "Swede" Johnston is an array of dependable tossers. Workman throws a long pass, Alford and Casper are regarded as exceptionally accurate and Johnston, the line plunger, does all of his passing by running up to the line of scrimmage and then heaving a short one.

The other quartet of backs, consisting of Quarterback Bill Senn, Fullback Manuel "Fat" Rapp and Halfbacks Benny LePresta and Charley McLaughlin, is equally as good on the arial attack, despite the fact that Walsh has it listed as a defensive combination.

Walsh's system also calls for all the backs to share on pass receiving while Paul Moss, former all-American at Purdue University, and George Rogge, ex-Chicago Cardinal, have few equals in bringing down long throws.

The Gunners had four new men working out with them yesterday. They were Al Wunsch of the Green Bay Packers, and Phil Toth of the Philadelphia Eagles, guards; Syl Saumer of the Pittsburgh Pirates, halfback; and Bus Burchran of the Cincinnati Reds, center. All four men were used in the passing and blocking drill and made satisfactory showings.

The Tigers, whom the Gunners respect highly, have played five games so far this season. The only two verdicts they lost were to the Chicago Cardinals and Chicago Bears of the National League.

The Gunners tickets for the coming game went on sale this morning. The admission prices are 75c for general admissions and $1.10 for reserve sections seats, if bought in advance. At the gate they will cost $1.10 and $1.40. COUNTY LEAGUE TEAMS PLAY IN TWO BIG GAMES THIS WEEK-END

Will wonders never cease! Two important County League football games are scheduled for this week-end, and the four coaches actually pick their teams to win.

The two games are Normandy at Maplewood, tomorrow afternoon, and University City at Webster Groves, Saturday afternoon.

At Normandy Coach Jimmy Majors' Vikings are crippled as a result of the beating from Central High at Evansville, Ind., last week. However, he believes that his squad has enough power left to win from Maplewood.

Black eyes and bruised bodies were all that the Vikings got in Evansville as they lost, 14-0. Normand "Smokey" Meyers and Harold Hirsch, tackles, are definitely out, while Mel Aussieker, quarterback, and George Check, end, may also miss the game.

Nearly every first string man was limping yesterday as Majors sent his team through a hard scrimmage. Karl Roth replaced Meyers at tackle, with Len Pollard at Check's end. La Verne Russell, end, was playing at quarterback, and will either start there or at end in case Aussieker can play. Charlie Moritz will be at the other tackle position.

Maplewood had its share of minor injuries in its first league victory of the season over Wellston, but all the regulars will play against Normandy. Coach Ben Douglas expects his team to give the Vikings a hard battle all the way, and possibly defeat them.

Normandy has an edge in the power of its squad, but the result will probably depend on how much the Vikings were hurt by their game with Evansville.

University City, with an enviable record of five County League championships won or shared in the past six years, had 12 lettermen return this year, and naturally was favored to repeat.

The Indians last week displayed their expected power in running over the weak Clayton eleven, 41-0.

The first real test for the Indians comes this week, when the eleven meets Webster. Coach Muhl thinks his team will win, but says he will be satisfied if it is by a one-point margin. He expects Webster to be one of the toughest foes his squad will face this year.

At Webster, Coach F. F. Gaines lost three regulars after the Central game last week, but even that loss has failed to keep him from expecting a victory.

Last year, Webster outgained and outplayed the Indians from start to finish, but lost, 6-0, on an 80-yard run by Dick Yore, following an intercepted pass. That same Dick Yore will be one of the players that Webster will have to stop this year.

The regulars who will be unable to play for Webster are Gale Keene, fullback; Russell Hudler, end, whose fine defensive work and punting have ben a great help in Webster's triumphs in its three games this year; Bryant Moller, end, and Jim Heitert, halfback.

University City will outweigh Webster more thna eight pounds a man. Webster will have an advantage in the line, averaging 169 to Indians' 166, but the Indians' backfield averages 165 to Webster's 141.

Other county league games this week are Ritenour at St. Charles tomorrow night and Wellston at Clayton Saturday afternoon. Kirkwood will have an easy practice game, meeting Ben Blewett at Kirkwood on Saturday.

SOCCER LEAGUE ELEVENS BEGIN SEASON SUNDAY

By Dent McSkimming.

Three of the clubs which open the St. Louis Soccer League season at Sportsman's Park, Sunday afternoon, will appear under new names. Only the Ben Millers remain unchanged in name, and they will oppose, in the opening game, the Hellrung & Grimms (formerly the Minit Rubs).

Jack Dwyer's club, which won two successive national championships under the name Stix, Baer & Fuller, takes the field Sunday under the name Central Breweries, and will oppose the Marres. This is the club which was formerly known as the Andersons.

As in the past, the league will operate a doubleheader schedule, starting at 2 p. m. Robert Murphy will referee the Miller-Hellrung game and Oscar Mossmann the Central-Marre match. Jimmy Dunn is a third referee, and will take his turn in the regular order.

A major change this season is a reduction in admission charge. Forty cents will be the price this season, women and children to be admitted for 25 cents. Last season the charge was 55 cents.

Many Player Changes.

So many changes have been made in the personnel that some of the teams will scarcely be recognized by the fans. Most important are the trades in which Mark Selby, Woody Selby and Ollie Bohlman become members of the Ben Millers, thus strengthening that club to a point where it must be considered a serious championship threat.

Johnny Marre's club will be largely a new aggregation of the pick of Municipal League talent.

The Centrals will show new players at center forward and center halfback, replacing Scotty Nilsen and Bill Watson, now in Chicago; and at the wing halfbacks, where Bill McPherson and Ollie Bohlman formerly played. Eddie Kane was obtained from the Millers in exchange for Bohlman.

Phil Kavanaugh's Hellrung club, also will be a rebult team in which youngsters will play a dominant part.

Belmont's Fall Race Meet Drew 70,000 Persons

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.

ATTENDANCE at Belmont Park during its autumn race meeting was more than double that of the fall of 1934, the report of the Westchester Racing Association reveals.

A total of 70,032 paid admissions were recorded during the 12 days as compared to 34,797 in 1933. Gross receipts this year were $200,754.32 and the State of New York was paid $19,880.38.

A year ago the receipts were $106,630.28 and the State did not share in them.

End Season Dec. 1.

Western Maryland College and Georgetown University will wind up their seasons in a Dec. 1 game in the Municipal Stadium in Baltimore.

STREIBEL TO BOX ON SOUTH BROADWAY CARD

Irwin Streibel's technical knockout victory over Ray Doll of Chicago in the heavyweight feature of a Coliseum fistic program, last night, assured the Western A. A. U. champion a place on the South Broadway Athletic Club's inaugural amateur boxing card, next Tuesday night. Announcement that Streibel will appear in one of the four special events heading the South Broadway tourney was made today by Matchmaker Willie Miller, who is seeking another out-of-town opponent for the District titleholder.

Miller also plans to show Jack Nichols, light-heavyweight king of the Western A. A. U. district, and Dave Stanfield, featherweight ace of the Business Men's A. C., in special matches. Both Nichols and Stanfield are seeking return matches with the Duquoin, Ill., fighters who defeated them in the Coliseum inaugural a few weeks ago.

Said Colonel Paul Jones: "Pedigree tells in whiskey just as it does in horses"

SIXTY-NINE years ago, Colonel Paul Jones started making the whiskey that has borne his name ever since.

From the very start, he used the slow hand-made methods inherited from the past. For he knew, as every whiskey man knows today, that these are the only methods that can produce great whiskey.

Today Paul Jones Whiskey is made in this self-same way. And it's made by the same company the Colonel founded—a company with four generations of whiskey-making knack, with four generations of jealous pride in its product.

An American Whiskey—not "American type"

Frankfort, the company that makes Paul Jones, is American-owned and American-managed. The water is the pure limestone water peculiar to Kentucky and Maryland—water that gives whiskey a richness you can get in no other way. And the whiskey is naturally aged in charred oak barrels under America's rigid regulations. No alcohol or spirits added!

Try Paul Jones—discover its ripe, full flavor. So different from imitation "American type" whiskies! Ask for Paul Jones in hotels and restaurants. And have no fear of it being bootleg. Paul Jones comes sealed in the patented bootleg-proof Frankfort Pack that must be destroyed before the bottle within it can be removed.

BLUES PREPARED TO OPEN LEAGUE SEASON, SUNDAY

A team of professional football players well equipped in every department of the game will represent St. Louis Sunday afternoon in Charlotte, N. C., when the St. Louis Blues play their first American League game against the Charlotte outfit. This squad of Blues today went out to polish off all its offensive plays that will be used Sunday and also to devote a lot of time to the place kicking and drop kicking. Coach "Choppy" Rhodes gave it as his opinion that the Blues were ready to put up a fight worthy of any professional team.

Much time in the last few days has been devoted to place kicking and drop kicking from distances of 25, 30, 35 and up to 40 yards from the goal line and splendid kickers have been found in Dick Frahm, Chris Mathis and Tony Kaska.

The punting is done mostly by George Krosvenor and Buck Hansen. Both are strong kickers and will average better than 45 yards in any game.

That the kicking end of the game – the punting and drop or place kicking—may be an important factor in the combat against the Charlotte team, is indicated in the result of the Charlotte-Louisville game of last Sunday, which Louisville, with its strong and experienced players, won by the small count of 7 to 0.

The Blues will leave here tomorrow morning and are scheduled to arrive in Charlotte late Saturday afternoon though possibly in time for a light loosening up drill on the Charlotte field after which they will have a night's sleep there before starting their American League campaign.

Softball Feature Cancelled.

The softball game originally scheduled for tonight between the American and National League Baseball All-Stars and the North Side All-Stars at Sisler North Side Park has been postponed indefinitely according to an announcement issued by George H. Sisler.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE RESULTS, SCHEDULE

Maplewood Junior High Wins.

Maplewood Junior High School's football team played its first game of the season yesterday and came through with a 6-0 victory over the Midgets from St. Louis University High School. Joe Morcolio, halfback and captain of the Maplewood team, counted the only score of the game when he made a 20-yard run for a touchdown.

CARONDELET TO PLAY PERFECTION ELEVEN IN NEXT DE MOLAY GAME

The lead in the Greater St. Louis De Molay Football League may change hands Sunday afternoon, when the present leader, Carondelet Chapter, plays Perfection Chapter, defending champion, in the first of two league games at Sisler's South Side Park on Kingshighway and Chippewa. The two tail-enders, St. Louis Chapter, 1932 champion, and Sentinel Chapter, newcomer to the league this year, will meet in the second game.

The strong Carondelet eleven, which is composed of former Cleveland High players, will face an acid test in meeting the Perfection outfit, comprised for the most part of ex-Soldan High and Western M. A. aces. "Zing" Koziatek and "Chubby" Bagwell of Soldan High and Milton Blives, W. M. A. stars, scored three touchdowns each, as well as an extra point apiece as Perfection routed Sentinel, 60-0, last Sunday. Carondelet so far has won its only game, defeating Harmony, 6-0, two weeks ago.

STAIDINGS.

Team.	W.	L.	T.	Pct.	Pts.	O.P.
Carondelet	1	0	0	1.000	6	0
Perfection	1	0	1	.750	60	0
Harmony	1	1	0	.500	12	6
St. Louis	0	1	1	.250	0	12
Sentinel	0	1	0	.000	0	60

Tie games count one-half won and one-half lost.

MIXED BOXING AND MAT BOUTS BARRED BY MINNESOTA BOARD

ST. PAUL, Oct. 11.—The Minnesota Athletic Commission yesterday ruled there will be no more mixed matches between boxers and wrestlers.

In Minnesota's first mixed match, held Tuesday night in Minneapolis, Abe Kashey, wrestler, pinned Charley Retzlaff, heavyweight boxer, in the fourth round of their scheduled ten-round match.

The commission explained such matches could be classified neither as boxing nor wrestling and that it felt continuation would "injure boxing's prestige in the State."

TORONTO DRAFTS TWO SOUTHERN ASS'N STARS

By the Associated Press.

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 11.—The drafting season for the Class AA baseball leagues got under way yesterday with Toronto of the International League drawing on the Southern Association for two players, Pitcher Harry Kelley of Atlanta and Infielder Calvin Chapman of Memphis. The announcement was made by headquarters here of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

The class AA drafting period closes at midnight tonight. The class A leagues may draft during a three-day period, starting Oct. 15.

"GUESS?-No, TEST!" said Seagram's —and in 60 days CROWN WHISKEY became America's Favorite!

Seagram's never says "Take it on faith!" Seagram's says "Test it yourself!" Then, "Judge by its taste!"

Seagram's invites you to test Crown Whiskey the way professional buyers test costly whiskies. Decide for yourself by test—then by taste—if it isn't smoother, warmer, mellower than any other moderately priced whiskey you ever tried.

It's a fair invitation, isn't it? It's the reason why Crown Whiskey now outsells all others of moderate price throughout America today.

EMPLOYE TELLS OF BOSS' THREAT IN WEIRTON VOTE

Testifies He Was Informed if He Didn't Cast Ballot He "Wouldn't Work There Any More."

TWO OTHERS GOT "NO EXPLANATION"

Government Witnesses Describe Company Union Tactics—New Election Is Sought.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 11.—Three Government witnesses in the injunction suit against the Weirton Steel Co. testified in Federal Court today that they were asked to vote for representatives in the company union before they received any explanation of the plan.

The three—Emmet Dickey and ford Williams, Negroes of Weirton, W. Va., and Charles B. Cas of Steubenville, O., all Weirton employes were witnesses in the Government's petition for an injunction to restrain the Weirton company from interfering in an employes' election to choose collective bargaining representatives.

The Government contends the company's alleged activities in organization of the company union constituted coercion and intimidation of workers.

A "boss" named Barney West, Williams testified, "told me that if I didn't vote, he'd see to it that I wouldn't work there no more."

Called Into Office.

Dickey, a brother of Ed Dickey who testified yesterday he was told to vote or get out of town, told the court that Walter Freize, superintendent of the cold roll department of the Weirton plant, called him to the company office last December when the employe election was held, and told him the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers "isn't any good." "My daddy belonged to it for 57 years and what did he ever get out of it? Nothing but that little piece of paper that he signed," Dickey quoted Freize as saying.

The witness said he told Freize, "I'm not living in your daddy's day. I'm living in my own day. People want the Amalgamated Association. Why fight? Why not let them have it?" Freize told him, Dickey testified, that "they can have it, but they are not going to have it in this mill," he testified.

Witness Says Check Numbers Were Placed on Ballots.

Ed Dickey said yesterday that the company's president, J. C. Williams, told an assembly of workers he would not recognize the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, or any other outside union.

This testimony followed an assertion by another Weirton worker, l Walter, an employe representative in the company union at the Clarksburg, W. Va., plant, that under the company union plan workers could not bargain collectively with the management.

"The company union system was not collective bargaining," Walter said, adding that, when he asked a plant officer if the Clarksburg workers' pay could be raised to equal that of employes in the company's other two plants, he was turned down with the statement it was impossible.

Walter also testified that employe representative elections, although supposed to be secret, were not, because the workers were ordered to put their "check numbers" on the ballots.

"Bread and Meat."

Dickey testified that a plant superintendent told him, "you must remember you're getting your bread and meat from the Weirton Steel and you got to vote in the general election."

Under cross-examination by Earl Reed, Weirton company lawyer, Dickey said he still was in the company employ, and, in reply to a question if he had noticed any change of attitude, he said, "Well, kind of slow in worrying any more."

Walter opened his testimony with the assertion that a "baseless rumor was started about him when he was suggested for election as an employe representative.

He sobbed as he said this, and Judge John P. Nields told him: "Take your time. We're here until Christmas."

Walter said he "defied anyone" to say he was not an American citizen.

Wilbur A. Peet, a Weirton employe at Clarksburg, testified to hearing a pre-election conversation, in which he said Ben Maple, a superintendent, told another employe he would only be wasting your vote if you vote for Walter, because he is not an American citizen."

Attorney Reed brought out later that by-laws of the company plan provided that representatives be American citizens.

SENATE GROUP PROPOSES FEDERAL CHARTER AS CURB ON CONCENTRATED WEALTH

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-05 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Writing into the record the last chapter of the report on the investigation which it conducted into American finance, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, yesterday condemned investment trusts and the holding company system for taking millions of dollars from the investing public and contributing to an ever greater and more menacing concentration of wealth.

This final blast from the committee was of a piece with the investigation which from beginning to end produced one startling disclosure after another involving the leaders of American business.

"The exposure of the abuses and evils of the investment trusts must be expeditiously translated into legislative action to prevent recurrence of these practices," the report said.

Doesn't Cover All Abuses.

The 1933 Securities Act provides some measure of protection since it requires fuller disclosure by organizers of investment trusts of the nature of the trust, the committee points out. But the report adds: "The effectiveness of this regulation is confined to the primary distribution of the capital stock of these investment trusts and in no wise covers the abuses and malpractices of the subsequent conduct and management of these investment trusts."

A national incorporation act might serve to restrain holding companies and investment trusts from those dubious practices which they have been guilty of in the past, the committee suggests in conclusion. This would prevent incorporation in such states as Delaware and New Jersey with the express intention of circumventing stricter corporation laws of more scrupulous states.

"The holding company," says the report, "is primarily a device by which a group of persons, through the use of the public's money, are enabled to amass control of industries and public utilities and the substantial wealth of the nation."

Cites J. P. Morgan & Co.

As an illustration, the report cites the bewildering complex of interlocking directorships held by J. P. Morgan & Co. The committee also condemns the practice of individuals serving as directors on numerous boards, holding that it is impossible under such circumstances to give any real direction to the affairs of the various companies.

At great length the committee traces the operations of the Van Sweringen Brothers of Cleveland and the Morgan banks, through the jointly controlled Allegheny corporation, in securing control of the Missouri Pacific Railway System. Having acquired the Chesapeake & Ohio System in the East the Van Sweringens wanted the Missouri-Pacific to complete a trans-continental route, the committee points out.

"By pyramiding corporation upon corporation promoters with a 'shoestring' investment were enabled to acquire control of the public's money and the industries of the country," says the report. "A clear exemplification of this process was the Allegheny Corporation, where the Van Sweringen interests, with an initial investment of $1,000,000 acquired control of one of the four railroad systems in the eastern region and the Missouri Pacific railroad in the Southwest."

Implied Criticism in Report.

There is implied criticism in the report for the policy of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in advancing loans to railways to pay off indebtedness to banks which, prior to the depression, had profited largely from a relationship with the railroads. The loan that the RFC made to the Missouri-Pacific for repayment of indebtedness to the Morgan bank is given as an example.

"J. P. Morgan had testified before the Senate subcommittee defending the institution of private bankers, pointing out that these private bankers could not rely upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for aid," says the report.

"Yet the $5,850,000 loan to the Missouri-Pacific Railroad by the RFC, for which application had been made at the suggestion of the bankers, was made for the express purpose of paying one-half the indebtedness owed to the private bankers."

The report takes up the involved structure built up by the Insulls in Chicago, pointing out that it existed primarily to center control of holdings of vast scope in the Insull family.

"Has Become Important Unit."

"The primary motivation for the organization of the holding company has now become the development and financial promotion of secuitry-selling schemes," says the report. 'The holding company per se has become the important unit, and the industry or operating companies merely tools or instrumentalities of financial promotion and security speculation. Industry has been relegated to an immaterial position, one field being the equal of any other field, provided the industry had the requisite popular appeal as an asset of a holding company seeking to sell securities. The holding company, therefore, was not dedicated to the development of industry; rather, industry was dedicated to the development of the holding company.

"The consequence has been that holding companies have not been organized or dominated by individuals who possessed the necessary qualifications, training for or interest in industry, which formed the backbone of he holding company, but rather have become the vehicles for the financial promoters, who were particularly adept at borrowing money, pyramiding corporation upon corporation, and selling securities to the public.

"Created No Economic Wealth."

"The holding company is no longer the parent fostering the unit industries; rather, the infant unit operating companies are nurturing the holding company. The pragmatic result has been that holding companies have not created any economic wealth, but have merely facilitated the concentration of control of wealth.

"The top holding company is usually the apex of a complicated, ramified, involved pyramiding of corporations and holding companies. The elaborate corporate and industrial substructure of the top holding company is oft times even beyond the grasp of the organizers. Since the equity and non-equity securities of the top holding company, and not of the unit operating companies, are usually listed on securities exchanges and sold to the public, it is futile to expect the public to even approximate the intrinsic value and merit of these securities by an analysis of the assets and capital substructures of the holding company.

"The corporate structure of these holding companies facilitated the inter company manipulation of assets and extension of loans and credit to the holding companies. Successful unit operating companies were subjected to the risks of the speculative transactions of the holding company. Little justification, economic or social, exists for the holding company as presently constituted and conducted. Holding companies, whether employed in the banking, public utility, or railroad field, have been catastrophic to the American public."

Not Like British Pattern.

There is no justification for the bankers' contention that investment trusts in this country followed the conservative British pattern, says the report. The resemblance between the two systems is merely superficial, "for the very factors which accounted for the success of the British trusts, diversification of investment, disinterested management, conservative investments and standardized management charges, were disregarded by the organizers of the American investment trusts."

"An added impetus has been given to accumulation of the control of wealth by the aborted employment of the corporate entity as investment trusts and holding companies.

"The marked increase in the popular participation in securities transactions has definitely placed under the control of financiers the wealth of the nation. The diffused distribution of non-equity stocks among the disorganized stockholders, who cannot effectively assert concerted action, has resulted in the domination of corporations by small groups of individuals controlling a comparatively insignificant part of the voting stock. These groups dictate the selection of directors and consequently the management and control of these corporate institutions."

FARM CREDIT ADMINISTRATION HAS LENT $1,800,000,000

1,057,000 Loans Made in 15 Months; $1,000,000,000 Advanced Since Jan. 1.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Loans totaling 1,057,000 for about $1,800,000,000 were made to farmers by the Farm Credit Administration during the 15 months ending Sept. 1. Most of the total, said W. Forbes Morgan, deputy governor of the administration, was lent directly to farmers on the security of first mortgages by Federal Land Banks and on first and second mortgages by the land bank commissioner. About $1,000,000,000 has been issued in mortgage loans since Jan. 1.

Of the rest, the largest percentage was in short-term production and marketing credit extended to individual farmers by production credit associations within counties and regional agricultural credit corporations. Emergency crop and feed loans made to farmers in drouth-stricken areas accounted for only a small part of the total.

In addition, 400,000 borrowers from Federal land banks who had loans outstanding when the Farm Credit Administration was organized have obtained reductions in interest and postponement of principal payments for the next few years, Morgan said.

MARCONI SAYS NEW ERA IN ECONOMICS HAS BEGUN

Inventor Declares Mankind Cannot Renounce Machine Without Going Backward.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 11.—Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless, in his presidential message to the annual meeting of the Italian Association for the Advancement of Science, today said humanity could not renounce the machine "without walking backward along the march of civilization." A slight illness prevented Marconi fro mdelivering the message in person.

"It is discipline of the machine we must obtain," he asserted, "so it will serve men and not take away from them the joy of work.

"Only organized scientific research is in a position to produce this admirable result. It is my profound conviction it must strive to develop agriculture to create new industries and new motives of work.

"We are at a turn in the history of humanity. A thousand indications show that economic relationships are changing. One epoch is finished and a new one begins.

"Whatever will be the economic layout that we are approahing, it is certain it will be profoundly different from that which regulated the life of men at the time we were born."

107,000 CHILDREN TAKE COMMUNION AT ONE TIME

Four Cardinals and 250 Priests Officiate at Ceremany in Buenos Aires.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 11.—Four Cardinals and 250 priests officiated today when 107,000 white-robed children received communion in Palermo Park, the open-air cathedral of the Thirty-second International Eucharistic Congress. Altars on all of the four sides of the mammoth cross were used.

The number of children far exceeded the 75,000 expected.

The children waved the yellow and white Eucharistic banners as Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Legate, arrived and took his place on the white throne from which he later blessed the crowd.

$3,600,000 BOND ISSUE FAVORED BY ALDERMEN

16 Democrats, a Majority, Pledge Support—Liquor Revenue for Service Charges.

MONEY TO PROVIDE WORK FOR JOBLESS

Caucus Issues Statement of Its Purposes, Addressed to Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment, at its next meeting, probably Tuesday, will consider the pledge made by the Democratic majority in the Board of Aldermen, to pass legislation needed for issuance of $3,600,000 of public improvement bonds, for projects to employ workers.

The 16 Democratic Aldermen, constituting a majority of the Board, committed themselves to support of the program of Mayor Dickmann and City Counselor Hay, to appropriate liquor revenue, estimated at $400,000 a year, for service charges on the new bonds. This is contrary to the advice of Comptroller Nolte, who has held that if new bonds are to be issued, new revenue should be provided, and that the liquor revenue should go to paying interest and retirements on the old bonds. The proposed new bonds are part of the $16,100,000 issue authorized by the voters last spring.

Statement by Caucus.

A formal statement, addressed to the Board of Estimate, was approved at the Aldermen's caucus. It spoke of the conferences held by the city's fiscal officials with bankers, as to the possibility of issuing new bonds, and provision for the charges on such bonds.

"We believe," the statement continued, "that it is vital to the interests of the city, and particularly to the welfare of unemployed people, that action be taken at once to enable the city to give the largest possible amount of employment during the winter months.

"We also deem it advisable to take action at the earliest possible moment to preserve grants already made by the Federal Government, amounting to $5,000,000.

"We advise you that we stand ready to enact an ordinance authorizing issuance of the amount of bonds to start work on the various improvement projects, which amount has been given us as $3,600,000, and to provide for allocation of revenues accruing under the liquor ordinance, for servicing of such bonds."

Distribution of Work.

Items of the proposed $3,600,000 initial issue of new bonds, representing in most cases only a fraction of the amount of bonds voted in the election, are:

Completion Municipal Auditorium, Convention Hall end, $900,000; improvement of Memorial Plaza and plans for Memorial building, $100,000; hospitals, $300,000; Southern Arsenal relief sewer, $500,000; grade crossing elimination, $200,000; Armory, $100,000; police stations, $250,000; street openings and widenings, including North Twelfth boulevard, $1,000,000; and Negro community centers, $250,000.

Works included in the bond issue as voted, but which it is not proposed to start at present, are completion of Civil Courts Building, $600,000, and development and improvement of Aloe Plaza, opposite Union Station, $100,000.

MEXICAN DEPUTIES VOTE FOR SOCIALISTIC EDUCATION

Proposed Constitutional Change Make Such Instruction Obligatory in Schools.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 11.—The Chamber of Deputies voted unanimously yesterday in favor of changing Article III of the Constitution so as to make socialistic education compulsory in all schools except universities.

The Senate is expected to act favorably on the proposal, which was sponsored by the Government party.

The Mexican Bar Association went on record against the change after speakers expressed the opinion that a majority of the deputies "could not understand what is meant by socialistic education."

CONGRESSMEN TO PASS ON FARM CENSUS TAKERS

Director of Bureau Says He Will Consult Democrats; Work to Begin Jan. 1.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The 25,000 field supervisors and enumerators required for the 193g farm census will be selected after consultation with Dremocratic Congressmen. William L. Austin, director of the Census Bureau, said today that he would follow this policy. The farm census will begin Jan. 1.

"The members of Congress," Austin said, "are being asked to consult with agricultural agencies and busigroups in their districts in order to procure the best available persons."

The census will require 223 supervisors. They will receive about $900 each for three months' work. Enumerators will be employed for an average of from 15 to 20 days.

The supervisors and enumerators will be selected from the rural districts and every effort will be made to select farmers, their wives, sons and daughters.

COAL MEN OPPOSE USING IDLE MINES IN RELIEF WORK

Delegation of Operators and Union Men Object to Allotment of U. S. Funds for Purpose.

REPORT OF PROJECT IN THREE STATES

Argument Is Made That Reopening of Collieries Would Replace Regular Workers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Representatives of coal mine operators and of the United Mine Workers called at Federal Relief headquarters to urge that no Federal funds be allowed for the operation of idle coal mines by persons on relief rolls.

They told Keith Southard, executive officer of the Surplus Relief Corporation, that employment of relief workers to produce coal for the unemployed was under consideration by state relief administrations in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Relief activities in those states are supported heavily by Federal funds.

J. D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association; Earl E. Houck, legal representative of the Mine Workers, and other members of the delegation said Southard promised consideration of their arguments.

"There are too many coal mines, and too many coal miners, already," Battle said after the conference. "Using relief workers to mine coal would simply displace regular miners."

Houck denied that coal for the unemployed could be obtained at less cost by using relief workers.

"Reopening an idle mine is a costly and dangerous operation," he said. "Timbers must be replaced and equipment repaired. Then, probably after six months, the investment would be idle again."

Harry L. Hopkins, Relief Administrator, announced recently that coal purchases for families on relief rolls would be left this winter to state and local agencies. Coal for the needy was bought last year on a nation-wide basis by the Surplus Relief Corporation.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

No More Debacles.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a recent radio address, Dr. Harcourt Morgan of the TVA said: "Our land is our capital and we are wasting it. Our farmers have had to waste it to make ends meet." The first sentence may be broadened to include all our natural resources, such as coal, oil, lumber, steel and many other basic commodities derived from the soil, and upon which we are vitally dependent for our subsistence and prosperity.

Every effort should be made by the NRA to prevent competitive exploitation of these by our natural-resource industries. It is known that exploitation has been carried on, mainly for the purpose of accumulating large capital surpluses, adding vastly to the concentration of wealth which has served no useful purpose, but has only satisfied the greed and selfishness of a few who were favored by circumstances.

There is another resource of the nation which should have special attention in a revision of the NRA. For it must be conceded that the labor of the people is a resource of paramount importance, and in its exploitation may be traced many of our economic difficulties, not the least of which is a serious depletion of purchasing power. No nation can prosper or long endure with a majority of its people on the border line of destitution.

Doubtless it is true, as the leaders of industry assert, that non-interference by the NRA in business will so stimulate industry as to eliminate needless destitution. Yet, without direction and control by some governmental agency, how are we to be assured that there will not be a reversion to our former ruthless methods of competition and exploitation?

Just as impounded water is of no value in producing crops, so is impounded wealth of no value. The proper way is to allow the consumer to profit from all the savings which result from modern scientific production. Thus, if an automobile can be manufactured for $200, including all proper fixed and variable charges, the consumer should have it at this price.

If under such a regime, industry does not or cannot revive, the only recourse is for the Government to take over and operate the factories. We desire to have no more economic debacles. We further desire, as soon as may be, an ending of the present condition in which widespread potential consumption is thwarted in the presence of almost unlimited potential production.

ARTHUR JOBSON.

Marceline, Mo.

Source of Relief Funds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SINCE the National Association of Manufacturers says it is extravagant to use Federal money for unemployed relief, then it seems to me it is also extravagant to use local tax money, which, for the most part, is squeezed out of the wage earner.

I am at present fortunate enough to be among the wage earners, to be able to provide for myself and wife, but have not enough to provide for two other members of the family who are unable to find means for their own existence.

As a result, my wife and myself go without many things we could have and really need.

Now, if the Government will supply the means for these others to make their own way, I cannot see where competition with private enterprise comes in. It would relieve me of the extra burden and make it possible to buy needed things.

Our Disrespect of Il Duce.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial, "Packing Them In" (questioning the reported size of Mussolini's audience at Milan), has come to my attention and I am shocked to note how disrespectful it is.

It is disrespectful because Mussolini, a man who is almost worshipped by more than 50,000,000 Italians and admired by hundreds of thousands of others all over the world, should not be spoken of in such a light vein.

I do not think you can imagine a respectable Italian paper speaking of a public person in any other country, especially if he is admired at home, as you have, even in jest.

Who Will Pay the Bill?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"AMID applause, the American Federation of Labor went on record at its convention as favoring the five-day, 30-hour week with no reduction in wages, as the only constructive remedy for the relief of unemployment."

The foregoing appeared in your issue of Oct. 8 and, taking it at its face value, the applause is not hard to understand. I'd whoop and holler, too, if I could work one day less each week and still produce the same income—have my cake and eat it, in other words. Who wouldn't? But who is going to pay the bill?

In theory, we may say that the world owes us a living. The fact is, however, that honest, hard-working people always have and always will get along. That was true 100 years ago and it is true today. So don't trade your legs in on a 1934 pair of wings.

DICTATORS' LIVES ARE CHEAP.

A dictator may enjoy the intoxication of supreme power, but he is inevitably a marked man. The assassination of Jugo-Slavia's King-dictator, following close upon that of Austria's Chancellor-dictator, repeats in our own day the unheeded lessons of the past. Democratic rulers, of course, have also met with violent death on occasion, but usually at the hands of the mentally deranged. To the victims of dictatorship, however, the murder of the tyrant becomes a patriotic act, misguided though it may be. Jefferson understood their sentiment, for he said: "Resistance to tyrants is obedience to God." We may account it a blessing of democracy that our political differences are settled by ballot and debate, not with pistol and bomb.

By a paradox, the stronger a dictator's concentration of power becomes, the greater is his personal peril. When rebellion seems a hopeless venture, then the shooting down of the "strong man" is the last resort. All his precautions are in vain when assassins arm themselves and lie in wait. Alexander knew his peril, as recited in the extract from Louis Adamic's book reprinted on this page. But his bodyguard and the precautions of French authorities were in vain when the determined Croatian merchant, member of an oppressed people, made his way to the royal car at Marseilles.

Mussolini, impregnable as his power now may seem, has been the target of assassins a half-dozen times or more, and some of his escapes have bordered on the miraculous. Those who assert Hitler will remain in power in Germany always qualify their assertions with some such phrase as "That is, barring his assassination." It is safe to hazard that there are scores of desperate men in Germany today sworn to take the dictator's life, the result of his ruthless "blood purge" of June 30 and the brutal murders charged against his regime. Dollfuss knew that his days were numbered, and expected a Socialist or Nazi attack momentarily in the last tense months of his power.

It is not merely the personal fate of these tyrants that need concern society, but the disastrous results among their peoples, perhaps spreading abroad, that follow a political murder. Austria was plunged into civil war after Dollfuss' death, and world-wide fear of international conflict ensued. No one knows what will be the results in Jugo-Slavia, but Croats are fleeing over the border, in fear of reprisals, and Europe views with anxiety the newest Balkan disturbance.

Dictatorships, it is said, "get things done"; they dispense with dilatory parliaments and outworn liberalism. Be that as it may, hatred is bred among their subjects by those boasted "efficiencies," while democracies compose their internal differences by peaceful means. No matter how powerful the dictatorship, it carries within it the seed of its own destruction.

TO BE FILED FOR REFERENCE.

One more word about baseball. And it must, of course, concern the name of Dean. As everybody knows now, Dizzy's April boast was that he and Paul would win 40 games for the Cardinals. As everybody further knows, they won 53, including their world series conquests. Whatever else this makes Dizzy, it most certainly decks him out in the prophet's robe. Thus are we led to place into the record another Deanian prediction—one which fell on Frankie Frisch's ears the day of the first game in Detroit. "It's a great business, this baseball, especially the world series end of it," the Redbirds' manager was saying. "You're just beginning, Dizzy. Wait till you have been in eight of them." Came back the irrepressible Dizzy: "Well, Frank, there's one big difference between you and me. You've been in eight world series. When I have been in eight world series, I'll have been with eight world championship teams."

An idle boast? Well, we're willing to wait until Dizzy has poured that ball in there in seven more world series and let the record speak for itself.

MONARCH HUEY.

At last month's Louisiana primary, all of Huey Long's candidates for various offices were nominated, with one exception. That exception was Winston Overton, candidate for the State Supreme Court from the Third District. Overton died a few days before the election. His opponent, Thomas Porter, naturally claimed the nomination. Dictator Long, however, insisted that the nomination was not fairly won, because of Overton's death, and forced his puppets to call a special election.

Meanwhile, Porter went to the courts. He was recognized as the nominee by the East Baton Rouge District Court, but an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court. It is well known that the executive and legislative branches of the Government of Louisiana are thoroughly in the control of Huey Long, and now the suspicion arises that his influence has also spread to the State's supreme bench. That charge is being made freely in Louisiana, because the Supreme Court declined to make a ruling on the Porter case prior to the special election, though it had plenty of time in which to do so. The result of the special election held Tuesday shows Porter to have been defeated by John B. Fournet, Long's candidate.

Huey is now monarch of all he surveys in Louisiana politics, and we suppose the next thing on his agenda will be to go to Europe to teach Hitler and Mussolini a thing or two.

Of course, that putout by Judge Landis should go into the official score.

RED TAPE.

It is heartening to read in the Washington news that the Veterans' Bureau has decided to abolish red tape, but doubts arise on noting that it is the utilitarian ribbon itself, and not primarily the useless practices it symbolizes, that is taboo. The bureau will quit tying up papers in little packages, which had consumed 200 miles of red tape per year, and will use the paper clip, the folder and the filing cabinet in their place. That will add efficiency, but what a triumph it would be if all Government offices could shed their dilatory routines as easily as that!

Red tape has been an emblem of deadening formality for almost three centuries. Sidney Smith, Carlyle, but especially Dickens, turned their guns upon it. In "Little Dorrit," Dickens described the "Circumlocution Office," which "had used enough red tape to stretch in graceful festoons from Hyde Park corner to the General Postoffice." (That was before the day of the Veterans' Bureau's mileage.) Charles Kingsley pilloried "the fops of red-tape statesmen," and Herbert Spencer wrote about "the vices of red-tape routine." There are improvements here and there, but we have those vices still. Physical red tape may be going out, to add to the woes of the textile industry, but its figurative festoons still garland the official scene, and drape citizens who would approach the sanctuaries.

"THE BATTLE OF NOVEMBER."

In the current issue of Today, Postmaster-General Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, states the case for the administration, and Senator Hastings, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, is the spokesman for the opposition. The articles were prepared in the light of the November election, less than a month away.

The editor of Today, Raymond Moley, praises both articles as "moderate, thoughtful and cogent." We are, regretfully, unable to concur in that laudatory judgment. There are moments, or moods, of unrestraint which, in our opinion, come perilously close to soap-box exegetics—partisan bombast, which, to the thoughtful reader, seeking enlightenment and guidance, must, we feel, be gravely objectionable.

For example: Mr. Farley speaks of certain anti-New Dealers as > the purposeful Old Guard, with its habit of command—Fess and Reed, Mills and Mellon, Arthur Robinson and Jim Watson, and all the rest of the same stripe. Despite the pretense of a reform movement, this is the class that still controls the Republican party. And that class has no interest in the average man. It is ruthlessly interested in one thing and one thing only—its own power and the profits of that power. Whether men physically starve or morally rot in the ranks of the unemployed is, for this group, only a nuisance side issue.

Mr. Hastings has the floor:

> . . . the Democratic Congress insisted that every emergency measure that was passed should leave the person administering the law entirely free to select his own employes, without regard to civil service requirements. It is generally conceded that practically all appointments must have the approval of the chairman of the Democratic National Committee. There are approximately 200,000 of these employes . . . and the sole qualification for the selection of most of them has been their political value. These non-civil service employes are the individuals who spy upon the storekeeper, the manufacturer, the farmer and the herder, to see if they are living up to the daily orders which are issued from Washington to regulate the regimentation of our goose-stepping nation. This effort to put the nation in the same position as the Tammany-controlled City of New York is disgusting, and will be resented by many people at the polls.

The Post-Dispatch, it is needless to say, holds no brief for the Republican Old Guard. We have believed, and believe, that certain of its economic policies fostered special privilege which inevitably flowered into vicious economic practices. But for Mr. Farley to charge men of different political faith with monstrous indifference to destitution is surely neither "moderate" nor "thoughtful," but is, we submit, manifestly untrue. Yet Mr. Farley is no more immoderate in the quoted utterance and no farther from the truth than Mr. Hastings is in the latter's accusation that the administration is trying "to put the nation in the same position as the Tammany-controlled City of New York."

Both Mr. Farley and Mr. Hastings, we are bound to say, do measure up at times to the expected requirements of sincere and intellectual discussion in their statements. But in the instances cited, they descend, it seems to us, to the levels of demagogy, and, by so offending, forfeit the respectful attention of their audiences.

PRICES FOR PUBLIC SUPPLIES IN THE COUNTY.

The St. Louis County Court did well in voting to submit the matter of food prices for the County Hospital to the Prosecuting Attorney for presentation to the grand jury. It should see that its instructions are carried out. If there are unjustified differences between hospital food costs in the city and county, as Dr. William G. Patton, County Hospital superintendent suggests, residents of the county are entitled to know of it and to require the proper readjustments. If there is a valid explanation, it too should be made public. The more or less similar difference between Sheriff Deuser and County Purchasing Agent Dorre concerning blankets bought for the county jail should be handled in the same fashion. When funds collected through taxation of the people are involved, no question of the propriety of expenditures can be too small to be explored thoroughly.

SCHOLARSHIP IN DEPRESSION YEARS.

Hard times generally make hard going for the projects of scholars, but the fact remains that American co-operative scholarship is coming through the depression with a surprising record of work done.

The 12-volume "History of American Life," which Arthur M. Schlesinger of Harvard and Dixon Ryan Fox, new president of Union College and lately of Columbia University, announced in 1927, to reveal the American past as the people have lived it, is now three-quarters published. The monumental Dictionary of American Biography, sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies and edited first by the late Allen Johnson and since his death by Dumas Malone, has been appearing at the rate of two to three volumes a year since 1928.

Launched more recently under the editorship of Edwin R. A. Seligman of Columbia University and Alvin Johnson of the New School for Social Research, the Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences, for whose articles the scholarship of the world has been drawn upon, now lacks only two of the 15 volumes in which it is to be complete. The first biography in the American Political Leaders series, with Allan Nevins of Columbia University as editor, appeared in 1930; nine are now published and about a dozen are in preparation.

As these important projects in co-operative scholarship proceed, another is being undertaken in the 20-volume "Rise of Modern Europe," which William L. Langer of Harvard has planned. The two volumes initiating this work, "A Decade of Revolution: 1789-1799," by Crane Brinton of Harvard, and "Reaction and Revolution: 1815-1832," by Frederick B. Artz of Oberlin, make it evident that the aim is to offer not only the political history of Europe from the modern viewpoint, but the equally, if, indeed, not more important, social, economic, intellectual and scientific development as well. Both these historians find messages for the turbulent present in their periods, and it is safe to say that the same will be true of their colleagues as other volumes in this promising series are brought out.

Hazardous though it may be to carry through such writing and publishing enterprises in depression years, they are even more worth-while in these circumstances. It is when "the time is out of joint" that men care most about its workings, and it is equally true that as an aid to seeing and understanding, no lamp throws more light than the scholar's.

A LESSON FOR THE WORLD.

Alexander of Jugo-Slavia

Late ruler is described as courageous man, bold military commander and genius at political intrigue; his "success story" covers rise from poverty to vast power and wealth, writes Americanized Jugo-Slav who had audience with him; King preferred terror and repression to moderate course; in constant fear of assassination.

From "The Native's Return," by Louis Adamic; Harper & Bros., Publisher.
(Reprinted by Permission.)

AMONG the few remaining crowned heads in Europe, Alexander is one of the youngest and the only absolute ruler. Most of the others, from the British monarch down to Albania's Zog, are either mere figureheads or mannikins of powerful rulers of other countries. There are almost no restraints upon Alexander's supremacy.

His career is one of the foremost "success stories" in the contemporary world. In 1915, when tiny old Serbia, of which he was Crown Prince and Regent, had just been occupied by the Austro-German armies, he arrived at Scutari, Albania, after a 10-day ride over mountain passes, with nothing he could call his own but a weary, hungry horse, a saddle, a soiled uniform, a sword and a pistol, and a toothbrush, a cake of soap, a towel and a comb in his saddlebag. Today, he is the head of a state nearly four times the size of former Serbia and the richest man in the Balkans. His civil list allowance is over $1,000,000 a year—and that is only a part of his income.

When he arrived at Scutari in 1915, with him were only one staff officer and one private. Today his bodyguard, paid by the state, consists of 40,000 officers and men; a full division of infantry, cavalry, light artillery and aviation.

Aside from military training, Alexander's formal education is incomplete, but he is extremely clever in many branches of knowledge and endeavor. He is a genius at Balkanic political intrigue and a resourceful military commander, with considerable record in the field. He is a man of much force and physical courage. Toward his antagonists, he is ruthless. When I saw him, he had over 2000 of them in prisons.

The most important dates in his career have to do with conspiracies, palace revolutions, regicides, wars, executions, assassinations, shootings in the Parliament, organized terror on a large scale.

Alexander, like his father, King Peter, shared the nation's agony and participated in its heroism. He endured hardships as no other ruler or General in the World War. He emerged from the war a popular hero of his people, admired and respected by persons of other nationalities—journalists, officers, diplomats, doctors, and relief workers in the Balkans, most of whom, of course, knew only of his war record.

When the war ended and Jugo-Slavia came into existence, Alexander was the most popular man that had ever held power in that part of the Balkans. In the first years after the war, he moved much about the country. A deft actor, he was charming to all; simple, democratic everywhere, with just enough pomp now and then to impress those who liked to be impressed.

When he became King, Alexander was 33, and at the height of his popularity. With wisdom, tact and insistence on moderation, a man in his position could have forced or induced the Parliament to do its work intelligently, kept adventurers and grafters out of office, and thereby made it possible for able and decent men to get into politics. But Alexander was not that sort of King.

A sympathetic student of Czarist methods of government, he chose, while creating his military machine and building his personal fortress, temporarily to keep out of open politics and secretly play—as he did for seven years—one party leader against the other. All this produced inefficiency in Government offices and increased the ineffectiveness of the Parliament. It created a spirit under which the various racial and religious groups became more attentive to their differences than their resemblances. It stirred the demagogues to more and more irrational and scandalous behavior.

Playing secret, subtle politics with corrupt Ministers and would-be Ministers, Alexander, with his Machiavellian cunning, had no difficulty in raising his personal allowance from the Government to over $1,000,000 a year, and acquiring estates and castles without paying for them.

Nor was it difficult for him to become a shareholder, in most cases without investing a penny, in some of the country's leading industries from which he now draws—via a system of straw men—an annual income exceeding that of his civil-list allowance. The bulk of his money he has been sending, since 1932, to banks in other countries.

Belgrade became a veritable stronghold of corruption and inefficiency. Members of Parliament, egged on by the King's agents or of their own accord, called one another bad names while in session, and engaged in fist fights. The Parliament reduced itself to an international scandal and a joke.

Politicians were clapped into prisons, along with thousands of peasants, workers and intellectuals who dared to come out in favor of democracy and the liberal or radical form of government. Political parties were outlawed. Scores of opponents to the dictatorship were assassinated in the streets of the principal cities by secret Government agents. The press was under a severe censorship. Terror was general.

Alexander is in constant fear of assassination. Every few months, I was informed, he becomes extremely panicky, trusts no one, and sometimes for weeks at a spell sleeps in a different room or a different palace each night. He remembers the 1903 regicide (of King Milan). He knows his fear of assassination is discussed everywhere; so every once in a while, to show he is not afraid, he suddenly appears on the main thoroughfare of Belgrade, pale and rigid, accompanied only by one of his adjutants, apparently unguarded; but it is becoming known that for hours before, hundreds of secret agents, in various disguises, are scattered up and down the avenue.

My audience with Alexander was no pleasant experience. He seemed cordial enough in his greeting; he was polite, democratic. He asked me how I liked Jugo-Slavia; where all had I been?

I said that the people of Jugo-Slavia were a fine, proud race, and he nodded. Then there were long, to me very awkward, pauses in our conversation, and we looked at one another. I sensed his unfriendliness, his eagerness to be rid of me. He knew I had declined his Order of the White Eagle. He doubtless had received conflicting reports on what I might write about Jugo-Slavia. He had been urged to see m was a nuisance, a waste of his time.

I remarked that, going about the coun I had observed poverty. He winced a li and said, unsmiling, "Yes, it is this wo wide depression. It began outside our ders and now is affecting us rather sever It is true the peasant cannot sell his p uct as readily as a few years ago, and hasn't much money—but he's full, he's f —meaning he is not hungry.

Another pause. We eyed one another.

He apologized he had not received earlier and said he was very busy. It a hint, but I stayed 10 or 15 minutes about 20 minutes in all.

Finally, still very charming, Alexan Karageorgevitch rose. It is his regal tom to ask visitors whom he consi friendly if they have a wish he can gr or to give them of his own accord an a graphed photograph or a package of cially made court cigarettes. He did not me if I had a wish, nor give me anythi

Riding back to Belgrade in the royal ousine, I had a very strong feeling ab him. He was a man of the times, in same category of strong-arm rulers Mussolini, Hitler, Pilsudski and the res the tyrants and dictators. He was a in the new political system of post-war rope, helping to hold together a crumb civilization with gangster methods. He a figure in the dreadful European n mare that seemed rapidly and inevit approaching its climax.

At the moment, he had the whole c try "on the spot"; he might stay in p one, two, five or 10 more years; bu future was clearly and definitely him and his kind.

Correcting an Error

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE ascent of Donald Richberg to throne of the colorful Gen. Johnson, though hailed in many quarters as a "sw to the left," was nothing of the sort. T is made clear by the somewhat abrupt nouncement by Mr. Richberg that fu policy would be to discourage price-fix and limitation of production in the ind trial codes.

If every move at the capital mu classified as a swing to the left or ri this is definitely a swing to the right. it can better be regarded as the correct of a major error.

With too much reliance on codes as s stitutes for old-fashioned competition, b ness men and NRA officials alike work into the codes numerous provisions for determination of prices and the restrict of output. The object in most instances to make enterprise more profitable by r ing prices.

This could have but one effect—t courage consumption and thereby a business adversely. Such arbitrary fix of prices, whether done by industries the selves or by government, is an unwarran interference with the normal play of co petitive forces.

The President's failure to indicate contours of his future policy in his rec radio address is compensated for somew by Mr. Richberg's candid admission of mistakes made in the codes, and his st ment of the desire to do away with exces rigidity in the codes.

In certain industries, notably those tracting natural resources from the gro or the forests, a check on competition doubtedly is needed, if only to prevent re less waste of national resources. But the most part, we will be better off with price-fixing and its inescapable tende toward monopolies.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.

WHEN President Roosevelt addresses the approaching convention of the American Bankers' Association, one thought will be uppermost in the minds of his audience: "Will he give any inkling of attitude on a central bank?"

This is the one issue that has the financial boys, big and small, jittery. Their fright over a move for a Government controlled central bank at the next session of Congress even exceeds their fears of further inflationary measures, an unbalanced budget, or continued heavy emergency expenditures.

Every conceivable wile and strategy has been resorted to by the banking community to obtain a private expression of the President's views on the question.

They have been usuccessful.

The reason is simple. The President has not as yet made up his mind.

But the mere fact that he is seriously studying the matter, is definitely not hostile to the project, sends cold shivers up and down financial spines.

Cleavage.

IN inner banking circles there is a sharp cleavage of opinion as to the public policy that should be pursued on the issue.

One group, made up chiefly of big Tory Federal Reserve System bankers, is for an aggressive challenge to the President on his entire monetary policy.

The recent tirade of the Federal Reserve Council was a display of this attitude.

Accustomed for so many years to dominate the fiscal affairs of the country, it roils these money potentates to the raw to sit by, unconsulted by the White House, taking, instead of giving, orders.

The second group, among them Francis M. Law, president of the American Bankers' Association, is for a soft-treading, soft-speaking attitude toward the rPesident.

Law and his associates are bitterly critical of the Reserve Council's outbreak. They counsel "playing ball with the administration, warn that defiance and failure to co-operate will merely further antagonize the country and the President, inevitably lead to drastic measures. "The President hasn't got it in for us, and we haven't got it in for him," Law tells his banker-friends. "And, furthermore, if Roosevelt fails, we might get some one worse."

New Reed.

BATTLE-SCARRED Jim Reed is in the political arena again, and no one in the Middle West is being watched more closely by the political prognosticators of the administration.

Reed can, if he wants to, wreck Democratic chances to capture a Republican Senate seat in Missouri.

The reason for Jim's change of heart, his constant vituperation against the New Deal, has puzzled his senatorial friends, who know him as a rabid campaigner for the under dog.

Jim jumped from the modest salary of a Senator to the status of a millionaire. First, he made a fair-sized fortune practicing law. On top of this, his brother died, leaving him several public utility companies in Iowa. Finally, his new wife has made over a million as a big-time dressmaker. Any Government move to dip into income makes Jim see red.

That may explain his statement that there is no real unemployment in the United States, except for people who didn't want to work.

That also may explain the telegram Reed sent his old friend, Bennett Clark. The Senate was considering shifting the electricity tax burden from the consumer to the utility, which, of course, hit Reed's companies in Iowa. So he sent a six-page single-spaced telegram of protest to Senator Clark.

Had anyone sent such a telegram to Jim Reed in the old days he would have stepped on the floor of the Senate and exposed the sender.

But the old days with Jim Reed are gone.

Merry-Go-Round.

POLITICAL scouts report that Key Pittman, Nevada's veteran Democratic Senator and chairman of the august Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is having a real battle to save his seat. His opponent, George W. Malone, young World War veteran, militant Progressive Republican, and a radical silverite, is going up and down the silver-minded state demanding that Pittman explain his three votes against bi-metalism measures. The amusing thing is that Pittman did more for silver during the London conference than the entire State Department put together.

The Government's case against Samuel Insull is one of the most extensively prepared in the history of the Department of Justice. Fifteen accountants spent the greater part of a year compiling charts and figures. These constitute only a part of the 2500 exhibits the Government will introduce during the course of the trial.

Former Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, although retired, still continues his practice of employing as secretary for a year an outstanding Harvard law graduate. The great jurist spends most of his time reading. Last winter he became acquainted with more than 250 books, many of them French novels.

The New Deal has been a godsend to the national parks and forests. In addition to regular appropriations, more than $100,000,000 of emergency funds have been spent, or allocated, for enlarging and improving these great public recreation areas. Most of the money goes directly into labor costs . . . Following complaint of Pittsburgh's Representative Henry Ellenbogen, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has begun a quiet investigation of charges that Government appraisers are under-valuing homes on which needy owners seek Federal loans.

SPILLS AND SPEED HORSE SHOW FEATURES

8000 Spectators Get Many Thrills as Well Trained Steppers Perform.

There were spills and flashing speed that held the spectators breathless; there were brilliant smooth maneuvers when the tanbark was a whirl of twinkling spokes and rapid hooves; and toward the end there was a wistful note, mournful evidence of a departed day.

The 8000 spectators who thronged the Arena last night for the third session of the St. Louis National Horse Show thought the variegated program grand. Alternately they cheered and gasped at 12 events. The thirteenth—the sad commentary on a mechanized age—brought roar after thunderous roar of applause.

First Event for Jumpers.

First of the evening was the Corinthian class, with the riders amateurs, in the livery of the recognized hunts to which they belonged. The mounts went over four barriers, a wall of artificial bricks, a hedge, a gate and a double set of bars, 24 feet apart. Gin Fizz, owned by August A. Busch Jr., and ridden by Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff, was first; The Phantom, a tall, strong gray owned and ridden by Donald Scott Sharpe, second; Step Aside, exhibited and ridden by Miss Jane Johnson, last year's Veiled Prophet Queen, third, although the audience from its applause apparently thought Miss Johnson should have won; Miss Burrland, owned by Miss Jacqueline Busch Jones and ridden by Mrs. Kerckhoff, fourth; Gay Pete, owned by Miss Jane Johnson, fifth.

The spectators held their breath each time a mount in the Corinthian class went over a barrier. Most of them crouched as the horse crouched, lunged forward as the animal did, and held their hands tensely palm upward as though from their seats they could help the jumper to clear. When the horse did clear, the spectators sat back with a prolonged "Ah-h" of gratification. When one failed to clear there was an even more prolonged "Oh-h" of disappointment, as though the fortune and name of each member of the 8000 had been wiped away or blackened by the failure.

It seemed unlikely that each spetator could have an actual personal interest in each hunter and rider, but their demonstration indicated they did. Even the ringmaster, to whom jumping is an old, old story, crouched and pushed upward every time a horse left the ground; cheered and waved his cane if it cleared, dashed his arm downward in chagrin if the feet cracked against the top rail.

Shetland Pony Tandem.

The third event of the night was the Shetland pony tandem. Of the six pairs pacing about the ring, pulling four-wheeled carts, all but one were matched in color; some gray, some black, some tiny and one matched pair almost the size of small horses. The crowd—particularly the women and children—cheered loud and long when first prize went to Mavis and Magic, pretty light gray ponies with long, flowing white manes and tails. They were entered by E. W. Beghtol and driven by Ralph Peak. A Beghtol entry, driven by Beghtol, took second, while Harry Gorham won third with Locust Fland and Blue Heaven; Eugene E. Kennedy was fourth, Harley Heyl driving tiny black King Larigo and Mary Larigo, fifth.

The Roadster Stake Event.

The Roadster Stake, sleek swift horses pacing with their drivers on shiny four-wheeled speed wagons, brought the spectators to the edges of their seats or to their feet. At each turn, the drivers leaned far to the inside so they seemed momentarily about to fall to the tanbark as the glittering wheels beneath them skittered and slid in the bark and the horses trotted faster and ever faster.

Senator Crawford, a flowing-tailed bay gelding owned by George Brandeis and driven by B. B. Tucker, was given first place after trials and retrials and prolonged inspection by the judges. Calumet Armistice, Milky Way Farm entry driven by George Howell, stood in perfect position until a silk-hatted judge strode to his side for the inspection. Then Calumet Armistice turned his head and while the judge inspected him, he inspected the judge. He was given second place. Signal Fashion, also from the Milky Way Farm, and driven by Mark Peak, was third. Ax Moko, driven by his owner, R. C. Flannery, finished fourth. Maide Worthy, a Flannery horse driven by P. L. Putnam, was fifth and Sun Cloud, owned by George J. Peak & Son and driven by Ralph Peak, sixth. The first prize was $300 and a blue ribbon.

Commercial Pair Showing.

Class 55 the Commercial Pair, brought realization to the crowd that a landmark of other days has disappeared. Brilliant in shiny black harness with brass fittings and brass harness chains; pulling large open wagons as finely finished as any automobile, five pairs of heavy-shouldered draft horses pranced into the ring. Their wagons had electric side and tail lamps, everything about the bulky animals, the fittings and the two men on the box, was polished to the nines.

But one pair was the entry of a hay and feed concern and the other four were owned by milk companies. There were no brewery horses.

MANY pre-wedding parties are being given for Miss Ellen Walsh, daughter of Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, 4349 Westminster place, and Robert Curran Corley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Corley, whose marriage will take place Wednesday at 11 a. m., at the St. Louis Cathedral.

Dr. and Mrs. John M. Bradley, 4425 Washington boulevard, entertained at a dinner at their home last night in honor of Miss Walsh and Mr. Corley. Tonight they will be honored at a dinner dance to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Semple and Claude I. Bakewell at the Coronado Hotel. Sunday evening, Miss Eleanor Conant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kimball Conant, 19 Portland place, who will be a bridesmaid at the wedding, will be hostess at a buffet supper. Another bridesmaid, Miss Mary Bolland Taussig, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Taussig, 50 Westmoreland place, will give a supper party at her home following the rehearsal Tuesday night.

Among the parties given this week was a dinner Tuesday, the host and hostess being the prospective bridegroom's sister and brother, Miss Margaret and Frank Corley Jr. The party took place at the Corley home, 4303 McPherson avenue. Tuesday night Miss Walsh's cousins, Mrs. Arthur C. Hiemenz and Mrs. William Goeffrey Kimball, entertained the bridal party at a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiemenz in Ladue lane.

The wedding will be followed by a reception at the home of Miss Walsh's grandmother, Mrs. Julia Maffitt Walsh, 4341 Westminster place.

A new name has been added to the list of the season's debutantes. Miss Mildred Vaughan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clay Vaughan, 7054 Washington boulevard, will be introduced at a tea to be given by her mother in November.

Miss Vaughan, a graduate of Mary Institute, is a senior at Washington University. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, and served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball earlier this month.

MR. AND MRS. EDMUND H. WUERPEL, 7717 Walinca terrace, Clayton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Wuerpel, and Dr. J. Wendell Macleod of Montreal, Canada. The wedding will take place early in the spring.

Miss Wuerpel is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and attended the St. Louis School of Fine Arts at Washington University, Columbia University and Radcliffe College. She has recently resigned her position as assistant curator at the City Art Museum of St. Louis, and is at the present visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward L. Bowles, Wellesley, Mass. Her father is director of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts.

Dr. Macleod is a graduate of Magill University and was a member of the staff of Washington University at Barnes Hospital for the past two years. He has returned to practice medicine in Montreal.

Mrs. Norrie Seller of 1085 Park avenue, New York, and Newport, R. I., announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Daphne Sellar, to W. Radford Bascome Jr. at a tea yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Gordon Hamersley, where Miss Sellar has been staying.

Miss Sellar's father was the late Norrie Sellar, a native of Scotland. She is a niece of Mrs. Harold Brown of Newport; of Lady Camoys of London, and of Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, all of whom are her mother's sisters. Miss Sellar's sisters are Mrs. Kenneth Clinton of this city and Mrs. Frank Veedor of Hewlett, L. I. Her brother, Mr. Norrie Sellar Jr., married Miss Rita Dolan and lives at Unionville, Pa., near Philadelphia. Miss Sellar is a granddaughter of the late Watts Sherman by his first wife, who was a sister of the late Senator George Peabody of Wetmore.

Mr. Bascome is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Radford Bascome of New York, formerly of St. Louis. He attended Trinity School and Columbia University. He is the grandson of the late Western Bascome, British consul at St. Louis for 21 years. His grandmother was the daughter of Major-General Stephen Watts Kearny, a pioneer in the West and first military Governor of California and New Mexico.

Mr. Bascome's great-uncle was Admiral Radford, commander of the U. S. S. Constitution, "Old Ironsides," at the capture of Fort Fisher. He is seventh in descent from Col. Stephanus Van Cortlandt, who was elected Mayor of New York in 1677 and again in 1686.

On his mother's side Mr. Bascome is a descendant of the late David E. Hughes of London, inventor of the first printing telegraph and the microphone now used in radio broadcasting.

He is a member of K Company of the 107th Regiment, and of the Society of Colonial Wars. His family has been traced through 20 generations to the James Kennerlys of England.

Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David D. Metcalfe, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given today by Mrs. Marshall G. Cochran, 5555 Pershing avenue, at Old Barn Inn, St. Albans, Mo.

A group of this season's buds were seated at one large table decorated with autumn flowers. At a smaller table Mrs. Cochran entertained Mrs. Metcalfe, Mrs. Edwin T. Stanard and Mrs. Norman S. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Perry Bascom, 47 Claverach drive, have just returned after spending the summer motoring in the East with their sons, William Richardson and John Bascom. William Richardson Bascom, a graduate of Yale, is in his senior year at Harvard Law School. He will be married following commencement to Miss Jean Ames Hall, daughter of Mrs. George E. Hall of Dedham, Mass. John Bascom is a freshman at Yale this year.

The College Club has announced a new study group to be known as the Socio-Economic Group. The first meeting is scheduled for Friday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Lorine Pickett, chairman, will introduce the general subject for the year's study: "Woman in a Changing World."

Mrs. C. K. Bothwell, 6249 Northwood, has as her guest her sister, Mrs. R. G. Raywood, of Denver.

Miss Elinor Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilbourne Walker, 6253 Southwood, and John H. E. Danner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Danner, 3811 Connecticut avenue, were married at noon today at the home of her parents. The Rev. William E. Crowe read the service before a background of palms, smilax and white chrysanthemums. Because of a recent bereavement in the bride's family, only members of the two families were present at the ceremony and the wedding luncheon which followed.

The bride wore an afternoon gown of ivory lace, made on princesse lines, with bands of mink fur on the dolman sleeves. She wore a tight-fitting turban of brown malines, with brown gloves and slippers, and carried a bouquet of Joanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Harriet Chamberlain, maid of honor and cousin of the bride, was gowned in turquoise blue velvet with matching hat and slippers and carried talisman roses.

George Danner was his brother's best man.

Following their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Danner will make their home at 6531 San Bonita avenue.

Mrs. George Heil, 3112 Allen avenue, and her daughter, Miss Rose Heil, and Miss Catherine Hannigan, 3627 Utah place, are visiting in New York, where they are guests at the Barbizon Plaza.

Maj. and Mrs. John T. Scherrer, 2203 Lawrence street, and their daughters, Mrs. Gordon Hayward Sawyer and Mrs. Maurice d'Autremont of Tucson, Ariz., left a few days ago for Tucson, where they will spend the winter. Maj. and Mrs. Scherrer recently celebrated their sixty-seventh wedding anniversary.

Mrs. James W. Flannery, chairman of the sewing committee of the Catholic Women's League of Our Holy Redeemer Church, in Webster Groves, will be hostess at a tea for league members and their friends Sunday from 3 to 5 p. m., at her home, 101 West Swon avenue. The guests have been invited to view a group of paintings by Fred G. Carpenter and Mildred Bailey Carpenter, loaned by the artists for the occasion. Mrs. Flannery will be assisted by members of her committee.

Noise and Static are sifted out by new Zenith TRIPLE FILTERING

● World-wide reception without swishing, crackling interference. That is what Zenith Triple Filtering is designed to bring you. Like three fine mesh sieves—each removing a portion of the noise and static—Triple Filtering gives you a clear picture of the program you are listening to.

Zenith Triple Filtering is the result of ten years of research in short wave reception. In 1925 with Zenith transmitting and receiving equipment, a conversation was carried on halfway around the world—from the S. S. Peary, within 11° of the North Pole to the U. S. S. Seattle, Flagship of the Pacific Fleet, off the coast of Tasmania. As a result, Zenith in 1925 built the first commercial standard and short wave receiving set! Now in 1934 Zenith offers a startling advance in radio performance—Triple Filtered Reception.

There are nineteen beautiful table models and consoles in the Zenith line priced from $29.95 to the 25 tube Zenith Stratosphere at $750.00. Split-second tuning makes it easy to log and relocate foreign stations. All Zenith models are on display at leading radio stores.

PEANUT DEFINED 11 WAYS IN NEW OFFICIAL BULLETIN

It Is Issued to Show How Processing Tax, Effective Oct. 1, Is to Be Levied.

In a bulletin printed at considerable cost, the Department of Agriculture undertakes to explain to farmers, wholesalers and collectors of internal revenue just what a peanut is, so that all may know how to pay and assess the new processing tax on peanuts which went into effect Oct. 1.

The bulletin was received today at the Federal Building and contains 11 precise definitions. So that the processor may know whether he must pay the 1.16 cents a pound tax on roasted clean peanuts, it explains for him: "Roasted clean peanuts are clean peanuts which have been roasted."

It also tells manufacturers that peanut butter (tax 1.73 cents a pound) is "the product of grinding roasted shelled peanuts with salt" and that "peanut confections and bakery goods are confections and bakery goods which contain peanuts."

The next definition is also of indirect benefit to the consumer, so that he, too, may know that "salted peanuts are shelled peanuts which have been cooked and to which salt has been added."

Other definitions are: "Clean peanuts are peanuts in the shell which have been cleaned" and "roasted shelled peanuts are blanched or shelled peanuts which have been roasted."

FUNERAL OF JACK BRITT TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Services Arranged in the Morning at 3300 State Street, in East St. Louis.

Funeral services for Jack Britt, former Shelton gang leader, who died of heart disease Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis, will be held tomorrow morning at the Burke undertaking establishment, 3300 State street, East St. Louis.

Britt, who was 41 years old, was arrested frequently, but never convicted. He was tried twice on a charge of participating in the $2,500,000 holdup of the Lincoln National Bank at Lincoln, Neb., in September, 1930, but both juries disagreed and the charge was dropped.

Lately Britt had been arrested with the Sheltons on vagrancy charges, but these were dismissed after the Illinois Supreme Court had knocked out the "bad reputation" statute on which they were based.

Police Commissioner Lauman of East St. Louis said he understood Britt had broken with the Sheltons about nine months ago. Britt insisted, the last time he was arrested, that he was "going straight."

When he entered the hospital Monday, Britt gave his address as 2912½ Summit avenue, East St. Louis. His widow survives.

WIDOW AND DIVORCED WIFE TO SHARE IN TRUST FUND

In Addition Second Mrs. Allen Hall Gets $20,000 Under Pre-Nuptial Agreement.

The will of Allen Hall, retired coal estate dealer, who died Oct. 3, provides for payment of $20,000 to his widow, Mrs. Isabelle Hall. This amount is left to her under an antenuptial agreement, the will sets forth.

The remainder of the estate, value of which was not given, is left in two equal trust funds, the income from one to be shared by Mr. Hall's widow and his divorced wife, Mrs. Arabella Hall, while the income from the second trust is to be shared by his daughter, Mrs. A. K. McKinney Jr., and his sons, Allen Hall and George D. Hall. Mr. Hall lived at 5182 Raymond avenue. His will was filed yesterday, naming George R. Lockwood and the St. Louis Union Trust Co. executors.

260 ST. LOUISANS IN NAVAL RESERVE TO MAKE CRUISE

Training Trip to Panama Canal to Be Made on U. S. S. Wyoming; They Sail Sunday.

Members of the Seventh Battalion, United States Naval Reserve—comprising 260 St. Louisans—will leave here Saturday night by train for New Orleans where on Sunday they will embark on a two-week training cruise to the Panama Canal and return. The cruise will be made on the U. S. S. Wyoming.

One of the features of the trip, according to Lieutenant-Commander W. F. Veatch, battalion commander, will be training in short range naval warfare. These maneuvers will take place in the Gulf of Mexico on the return voyage.

Although the battalion has been making training cruises for the last eight years, this will be the first one at sea. Previous cruises have been on the Great Lakes.

The battalion is composed of four divisions, two engineering units and two deck divisions. It will be back in St. Louis Oct. 28.

COAST-TO-COAST RAILWAY RUN

Streamline Train to Attempt to Cross U. S. in 62 Hours.

DENVER, Oct. 11.—A six-car streamline passenger train will travel from Los Angeles to New York this month on a schedule of 62 hours, 24 hours under regular schedules, and 12 hours under the transcontinental railroad record.

The Union Pacific train yesterday underwent tests on the main line west of Cheyenne, Wyo. It is of the Diesel motor type. The schedule allows 44 hours for the 2298 miles between Los Angeles and Chicago, and 17 hours and 45 minutes from Chicago to New York over 960 miles of New York Central tracks. The time over the latter stretch is about that of the fastest regular train.

STATE W. C. T. U. ELECTION

Mrs. Nelle G. Burger Again Is Chosen President.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Nelle G. Burger of Springfield was re-elected president of the Missouri branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which ended its annual convention here last night. She already has served for 21 terms. All other officers were re-elected except Mrs. Emma C. Pitzer, Louisiana, who asked to retire as secretary, after serving since 1913. She was succeeded by Mrs. James Peterson of Kansas City. Delegates selected Kansas City as the meeting place for 1935.

Contributions of $2775, mostly from St. Louis, to the educational fund to be raised this year, were announced. County quotas are to be set up for the fund, which is for use in an educational campaign in schools and colleges.

HEADS NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

Howard Shirley Palmer Elected President of Line.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Howard Shirley Palmer was elected president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad yesterday. He is the first New Englander to hold that position since the days of Charles Mellen of Lowell, Mass., who was president from 1903 to 1913.

During his summer vacations at his home in East Sumner, Me., where he was born in 1885, Palmer studied telegraphy in his boyhood and he worked at that and in the accounting department of what is now the Maine Central, until he joined the New Haven in 1907. He succeeds as president John J. Reiley, who resigned, effective Nov. 1, to become chairman of the Association of American Railroads.

JUDGE WITHHOLDS DECISION ON $20,000 SKOURAS FUND

Suit Seeks Its Distribution Among Ex-Employes of Theatrical Firm.

Circuit Judge Green took under advisement yesterday the suit to determine the status and beneficiaries of a $20,962 fund created in 1927 by the Skouras Brothers' Enterprises, Inc., and the St. Louis Amusement Co. for the benefit of their non-union employes.

The fund was accumulated from a small service charge on passes issued to the theaters controlled by Charles P. Skouras from August, 1927, until April 1, 1932, when the two companies changed management. Fred J. Laurent, former auditor of concerns, testified it was his understanding the fund was for the benefit of the non-union employes and for the support of a gymnasium in the Ambassador Theater Building. However on several instances, he said, relief was given to union employes from the fund.

The suit was brought by Thornton W. Sargent Jr., a former employe in the advertising department of the companies, who contended that the fund should be distributed among the unorganized employes who were working during the period the fund was operative. According to his attorney, about 500 former employes, most of them clerical workers, would be entitled to a share if the fund were distributed.

Additions to the fund ceased after the management of the theaters changed hands. Firms later in control have never made claim to the fund.

STOP THAT COLD THE FIRST DAY!

A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Trust to no makeshift methods. A cold, being an internal infection calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute on any pretext.

ST. LOUIS U. CONVOCATION

The Rev. Robert S. Johnston to Celebrate Mass in College Church.

At the annual convocation of St. Louis University, the mass of the Holy Ghost will be celebrated at St. Francis Xavier Church, Grand and Lindell boulevards, at 8:45 a. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Robert S. Johnston, S. J., president of the university, will be the celebrant.

Following the service, students will assemble at the gymnasium for the first all-university meeting of the year. Father Johnston will make an address of welcome and the university student band will play.

Farmer Sentenced as Robber.

WELLINGTON, Kan., Oct. 11.—Ira Brackett, tenant on the farm near Mannford, Ok., where officers have dug up eight bank safes stolen in Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, pleaded guilty to charges of second degree burglary and grand larceny in District Court here yesterday and was sentenced to from five to 10 years for the one offense and not more than five years on the other.

USE POWDER

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

- 100% Cleansing Properties
  Twice that of tooth paste
- Contains No Grit or Pumice
  Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
- Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

POWDER CLEANS AND WHITENS TEETH—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

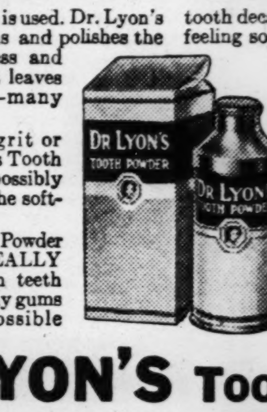
As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.



Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

THE NEW 5-TON GENERAL MOTORS TRUCK

$1,000 less than the average 5-ton truck

Business men with 5-ton loads to haul will want to see, inspect and learn the facts about this big, husky money-maker. They can put it to work with full assurance that it will save time and save money, day after day, year in and year out.

Priced $1000 lower than the average price of all other leading 5-ton trucks, this modern General Motors truck is truly an exceptional value. It has a GMC valve-in-head engine, of course . . . develops 94 horsepower and 230 ft. lbs. of torque.

Valve seat inserts are of stellite, the carburetor is of the downdraft type, the rugged frame is 9" deep, the booster brakes have an unusually large braking area, and the brake drums are of cast nickel iron for greater economy. Add to these features a score of others, including full-floating rear axle, needle bearing universals and rugged spoksteel wheels—and the proof of this truck's overwhelming value is crystal-clear.

Whatever your hauling needs may be, there's a General Motors truck that fits exactly—one that's "engineered for the job" and therefore a more efficient worker and earner. May we bring you additional facts?

CONGRESSMAN AT DAUGHTER'S DEBUT AS NIGHT CLUB SINGER

Mrs. Evelyn Wadsworth Symington's Songs Include "A Good Man Is Hard to Find."

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Evelyn Wadsworth Symington of Park avenue made her debut early today as a singer in a night club. She is the daughter of Congressman James W. Wadsworth, the granddaughter of the late John Hay, Theodore Roosevelt's Secretary of State, and the wife of W. Stuart Symington.

Mrs. Symington sang "The Very Thought of You," "I'll Be Tired of You," "A Good Man Is Hard to Find," and "All I Do Is Dream of You."

At little tables arranged in the setting of a Paris square, sat her approving husband, her Whitney cousins, and other society people. Wadsworth was there from Washington.

GABRIEL FERRAND MEMORIAL SERVICE AT WASHINGTON U.

Chancellor George R. Throop Praises Late Head of School of Architecture.

A memorial service for Gabriel Ferrand, head of the Washington University School of Architecture, who died Sept. 28, was held yesterday in the library of Givens Hall, the architectural school building.

Chancellor George R. Throop who presided, said in part: "We are met this afternoon to express our respect for a friend and colleague who has been suddenly taken from us. Our service is to be simple and sincere, as his life was direct and genuine. Professor Ferrand was a man of enthusiasm, of energy, and of ideas. We are the richer for his stay and the poorer for his going.

"The School of Architecture, of which we are justly proud, came to be identified with him and grew from and through him to its present rank. He was the type of man who is seldom found—an artist in the higher sense, a vigorous and stimulating critic, a beloved and helpful friend, an irreplaceable teacher, a helpful counselor, and sympathetic guide. A dozen men like this will make a distinguished university."

Prof. Ferrand was head of the School of Architecture for 18 years.

LUCKY GIRL

MRS. STRONG AND DAUGHTER, NANCY

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brought relief at once," says Mrs. A. G. Strong of 34-47 80th St., Jackson Heights, N.Y.

Her mother felt that family physicians and child specialists, and the hospitals must be right. A simple test that proves they are.

If anyone in your family is occasionally sluggish or constipated; especially any child, you should know this medical truth:

You cannot get safe relief with any medicine if you cannot regulate the dose. And to regulate dosage, you should have a liquid laxative. With a liquid laxative, you can gradually reduce the dose. And that is the secret of safe relief from a sluggish, constipated condition.

Why Doctors Use Liquid Laxatives

A liquid laxative can be measured. Its action can be thus controlled. If properly made, of natural laxative elements like senna and cascara, it forms no habit—even in the youngest child. And such a laxative will help the bowels to help themselves, not make matters worse.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative containing herbs, active senna, and cascara, and is the one widely used. You can always obtain it at any drugstore. Why not make the "liquid test" which has attracted so much attention of late? It helps nearly everyone who tries it. It may make you feel better than you have in a long time.

If you will risk sixty cents to discover the natural, comfortable action of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, we believe bowel worries will be over for your household.

FIRMIN DESLOGE HOSPITAL HAS 55 PCT. FREE PATIENTS

Nearly 55 per cent of the 5697 patients cared for at the Firmin Desloge Hospital since its opening in February, 1933, have been received as free patients at a cost of $165,000 to the institution, the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, chairman of the board of St. Louis University Hospitals, said yesterday in a talk over radio station KWK.

Forty per cent of the remaining patients, he said, paid only from 8 to 60 per cent of the hospital's expense for their care. During the last 20 months there have been 160,000 treatments, he stated, which, by a modest estimate, would have cost $120,000. Only one-sixth of this amount has been returned to the hospital in the form of fees, he added, indicating the hospital is contributing approximately $17,500 a month for its out-patient service.

This was made possible, in part, he said, through the monthly allowance from the United Relief Fund, which has contributed about 30 per cent of the costs. Voluntary services of the Sisters of St. Mary, St. Louis University, and private subscriptions have made up the remainder of the expense.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE 50 TODAY, BUT SHE'D RATHER FORGET IT

Birthday Cake to Be Cut at Teatime So Grandchildren Can Blow Out Candles.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—This is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's fiftieth birthday, but Sistie and Buzzie Dall are much more excited over it than is the President's wife.

So that the grandchildren might blow out the candles on the birthday cake, the celebration was set for teatime instead of dinner. Mrs. Roosevelt would not permit much festivity. Her theory is: "The more you forget your birthday, as you grow older, the younger you stay."

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, who celebrated her eightieth birthday a few weeks ago, was expected for tea. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, who live near by in Virginia, were to call.

Mrs. Roosevelt's friends sent flowers, telegrams and gifts.

East St. Louis Fire Hose Bid.

A low bid of $1640 for 2000 feet of fire hose was made by the Sondag-Reese Hardware Co., East St. Louis, when 10 bids were opened by the East St. Louis City Council yesterday. Bids were made on various types of hose and no award has yet been made. The American La-France Corp. submitted low bid of $1750 for a new pumping engine. Another bid of $2585 was received from the General Fire Truck Corp.

STOCK MARKET RANGES HIGHER IN EARLY TRADE

Upward Movement of Previous Session Is Actively Resumed — Homestake Mining Has 15-Point Rise

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Most financial markets apparently experienced mild inflationary thrills today, and prices, generally, continued their forward push begun on Wednesday, following the President's remarks on higher price levels.

Stocks enjoyed a lively first hour, moving at the rate of around 2,000,000 shares a day, with gains of fractions to a point or more. The activity tapered off later, however, when moderate profit-taking appeared. Some traders showed an inclination to even up commitments for the Columbus day holiday tomorrow, when the leading markets will be closed.

Some bonds developed strength, but U. S. Government securities also firmed, despite the revival of inflation sentiment. Grains and cotton improved, along with rubber. The dollar lost ground in terms of the European gold currencies, but was a little higher against sterling.

In the trading period up to early afternoon, shares of Homestake Mining jumped 15 points on a single transfer, while U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound and American Smelting were up 1 to around 3. McCrory Stores gained more than 4 and Union Pacific was 2 higher. Others, fractionally to a point or so firmer, included U. S. Steel, Chrysler, du Pont, Consolidated Gas, Case, Loew's, Columbian Carbon, Macy, Sears-Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe and New York Central.

News of the Day.

Coincident with a sharp advance in London, foreign bar silver in New York was raised 2½ cents an ounce to 53⅝ cents, another new high since 1929, and one of the most pronounced gains for a single day on record.

The markets appeared to be viewing the potentialities of the European flare-up with little concern and to be concentrating virtually all attention upon the domestic scene.

Word from Washington that Prof. Warren, who was active in advising the administration several months ago on its gold price-fixing program, was a luncheon guest of the President, gave rise to further conjectures in the financial district regarding the possibility of some new step being taken in relation to the monetary policy.

Considerable interest was expressed in the announcement that the floating supply of U. S. Steel common stock on Sept. 30 totaled 1,656,109 shares, or a decline of 60,360 from the aggregate of June 30 last. In some quarters this was seen as an indication of recent liquidation of speculative holdings in the hands of brokers. In other words, it was thought the decrease in the supply may have been the result of the stock being withdrawn from brokerage offices and placed "in the box" for long-term holding.

Foreign Bank Statements.

While routine trade news was overshadowed by the Washington reports that President Roosevelt wanted a higher price level, Wall Street continued to scan the horizon closely for indications of new vitality in business.

Aside from the Washington news, inflationary sentiment was stimulated by a further advance in the open market price for gold in London. It rose to 143 shillings three pence, a record, compared with 142 shillings six pence yesterday.

In the face of recent softness in the French franc as compared with the dollar, gold reserves of the Bank of France continued their increase, uninterrupted for many weeks. The latest statement of the Bank of France shows a further gain of 66,000,000 francs, reflecting in part the strength of the franc against sterling.

The British pound opened ⅞ of a cent lower at $4.89⅛. Francs were up *01 of a cent at 6.43 cents.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Helped by American news, prices on the stock exchange ruled cheerful today. Business in transatlantic issues and oil shares broadened at rising prices. Giltedge securities and industrials were firmer, while German bonds advanced 2 to 3 points on the announcement that the interest on the Dawes Loan would be paid. Gold Mining shares benefited on the record high price for bar gold, and Argentine rails were also firm on dividend anticipations. The market closed firmer.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Prices on the Bourse improved today after the shock of King Alexander's assassination. The closing was strong.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Prices on the Boerse today recovered about a point but lost their gains at the close.

FIVE PER CENT CUT IN CORN CROP FIGURES

Spring Wheat Estimate Raised 3,700,000 Bushels in September.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—An increase of 3,700,000 bushels for the month in estimated spring wheat production and a 5 per cent decrease in the corn crop were reported in the Oct. 1 forecast of the Department of Agriculture.

The corn crop was estimated at 1,416,772,000 bushels, about 56 per cent of average. In addition the crop reporting board declared that "the quantity of corn actually harvested as grain is now expected to be not much more than half the quantity husked last year."

Total wheat production was placed at 496,982,000 bushels, a slight increase since the Sept. 1 report, but, due to drouth and other factors below last year's 528,000,000 bushels and a five-year average of 886,000,000 bushels.

The estimate of the oats crop was about the same as on Sept. 1. Barley and grain sorghum production were reduced slightly, and estimates of hay production were increased because of efforts to save late crops. Pastures and ranges, notwithstanding improvement during September in Southwestern, Central and Eastern states were still the poorest on record for Oct. 1.

Apples, pears and grapes received slight help by rains in Central and Eastern states, the crops reporting board said, adding: "But it is increasingly evident that many of the Northeastern fruit trees will never recover from the injuries received last winter."

The feed grain supply continued to be reported the shortest in many years. The total quantity of grain and mill feeds in sight and available for feeding is only about 60 per cent of the 1924-32 average.

"In the West, the drouth has continued unbroken," the report said. The area still experiencing dry conditions includes Northwestern Minnesota, North Dakota, the western two-thirds of South Dakota, the western counties of Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma, northern, central and western Texas, and all states from that line westward to the Pacific Coast.

"In most of this area, except parts of Texas, Arizona and the Pacific Coast, it is now too late to expect grass on the ranges to make much further growth this fall." With the exception of the north coast of California, Western Oregon, Washington, Northern Idaho and Western Montana, the entire area faces an "acute shortage" of winter feed, the report said.

Pastures, potatoes and cabbage in the area of central corn belt eastward improved remarkably during September as result of good rains and the pasture improvement served to lessen the seasonal decrease in milk production. The rains, however, caused considerable local damage to corn, shocked fodder and late hay crops.

The potato crop, instead of being the 337,000,000 bushels expected a month ago was forecast as close to 362,000,000 bushels, about the average production.

Report in Detail.

Indicated wheat production has crept up slightly each month, despite drouth conditions, 484,000,000 bushels being indicated July 1, with 491,000,000 bushels indicated in August and 493,000,000 bushels in September. But production this year is under last year, when 528,000,000 bushels were produced, and far below the five-year average for the years 1927-31, when production was 886,000,000 bushels.

Corn indications have shown the effects of the drouth, dropping from 2,113,000,000 bushels in July, when the first production forecast was issued, to 1,607,000,000 bushels in August and 1,485,000,000 bushels in September. Production last year was 2,344,000,000 bushels, while the 1927-31 average production was 2,516,000,000 bushels.

The winter wheat crop this year is 401,000,000 bushels, compared with 352,000,000 bushels last year and 632,000,000 bushels, the 1927-31 average.

Production of all spring wheat this year, according to the department's preliminary estimate, will be 94,460,000 bushels, compared with 89,400,000 bushels in July, 90,400,000 bushels in August and 92,800,00 bushels in September. Last year's production, 1927-31 average production was 254,000,000 bushels.

Included in the spring wheat production is 5,952,000 bushels of durum wheat, compared with 6,100,000 bushels a month ago, 16,000,000 bushels last year and 61,000,000 bushels the five-year average, and 90,508,000 bushels of other spring wheat, compared with 86,700,000 bushels a month ago, 160,000,000 bushels last year and 193,000,000 bushels the five-year average.

Oats production this year is 545,938,000 bushels, compared with 568,000,000 bushels indicated in July, 545,000,000 bushels in August, 546,000,000 bushels in September, 732,000,000 bushels produced last year and 1,187,000,000 bushels the five-year average.

The condition of Oct. 1 of the various crops was:

COTTON MARKET HIGHER IN THE EARLY TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 9 higher on steady Liverpool cables and foreign buying.

Oct. opened 12.12c; Dec., 12.24c; Jan., 12.30c; March, 12.40c; May, 12.45c; July, 12.49c.

Trading was quite active at the start and in addition to the foreign buying and covering, there appeared to be overnight buying orders in the hands of commission houses attracted by the Washington news and action of prices here yesterday.

December sold up to 12.30 right after the call and March to 12.49, making net advances of 8 to 11 points and a recovery of about 35 to 40 points from yesterday's low levels. This met some Southern selling and realizing, but it was absorbed by continued trade and commission house buying and prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best before session had gone far.

There was further comment on the administration's attitude with reference to commodity prices in connection with the early buying. The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates domestic consumption for the month of September at 280,000 bales compared with 421,000 in August and 499,000 in September last year, but small figures for last month have been expected in view of the labor troubles in the textile industry.

The demand from shorts and commission house or trade sources was supplemented by some price fixing during the middle of the morning with the advance extending to 12.34 for December and 12.55 for May or about 10 to 17 points above yesterday's closing quotations. The firmness of the wheat and stock markets were contributing factors on the upturn and while business tapered off somewhat later in the morning prices at midday wre steady within 3 or 4 points of th best.

Crushed Cottonseed Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Cottonseed crushed in the two-month period, Aug. 1 to Sept. 30, was reported today by the Census Bureau to have totaled 638,042 tons, compared with 755,992 tons in the same period a year ago, and cottonseed on hand at mills Sept. 30 was 803,236 tons, compared with 591.612 tons a year ago.

Cottonseed products manufactured in the two-month period and on hand Sept. 30 were reported as follows:

Crude oil produced, 193,292,258 pounds, compared with 230,760,137 for the same period a year ago, and on hand Sept. 30, 74,034,028 pounds, compared with 119,468,934 a year ago.

Refined oil produced, 129,572,038 pounds compared with 135,732,784, and on hand, 450,011,959 pounds, compared with 623,650,437.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Silver and gold advanced to new highs today as the dollar and the British pound declined together. Foreign fears of dollar inflation appeared to be stimulated by President Roosevelt's talk about prices at his press conference yesterday.

The pound sank to record lows in terms of gold but lost only ¼ of a cent in New York at $4.89¾ in fortpart day against French francs, the pound dropped to 73.75, off 31 centimes.

The London gold price soared 9 pence to 143 shillings 3 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $35.04), a new peak.

Silver in London jumped 1⅛ pence to 24½ pence, a fresh record since 1929. The New York price kept pace with a rise of 2½ cents at 53⅝ cents. Far Eastern silver currencies were marked up around 1½ cents at one time for Shanghai and Hongkong to new highs for the year.

French francs gained .02 of a cent in New York to 6.64 cents in same period, again above parity.

December wheat opened at $1.00½ and May $1.00½, both up ⅝c.

The Government crop report was issued after close last night.

Local wheat receipts which were 30,000 bu., compared with 18,000 a week ago and holiday a year ago, included 13 cars local and 7 through. Corn receipts which were 19,500 bu., compared with 42,000 a week ago, included 8 cars local and 5 through. Oats receipts which were 22,000 bu. compared with 16,000 a week ago included 1 car local and 10 through. Hay receipts were 4 cars through.

SHARP GAIN EARLY IN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Sharp new upturns in grain values took place early today. The United States Government crop report showed a billion bushels less corn available than a year ago. It was regarded as placing the United States on a deficit basis.

Opening ½ to 1 cent up, December new $1.00⅛@1.00⅜, wheat quickly rose further. Corn started at ⅞@1⅜c gain, December new 76¾@77c, and subsequently an additional upturn.

Enlargement of trade volume in all grains was a noticeable feature, with sentiment more friendly to the buying side than has been the case for some time past.

For the first time since Oct. 2 wheat went above $1.

Pronounced strength of foreign market received particular attention, with notice taken from Rosario, Argentina, reporting geenral light frost. Rosario is in the center of the Argentine Northern wheat belt and the crop in that territory less than 30 days from harvest.

Another bullish factor was prospective continued drouth through parts of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Besides, a big falling off in the Government estimate of domestic farm reserve stocks of wheat was deemed specially significant.

Corn and oats traders emphasized assertions that only two buhels of corn were shown to be available this season where a year ago there were three.

Despite hog market declines, provisions went higher with grain.

Wheat was up over 2c after noon.

BONDS SHOW FIRM TONE IN FORENOON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Bond prices displayed a firm tone early today, and most sections of the list made good progress on the upside. Industrials alone showed some hesitancy.

U. S. Treasury obligations showed gains running up to nearly half a point. The market appeared unaffected by some revival of inflationary sentiment following President Roosevelt's discussion of prices at yesterday's press conference.

Railroad bonds were the leaders in the corporate list. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Missouri Pacific 5s and Nickel Plate 4½s gained around a point each, while St. Paul 5s, Erie 5s, New York Central 5s, Southern Pacific 4½s and Southern Railways 4s improved fractionally.

Among utilities, American & Foreign Power 5s and International Telephone 5s were strong, and American Telephone 5s and Consolidated Gas 5½s worked a little higher. United Drug 5s, Bethlehem Steel 5s and Goodyear 5s edged higher, but Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s and National Dairy 5¼s eased.

Foreign Government obligations also were firm, with Austria 7s, Brazil 6½s and German 7s up a point each.

CURB STARTS OUT RAPIDLY BUT SLOWS UP SOME

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Speculative sentiment was considerably improved on the Curb Exchange early today and active demand for a wide variety of stocks representing every group on the board sent prices higher. Trading was at a rapid pace during the first hour but showed signs of tapering off somewhat after the initial flurry.

The so-called specialties moved in the widest range, but as usual, the turnover in these issues was small compared with other groups. Celanese preferred made an extreme advance of 6½ points, Standard Cap and Seal and Aluminum Co. were two or three higher and gains of one to two were shown by such issues as Gulf Oil, New Jersey Zinc, Parke Davis, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Rubberoid.

TOBACCO CROP ESTIMATES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture today forecast a tobacco crop this year of 1,091,764,000 pounds, an increase of 13,647,000 pounds over the September estimate.

The forecast for flue-cured production went up nearly 10,000,000 pounds over the September forecast to an estimate of 535,483,000 pounds. Last year's crop of flue-cured was 737,703,000 pounds.

The burley estimate also rose more than 3,000,000 pounds to 297,559,000 pounds, as compared with the 1933 burley crop of 382,033,000 pounds. The forecast for other light air cured types was 24,480,000 pounds.

The indicated yield of cigar filler tobacco, 36,155,000 pounds, was more than 1,000,000 pounds under last month's estimate but more than the 1933 crop. The estimate for cigar wrapper production 6,983,000 pounds, was the same as the September forecast.

Fire-cured production, estimated last month at 119,252,000 pounds, was forecast to reach 121,628,000 pounds. Last year's fire-cured crop totaled 133,353,000 pounds.

The report indicated the following yields in the principal tobacco-producing states, compared with the 1933 crops:

Pennsylvania, 23,160,000 pounds in 1934, 25,330 pounds in 1933.

Ohio—22,852,000 and 25,015,000.

Indiana—7,910,000 and 10,585,000.

Wisconsin—13,335,000 and 16,023,000.

Missouri—3,960,000 and 7,412,000.

Virginia—86,313,000 and 97,046,000.

North Carolina—404,225,000 and 537,970,000.

South Carolina—57,720,000 and 88,580,000.

Kentucky—284,664,000 and 330,715,000.

Tennessee—103,786,000 and 133,438,000.

Rise in Export Value of Wheat.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—The sharp rise in the export value of wheat in August, when it reached $12,868,000, was more than maintained in September, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports. The quantity exported in September was 17,588,359 bushels and the value $15,323,000.

The average price in September was 87.1 cents as against 75.9 cents last year. During the first six months of the current fiscal year the export value was $68,937,000 compared with $60,279,000 last year, a gain of about $8,500,000, the bureau states.

HOG MARKET LOWER AT NATIONAL YARDS

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Oct. 11.—Receipts estimated: Cattle 2800, calves, 1200; hogs, 8000; sheep †1200; horses and mules 250. †Excludes 700 Government sheep.

Hogs—While market receipts were of light proportions, here and elsewhere, buyers weer determined to secure further price concessions today and opening hog trade was slow. Receipts were estimated at 8000 head, of which 600 head were on direct billing. Holdovers, in first hands, were moderate. At 10 leading markets receipts were estimated at 62,085 head, against 52,684 head a week ago, and 47,828 head a year ago.

The late hog market was 10@15c lower than early. Packers bought desirable weights at $5.70@5.85. Clearance good. Bulk of day's sales, $5.70@6.

The dressed trade was steady to higher in the East today, but live material was lower at most terminals. Opening trade here was slow at rates mostly 10 to 15c lower than yesterday's average, with shippers and butchers taking most good to choice 190-pound and up material at $5.90@6; latter figure top. Droves of 170 to 180 pound weights were $5.75@5.85. Packers were idle.

Pigs and light lights ranged from 15 to 25c lower, with 130 to 140s, $4.75@5.15; 140 to 150s, $5@5.35; 150 to 160s, $5.25@5.65, with some 160s at $5.50. No early sales were noted on light material.

Initial sales of packing sows were $4.90@5 for rates 10 to 15c lowe rthan yesterdays' best time. Bids were made as low sa $4.75.

Sheep—City butchers bought a few choice lambs at $6.75 today for steady rates. Nothing else was done early at the local sheep house. Receipts were estimated at 1200 head for a light run.

In the late sheep market best lambs were strong to 10c higher. Packers and shippers took bulk at $6.75. Light lambs were steady. Cull and medium lambs were unchanged at $3.50@5 and fat sheep steady at $2.50 down. Clearance good.

Quotations—Good to choice lambs, $6.25@7; medium to good, $4.25@6; culls and plain, $3.50@4; fat sheep, $2.50 down.

Uneven results were obtained in steers today, some sales figuring around steady and others showing weak to 15c reduced rates. Light mixed yearlings and heifers did not show any particular change and cows were also in line with the previous day. Bulls, however, again displayed a heavy tone. Veal calves duplicated yesterday's top of $7.25.

The late cattle market was unchanged from early.

Native beef steers bulked at $5.50 to $8, light mixed yearlings and heifers $4 to $6, beef cows $2.75 to $3.50, canner and cutter cows $1.50 to $2.40 and bologna bulls $2.25 to $3.

Receipts of both cattle and calves were moderate.

HORSES AND MULES—There is a virtual clearance of horses and mules out of first hands. The run totaled nearly 1000 head and average prices figured lower than the previous week.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $110@140; medium to good draft, $85@100; good to choice chunks, $90@115; smooth-mouthed chunks, $60@80; young farm mares, $80@110; Southern mares, $50@80; small cheap horses, $30@50.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Previous Government predictions that the 1934 flax crop would be the lowest in history were further substantiated by Department of Agriculture crop forecasts as of Oct. 1. The yield was estimated at 5,228,000 bushels compared with an average production of 18,664,000 bushels for the five years between 1927 and 1931. The Sept. 1 estimate was 5,253,000 bushels and the 1933 crop 6,806,000 bushels.

SILVER TOP FOR 5 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Silver spurted 1⅛ pence to 24½ pence an ounce today, to reach the highest price in five years.

The rise, brokers said, was caused by excessive buying by China with few sellers. It was pointed out that China sold freely when the price was around 20 pence, but lately has been inclined to buy on a rising market, and now has sent large purchasing orders.

Speculators also were operating today but it was not known whether American authorities had resumed support of the market, although one authority said the United States started the ball rolling.

MOTORIST ADMITS DRIVING WHILE DRUNK, FINED $300

Had Auto on Wrong Side of Street; Hit Pedestrian; Fled From Patrolman.

Eddie Maull, 42-year-old waiter of Eureka, Mo., was fined $300 by Police Judge Vest today on his plea of guilty to a charge of drunken driving.

Maull was arrested Sept. 22, when he was driving west on the wrong side of Delmar boulevard near Sixth street. He stopped when a patrolman caught up with him. Then he backed up, hit a pedestrian, started forward, and led the patrolman a circuitous chase through the downtown streets before he was caught again.

E. ST. LOUIS HOLDUP SENTENCE

Third Man in Group Gets Term in State Prison.

Albert Brown, 24-year-old laborer of 828 North Twenty-fifth street, East St. Louis, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the State Penitentiary by City Judge Cook of East St. Louis yesterday when he pleaded guilty of robbery. Arrested Aug. 21, Brown and two companions confessed committing four holdups in which $184 was stolen. His associates have already been sentenced on guilty pleas.

Also sentenced yesterday was Normal McNamee, a Negro, who received a term of two to five years on a plea of guilty of assault to commit robbery.

The St. Louis Council of the Standard Bearers will hold its annual dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at Maple Avenue Methodist Church, Maple and Belt avenues. Miss Erma Taylor, Hirosaki, Japan, will speak.

ENGINEER SURVEYS ST. LOUIS MARKET FOR NATURAL GAS

Agent of Frank P. Parish, Pipe Line Promoter, Seeks to Learn How Much Could Be Sold.

A survey to determine the probable market in St. Louis for straight natural gas, if it can be obtained at low rates, was started today by Frank P. Fisher, an engineer specializing in natural gas production and distribution.

The survey is being made for Frank P. Parish, president of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. which now is in receivership. Parish is trying to find a market for the huge quantity of gas capable of being delivered by the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., of which Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. is one of the principal owners.

Fisher said his survey would include both the industrial and household markets and that in connection with it he would work out a possible rate schedule based on the cost of piping gas to St. Louis from the Texas fields. He said he was of the opinion the rates would be materially lower than St. Louisans now pay for a mixture of manufactured and natural gas.

The Panhandle-Eastern pipe line crosses the northern part of the State and comes within 68 miles of St. Louis. Parish proposes to build a connecting pipe line to bring the gas into St. Louis.

Originally, the Panhandle-Eastern line was to go to Indianapolis and possibly to Detroit. Financial difficulties and objections of rival public utility corporations caused the line to be stopped at the Indiana State line, and now only a small part of its available gas is being sold. Parish has asserted that if the available markets were served, particularly St. Louis, the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. would be restored to healthy financial condition.

In a special report to the Natural Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen last winter, the City Law Department commented on the probable increase in the use of gas for house heating in St. Louis if natural gas were available at rates as low as prevail in many smaller cities of Missouri, including Kansas City. Although the Kansas City rate for house heating is about one-third less than in St. Louis, the possibility of obtaining still lower rates there by taking gas from the Panhandle-Eastern pipe line has been discussed.

CHARLES EDWARD MARSKE DIES

Head of Produce Company, Ill Six Months, Succumbs at 57.

Charles Edward Marske, president of the Marske Produce Co., died yesterday at his home, 4402 Strodtman place, after an illness of six months. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Marske had been in the produce business in St. Louis for more than 35 years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bertha Marske; two sons, Clifford and Charles Marske; three daughters, Mrs. Maude Wessling, Mrs. Dorothy Cross and Mrs. Mildred Horn. The funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the William F. Paschedag Chapel, 2825 North Grand boulevard, with burial in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Injured in Police Station Cell.

Frank Hubbard, 18-year-old Ellsinore (Mo.) youth, suffered a spinal injury when he rolled off a bunk in the holdover at Police Headquarters last night. He was arrested last week on a petty larceny charge.

MORE VOTE FRAUD EVIDENCE TO THE GRAND JURY TODAY

Complaints of Honest Election Committee Will Be Presented by Assistant Prosecutor Ferris.

Election fraud evidence prepared by the Non-Partisan Honest Election Committee will be presented to the grand jury today by First Assistant Circuit Attorney Ferris. He declined to discuss the nature of the evidence or to state in which wards irregularities are charged.

Similar complaints from other sources were presented to the grand jury last Tuesday.

The Honest Election Committee recently examined books at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners to determine how many judges and clerks of election had been replaced during the last two years and the reason for dismissals. The work is being directed by Miss Emma Bobb, former chairman of the Election Board, now secretary of the Honest Election Committee.

Drugs, One Billion Tons.
It's Growing Smaller.
The King's Body Goes Home.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1934.)

THIS is pharmacy week in the United States, or to most of us "drug store week," devoted to thousands of useful merchants who primarily dispense drugs, helping doctors fight disease. The public safety depends on the druggist's accuracy.

Accustomed to buying drugs in tiny packages, by the grain, you will learn with amazement that Death Valley, its hot surface several hundred feet below sea level, 200 miles long, 30 to 40 miles wide, one of the most barren spots on earth, is one of the richest spots, most valuable to the human race.

That valley contains not ounces or pounds, but a billion tons of chemicals. Borax, one of the most important of chemicals, occurs in huge deposits. Thousands of tons of it are shipped yearly from the port of Los Angeles all over the world. Death Valley, which supplies 91 per cent of the world's borax and boric acid, contains deposits of nitrates 10 miles long, a mile wide and very deep.

In the center of the valley deposits of various chemicals run to a depth of six or seven feet. What a drug store!

The surface of pure white Death Valley is composed chiefly of compact crystals, largely sodium chloride on which airplanes find a safe landing field.

A wonderful gift nature made to California and the world, when that Death Valley was created, with death for all lost on its burning surface, and health and wealth in its billion tons of chemical.

This "small world" grows constantly smaller.

Late on Tuesday afternoon King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia was riddled with bullets as he sat in the automobile sent to meet his ship at Marseilles. Next day newspapers across the ocean published actual photographs of the King leaning back in his car after the bullets had killed him.

The photographs came across the ocean by radio.

The body of King Alexander is returning to the King's country on a French warship. Where the King is we shall know on judgment day.

The King's 11-year-old son is proclaimed King, as Peter the Second of Jugo-Slavia. He is a grandson of Queen Marie of Rumania, whom Americans had the pleasure of entertaining in this country not long ago.

The dead King was bitterly hated by his Croatian subjects, one of them shot him down with a German machine gun. He was accused of exploiting Croatia, accused in fact of exploiting his entire kingdom, of taking $1,000,000 a year out of royal monopolies, forests, tobacco, etc., conspiring with foreign capitalists to impoverish his country.

Catalonia for generations has rebelled against Spanish rule and hated the Spanish ruler.

The dead King accused of organizing a pretended attempt to assassinate himself, and then executing four enemies that he wanted out of the way, is said to have lived in constant fear of assassination. A friend quotes the King as saying that "a training school for assassins" had been organized in Milan, Italy, with the object of assassinating him. As it turned out, it was one of his own subjects that killed Alexander.

With his last breath the murdered King is reported to have whispered, "Guard Jugo-Slavia." "Dying words" are usually made up after the death, and probably King Alexander did not say "Guard Jugo-Slavia" or say anything distinctly with a number of machine-gun bullets in his lungs and heart.

In any case, Jugo-Slavia is one of the countries artificially made, put together in a patchwork by winners of the big war.

Real nationalities grow slowly through centuries. It is easy to manufacture them artificially, but hard to keep them going if you do manufacture them.

President Roosevelt says the stabilization that business and industry require cannot come until disastrous price fluctuations are ended. He referred to fluctuations of [illegible] and even 50 per cent on quoted prices of cotton, wheat, copper and other commodities, as disastrous and destructive. Price levels must be raised, the President believes, reasonably, and held "within a rea-

Brief Outlines Of the Movies For the Week

THE other side to the Hollywood picture, a story of drama and romance among the great majority of population of the film village, is told in "365 Nights in Hollywood," which opens at the Missouri Theater today, with a second attraction, "The Eleventh Commandment," featuring Marion Marsh and Alan Hale. In "365 Nights in Hollywood," James Dunn plays the part of a young director who has tasted too quickly of fame and fortune and has tumbled back down to the bottom of the ladder. He meets Alice Faye, a girl from the Middle West seeking a screen career, in a quack theatrical school. A rich young man from Alabama is persuaded by the crooks to put up money for a "quickie" picture, but the director, instead of entering into the swindler's scheme of making a worthless product and keeping the surplus, decides to make a good picture and re-establish himself in his profession. "The Eleventh Commandment" (Thou shalt not be found out) is the story of two unscrupulous lawyers who both plan to seize a fortune left by one of their clients, an elderly spinster. Their plans are thrown into confusion by the appearance of a carnival performer from Germany who was once married to the woman.

"A GIRL of the Limberlost," from Gene Stratton Porter's novel of the Indiana swamplands, with Louise Dresser, Marion Marsh and Ralph Morgan, and "Love Time," a story of the first love in the life of the composer, Franz Schubert, with Nils Asther and Pat Paterson, will come to the Ambassador Theater tomorrow. In the first picture, Miss Marsh plays the part of Elenora Comstock, daughter of Katherine Comstock, portrayed by Louise Dresser, who is hated by her mother to such an extent that she is refused any help in gaining an education. Elenora manages to go to school through the efforts of her congenial neighbors, the Sintons. Wesley, played by Ralph Morgan, has taught Elenora the ways of the birds and insects which abound in the limberlost, and he helps her catch some rare specimens which she sells to Mrs. Parker, the "bird-woman," for her tuition money. In time, Elenora's mother changes her attitude and apologizes for her rudeness. The second attraction, "Love Time," is set in Austria in the early years of the nineteenth century, and follows Schubert from his remote village home to the court of the Emperor at Vienna. Many of Schubert's compositions are woven into the story.

"A Lost Lady," film version of the widely-read novel by Willa Cather, with Barbara Stanwyck in the starring role, and "The Case of the Howling Dog," starring Warren William, are screen features opening Saturday at the Shubert Theater. The story of "A Lost Lady" is that of a girl who becomes lost in the maze of her own complex love emotions. Miss Stanwyck has four leading men in the picture. The first, who is slain, is Philip Reed, recently from the Broadway stage. The second is Frank Morgan, corporation lawyer, who marries her without asking for love, content with her trust and friendship; the third, Lyle Talbot, Morgan's business partner, to whose love advances the young wife is immune, and Ricardo Cortez, who literally drops at her feet from the sky in a damaged plane and with whom she becomes madly infatuated. When the husband is suddenly stricken with a heart ailment, the wife is torn between her love for one and her loyalty to the other. "The Case of the Howling Dog," is an adaptation of the popular Erle Stanley Gardner serial by the same name. In addition to William, its cast includes Mary Astor, Helen Trenholme, Allen Jenkins, Dorothy Tree and Helen Lowell.

"THE BARRETTS OF WIMPOLE STREET," starring Norma Shearer, Fredric March and Charles Laughton, will be held over at Loew's State. Miss Shearer is the invalid and emotionally restless poetess, Elizabeth Barrett, whom love miraculously heals. March is Browning, who will not be denied his love, and whose zest for living is the tonic that saves Elizabeth. Charles Laughton is cast as the tyrannical, psychopathic head of the house of Barrett. Maureen O'Sullivan, Katharine Alexander, Ralph Forbes and Una O'Connor are among the more prominent members of the cast supporting the three leads, all of whom have won "best performance" awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

"CLEOPATRA," Cecil B. De Mille's newest production, with Claudette Colbert in the title role, and "Big-Hearted Herbert," remain for a second week at the Orpheum Theater. "Cleopatra" is the familiar story of Egypt's glamorous queen and her love affairs. In addition to Miss Colbert, the large cast includes Warren William as Caesar; Henry Wilcoxon as Marc Antony; Gertrude Michael, Joseph Schildkraut, Ian Keith, C. Aubrey Smith, Arthur Hohl and Irving Pichel. "Big-Hearted Herbert" centers around Guy Kibbee, a crabby husband and successful plumbing factory executive, and his wife, portrayed by Aline MacMahon. Others in the cast are Robert Barrat, Patricia Ellis and Philip Reed.

"ONE NIGHT OF LOVE," now in its third week at the Fox Theater, will be held over until some time next week, to be followed by Will Rogers in "Judge Priest." "One Night of Love" features Grace Moore, former Metropolitan Opera star, as an American girl who makes the grade at the big opera houses abroad and finds some one to love in the person of her voice teacher, Tullio Carminati.

Two GOWNS for EVENING WEAR

Style Article by St. Louis Girl Who Knows Clothes

Miss Ruth Schmidt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. L. Schmidt, Webster Groves, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Niedringhaus.

By

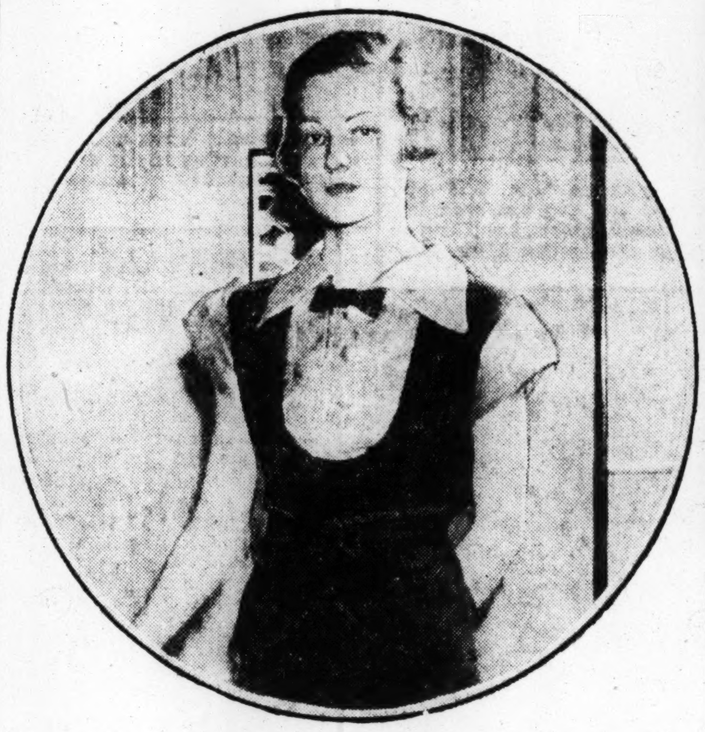
Ruth Schmidt

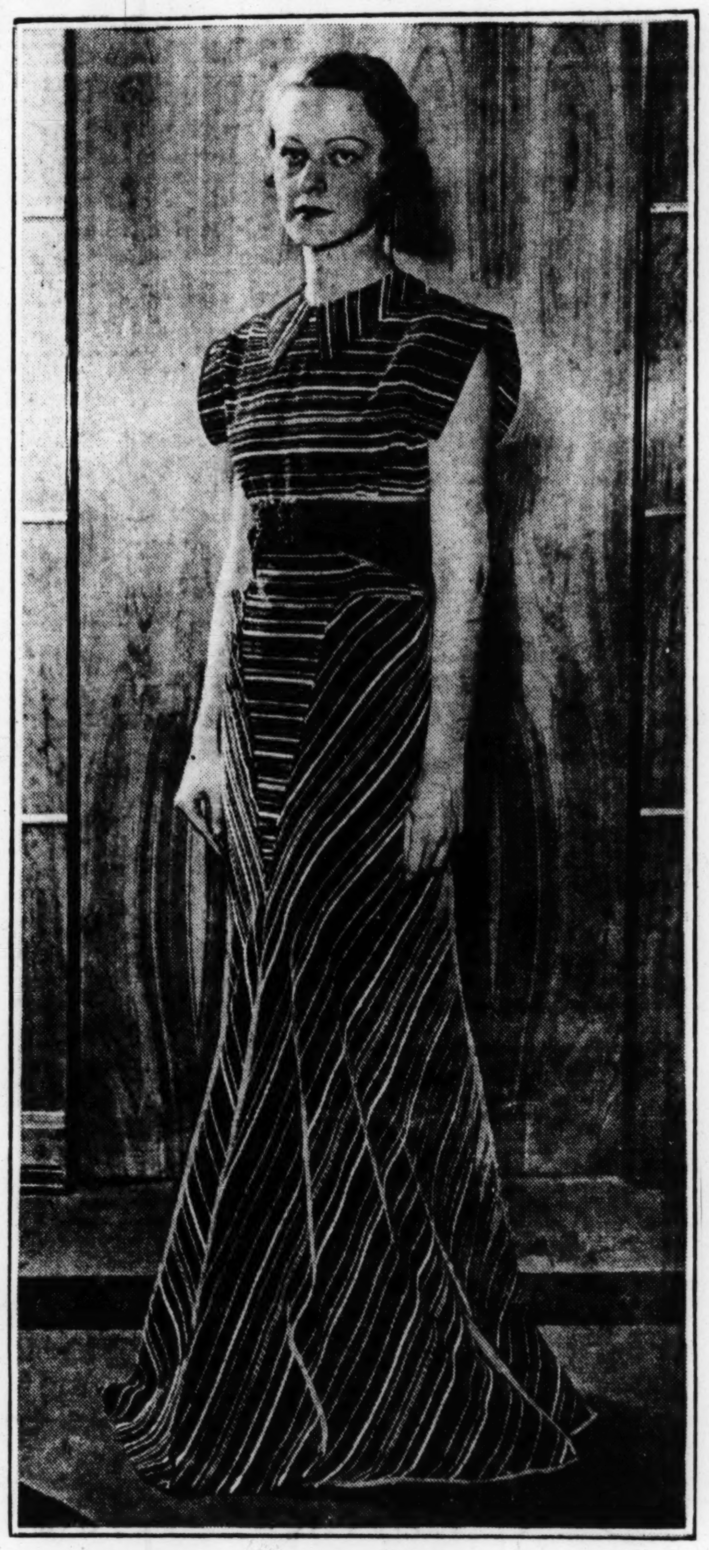
EVENING clothes form the most glamorous part of a girl's wardrobe. These are chosen with the greatest care and consideration. I have selected two dinner dresses which greatly enhance any wardrobe.

The dress at the right is most unusual, both as to the lines and as to the material. It is made of chenille, a fabric similar to velvet but of a stiffer quality. The pattern is composed of stripes meeting at various angles. The bodice and part of the skirt are cut so that the stripes run horizontally. Two pieces are inserted at the sides showing the lines running at oblique angles to the straight piece. The skirt flares at the bottom. At the waist the material is cut to form two pockets which stand open. The dress covers the shoulders slightly, and the back is slit. No one color can be said to predominate as red, black, white, and green all make their appearance. The belt is of lipstick red chenille, very wide, and is fastened with a carved red buckle. The lines of this dress are simple but very effective.

The other dress is a more tailored type. It gives the tuxedo effect. Brown crepe and gold cloth are the materials used. The gold is inserted to form a yoke or a little vest. This is fastened with gold covered buttons and a small bow at the neck. The gold cloth is repeated in the flat collar and is used for the sleeves. These are set in at the shoulder giving a broader line. Gold buttons are again the decoration here. The skirt is cut on very straight lines and has a slight flare at the bottom. A narrow belt of brown crepe held by a small bow of the same material completes the costume.

Both of these dresses fulfill the need for clothes to wear to cocktail parties and to informal dances.





A Menu for Today

Planned by
Dr. William H. Hay

BREAKFAST
(Alkaline)

Orange juice with egg yolk.

LUNCHEON
(Protein)

Cream of asparagus soup.
Salmon salad on endive. French dressing.
Stewed tomatoes.
Dessert: Apple baked in orange juice.

DINNER
(Starch)

Radishes, cucumber and onion in sour cream.
Whole wheat macaroni with butter and onion gravy.
Steamed spinach.
Braised celery.
Dessert: Dates and nuts with cream.

Coffee with cream and sugar may be added to any starch meal. Coffee with cream and no sugar may be added to a protein or alkaline forming meal.

Crisp Salad

Something fresh and crisp with winter meals is always a delight—so why not salads?

Here are some suggestions:

Fruit and nut salad, potato salad, lettuce and cucumber, lettuce and tomato, orange salad, pepper and fruit salad, tomato jelly, water cress, chicory, celery and cream cheese, and salads of fresh vegetables.

sonable range of variation, for a reasonable length of time."

The President knows also that as prices increase, public earnings and public spending power must increase. The little boy in tattered clothing, looking through the shop window at Christmas time wistfully making his selections, does not really buy.

Mr. Davis, United States Ambassador-at-large, going over to another one of those imaginary "arms parleys," says to talk about a war threat in connection with the assassination of King Alexander, is nonsense.

"Who will fight who?" he asked.

He meant, of course, "who will fight whom," but apart from that unimportant slip, the statement was probably sound. Nations are too close to the big war to be led into another if they can possibly keep out, and the big ones could stop a war now if they chose, just as they might have stopped the one in 1914.

On the other hand, anything is possible with racial hatreds crowded so closely together in Europe, and the answer to Mr. Davis' "who will fight whom," might be "everybody will fight everybody."

Cider Fruit Punch.

Six cups sugar.
Five cups water.
Four cups orange juice.
Two cups lemon juice.
Two cups pineapple juice.
Twenty-four cups iced water.
Two quarts sweet cider.

Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Cool. Add rest of ingredients. Serve in large bowl in which ice is placed.

Some Illustrations of Correct Opening Leads in Contract

By P. Hal Sims

SOME people seem born under a lucky star as far as leading is concerned. No matter what suit they decide to open, their partners always turn up with the missing fillers in that suit. For example, we know a man who once led the jack from the following combination, against a suit contract: A-J-10-9-x. His partner turned up with the king, doubleton, and the ability to overruff dummy; the declarer had the queen, four times; and for the next week he was pointed out to tourists as the man who set a cold contract of five diamonds by magnificent play. Let an ordinary mortal make that lead, and it will invariably be into the queen three times in dummy, and the king three times in the declarer's hand.

The player making the opening lead has a tough decision confronting him. Usually there are one or two suits which he is definitely not going to lead. The only question in his mind is, which suit is he going to lead? It often boils down to, "your guess is as good as mine." If he makes the correct lead, he is a wizard card reader. If he makes the wrong lead, he is either the unfortunate victim of circumstances, or a dumbbell.

For example, take the following hand:

Sp. A Q 10 x x   Di. 10 x x
Hts. x x   Cl. A J x

The bidding had gone: Pass, pass, one spade, two hearts, pass, two no trumps, pass, three hearts, pass, three no trumps. And now South had to lead against a contract of three no trumps by East. To lead spades might give the declarer his ninth trick. To lead hearts might put an honor of North's in the middle. Therefore the lead of either clubs or diamonds seemed indicated. I would lean more toward the diamond suit, but this particular player picked the lead of the jack of clubs out of the air. The declarer won the trick quickly before he had fully grasped the fact that he was going to go down at least one trick at three no trumps. It turned out that North had the queen of clubs three times (one reentry to come through spades) and the ace of diamonds (another reentry to come through spades.) Result: Three no trumps was set two tricks. And I would have still been leading diamonds, and setting the contract one trick. Such is life!

Tomorrow's Hand.

	♠ A K Q 7 ♥ 5 ♦ 10 8 4 ♣ Q 10 6 5 3
♠ J 9 6 4 ♥ K J 9 4 ♦ 7 5 ♣ K J 9	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 10 8 ♥ A Q 10 7 3 ♦ J 2 ♣ 8 7 2
	♠ 5 3 2 ♥ 8 6 ♦ A K Q 9 6 3 ♣ A 4

North raises his partner to six clubs and they make the little slam. See whether you can do it and whether you play as they did.

Errors Teach One More Than Success Does

Blunders Help Toward Strength When Actions Replace Remorse.

By Elsie Robinson

SO you've made a mistake? And you're feeling sunk and sore? Trying, of course, to keep folks from discovering it, but if they do you say, you'll stand up like a man and take your punishment."

That the way you feel? Then get wise to yourself! Instead of being ashamed of that mistake, be proud that you could make it! No, I'm not saying that you should be proud of the blunder itself—but proud of the urge that lay behind it.

Think what that urge means! Here you are, a lump of flesh, physically no better than any wooly worm, yet there is in you a spark which lifts you out of wormish apathy and drives you on to doubt and rebel, experiment—and make mistakes.

Thank God for that spark of His own divine free will! It is the greatest power and privilege in human life. And stop talking about "taking your punishment" for that mistake. Get busy instead and TAKE YOUR PROFIT FROM IT!

Ashamed to make a mistake? Better be ashamed if you don't make any! Anyone can lead a safe life, a pleasant, popular life. Anyone can escape criticism and achieve a spotless reputation. But what human with real spunk and intelligence would desire to lead such a life or have such a reputation? Personally, I'd rather do time for hoss stealing!

For one can only achieve a spotless reputation by never offending public opinion. But upon what is public opinion based? Largely on mass cowardice, stupidity, laziness sentimentality and conceit—all of which should be considered by any sensible perso but never to the point where it cramps healthy curiosity and rebellion.

We aren't here to acquire pretty reputations. We're here to LIVE And how can you live unless you move with Life, who is herself the greatest experimenter, the most colossal blunderer? Every rock and twig and living body bears the record of countless formulas that didn't work to the one that did—yet the Old Gal goes whooping right along! If you're wise, you'll whoop with her.

NO man seeks more passionately for perfection than a great scientist, yet Darwin cried, "I love fools' experiments. I am always making them." Darwin was following Life and he knew that Life's trail led through puddles as well as through flower beds. He loved "fools' experiments" because he knew that fools were often humble and hungry enough to take brave risks which complacent "wise folk" refused. Fools dared to make mistakes.

Made a mistake? Then swab up the wreckage, perk up your ears and start in again. If there are amends to be made, make 'em. Tears to be wept? Spill 'em, and get it over with. But, while you're paying and weeping, still be proud and grateful that you have the makings in you of adventure, even though it comes high.

Remember, no matter what you've lost, no matter what it cost, you can be the wiser and stronger for that experience, if you'll have it so. Success is a pleasing experience, but you'll learn more about yourself, your world and your neighbor by one honest blunder than by a thousand triumphs.

And never prolong remorse. You've no more right to spend your time weeping over yourself than you have to indulge in any other form of self-gratification. Egotism is egotism, whether you say it with sniffles or smiles, and most professional penitents are just cowardly loafers who love the spotlight.

Life needs action! Get going, no matter how often you blunder—and thank God you have what it takes.

For Informal Supper

The sandwich loaf generously covered with white cream cheese makes a very acceptable main course to use for an informal supper. Relishes, a beverage and dessert are all that are needed to accompany the loaf.

One's Example Always Makes Best Sermon

By example—and since actio speak louder than words, it w the best sermon. Not telling h sons to do the hard thing, but d ing it; not urging them to avo evil, but scorning it himself.

Precept was not needed; he s the example. He showed what is to speak the truth, by neve stooping to a lie; and what a ma ought to believe, by living year and year out as a man who belie in the depths of his soul and p his faith into his acts.

One need not belittle the pow of the spoken word; it is very re At times a word has the force of deed, in that it awakens us to what we know we ought to do. B example is an eloquence that most tongue-tied and illitera among us can employ.

One thinks of the lovely story St. Francis, how he asked one the Brothers to go with him int the village to preach. Arm in ar they walked down the hill, rejoicing in the soft spring sunligh talking of the love of God, happ in their fellowship.

On through the village they wen up to the hill on the other side then back again to the monaste gate, without stopping. "But a we not going to preach today asked the Brother. "We hav preached," said Francis; "we h been happy in the love of God a the glory of His sunlight—that our sermon for the day."

Mark Twain told that story th last time he visited the Tom Sawyer country, to a group gathere in his honor. He said he was reverent as anybody and had right to preach; a fact no one denied. The old man was thinkin of what truth his life had taugh

A Girl Asks How to Repay Attentiveness

Companionship Should Be Enough, But Dinner Invitation Is All Right.

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM one of your interested readers. Here is the question I want to ask.

How can a girl repay a boy for the many good times he gives her? It seems in my experience that she has to in some way. Please put this in the column, as I think there are a good many girls who would like to know. JUST JILL.

Doubtless it will sound quite, quite "old-fashioned" (which, in the minds of some of these whizzing "up-to-date" youngsters, is a deadly sin) to say that the pleasure of the girl's companionship and society is supposed to pay the debt. This is the opinion of gentlemen—real ones.

But it is very nice, if you can do so, to ask the boy to your home to dine, to give a little picture-show party of several couples, once in a while, buying all the tickets beforehand and having the boy come as an invited guest. Even a little party of two, the boy having dinner with you at your home, and you furnishing the tickets which you have bought beforehand, so there can be no argument or question about who is to pay for them; a little gift of some kind (inexpensive and impersonal)—any of these plans should be all right if you feel too much under obligation.

Dear Martha Carr:

I WANT to say something to "Mrs. W." She has my sympathy. If I were in her place, I would seek some other kind of diversion rather than the companionship of a man. If she really is so terribly lonesome, I will say that everybody is welcome at the "Lonely" Club at the Italian Fraternal Building. If she likes dancing she can have a very pleasant evening on Saturday nights.

If she understands bachelors as I do, it is all right. If she doesn't, she will learn sooner or later. A woman from 40 to 45 years old may still be good-looking, kind and considerate. She may have means of her own. And sometimes she is more desirable than younger women; but some of the bachelors try to make up for lost time in the wrong way. MISSOURI.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I NOTICED in your column a woman of 35 who called herself a "girl." Surely at this age she is a "girl" by courtesy only. Is there, may I ask, any onus attached to the word "woman?"

Thirty-five is maturity; a woman of that age can be very lovely, but by the time she has reached that age, life has certainly found her and moulded her into some form. She should have dignity and poise, not learned by a youngster. If she is married, she probably has half-grown children. If she is single, she should still hesitate to refer to herself as a "girl"—because it may draw unpleasant comment and not a little quiet mirth. X.

Dear Martha Carr:

AT 15 years old, I was married to a man 21. It really all came about because of a stepfather. There were three of us children at home. I was not allowed to go farther than the eighth grade at school. I could have been happy—we have been married six years—but this is the usual case of a young husband tied down too soon. He grew tired of being married to a silly girl—and that is all I was, that's all anyone is at 15, 16 or 17. Then liquor became the dreaded rival, until lately, it seems, "I can't go on," as people say.

I wanted a homey home, with pretty curtained windows and flowers sitting about, and a canary or two—with all the necessary things, of course. But I live in an ugly, shabby, furnished room with dirty wallpaper, etc. You know the rest. Our little girl is nearly 5. Many times I have tried to leave and make a better life for us too. But it seems nobody wants us. Isn't there some way that a part of my husband's salary could be given us at least until we get a start? I can do several kinds of factory work. Do you know any place where I might take a course in stenography free? BLUE MOTHER.

It is sad that trouble of this kind has come to you so early and, I may say, a commentary upon marrying too early, which many young girls need to read and digest. I like your spirit, and one can see, beneath your trouble, the character and hope necessary to carry on. But you must take the precaution of staying with your husband until you can secure good legal advice. If you have not the money to get good legal advice, go to the Legal Aid Bureau, Municipal Courts Building, and ask the procedure.

If it is necessary for you to have your little girl live away from you, for a while, in order to do some kind of work, take this up with the Children's Aid Society, who will find the right kind of place. Do not trust to boarding her with people you know nothing about.

You will, I think, get free instruction in stenography at the Hadley Vocational School. You can telephone there about it.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MAYBE other women, like me, are ashamed to admit the truth. We are living on charity, and my husband seems to think it all right. But I do not enjoy such a life and would rather work for what I have. I live just for my little boy. I don't know whether I love my husband or not; I was married at 18, and really (I think now) because I started working at 14 and thought it might be a rest after my factory life.

I cannot break away, because of our little son, who worships his daddy. But my husband is so without ambition, he will not even help with the work about the house; gets angry and uses vile language. I know outside work is very hard to find, but he could at least help me. Mrs. Carr, won't you give me some advice? My sisters laugh at me if I complain. Do you think the Relief would continue to help me for a while if I leave him? ANNIE.

I can understand that it is very hard for a man—with ambition and honesty—to be out of work, no matter how hard he tries to secure it. This sometimes make him irritable and nervous and while he should not choose his family as an outlet to these feelings, there may be some excuse, if he tries to do his part at home. But there is no excuse, no ambition and no honor in a man, who takes the cheap view that housework and home work is too feminine for him, when he can help in no other way. The situation in late years has brought many changes in such a viewpoint; the important one is, that, if it is impossible for him to provide for his family, the least he can do is try to save his wife many of the back-breaking jobs around home.

I happen to know of one well-educated and ambitious man who, through no lack of ambition and industry on his part, has been out of employment for two years, his wife keeping an office job which she was obliged to seek soon after things went wrong, financially. Of course this man would be, naturally, depressed and disheartened. But he is such a good sport, and such an upstanding character, that he does a goodly part of the housework, makes a lark of bathing and dressing the children before his wife gets home and brags, cheerily, about what a swell cook he is.

Of course his wife knows, as well as he, that his heart sinks many times because he is not doing his own work, but no word of this passes between them. While being constantly on the alert for the change that is bound to come, they are happy in their respect for each other and in taking their misfortunes like thoroughbreds.

If you can feel that your husband is exerting every effort to get work, you can still have respect and patience. If you must leave, consult your relief worker and decide what steps to take.

Dear Martha:

I KNOW I'm imposing on your good nature, but you will appreciate that no woman with self-respect could possibly allow a man to have the last word in an argument, especially such a nasty crack as "Happy" just took at me. Please, mayn't I get back at him?

It was undoubtedly too much to expect you to get the heavy irony of my nom de plume, "Happy." I really have been most successful in snaring my conception of an ideal man; but, fond of him as I am, I would poison him if he took to writing to the newspapers telling the world what a swell guy he is.

It's perfectly lovely that your moral standards are as high as they are, "Happy," but wouldn't the picture look prettier with a little modesty and sense of humor thrown in? After all, throwing bouquets at oneself is not a very becoming pastime. OUT IN THE COLD.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WHEN I was a girl, I read a book of Bible stories called "Mother's Bible Stories," by Katherine Wickersham. Since I have grown up I have had a desire to read it again as I enjoyed it so very much. I tried at the library and several book stores, also secondhand stores. And these places have written the publisher, who replied that the book is now out of print. Do you happen to know of any other way that I can get a copy to read? HAZEL.

It may be that some one who reads this has a copy of this old book tucked away and would lend or give or sell it to you. I know of no other way to get it. You might also put a want ad in the paper. Someone might read that, who does not read my column. You neglected to send me your name and address.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

THE LIFE of RUSSIAN EXILES

By Marguerite Martyn

AN interesting group of people, closely bound by ties of nationality and common hardships, living in St. Louis is the Russian Club. It is composed of 25 or 30 families, Russian expatriates, self-exiled because of their continued loyalty to the imperialistic regime or more exactly their opposition to Communism as it now prevails in their mother country. They are members of the old Russian aristocracy who have not surrendered to the new order. Though all are highly cultured, each has an individual story of hardship encountered in this country, handicapped by an alien language and the suddenness of their impoverishment. Now, however, most of this group are managing to subsist, and some have found quite good positions in this city. One is an electrical engineer employed by a large concern; one is manager of a mail order house; two are chemical engineers employed by the largest plant in that industry; several are technicians in an oil company; one is an executive in a match company, one a biological research doctor in a medical center.

They meet frequently for social purposes, for their never-ending tea drinking, to enjoy a Russian supper prepared and served by a woman member as a source of income or to enjoy music provided by members who are skilled on so many different instruments that they have a complete orchestra for chamber music. And, of course, they meet to discuss things as they are in Russia and their hopes for a change for the better from their own standpoint.

These club members cannot be named, because they believe themselves to be continually watched by Communist sympathizers, who, they claim, are active here, and who would or might report any antagonistic public utterances which might result in reprisals being visited upon relatives still living in Russia.

All, in spite of relative prosperity now, live in very modest circumstances, in flats usually in obscure neighborhoods, devoting their surplus earnings, if any, to helping their relatives in Russia and endeavoring to secure their release from the Soviet and assist them to come to America. The purchase of these releases is expensive, when it can be accomplished at all.

Mrs. N. P. Boorzhinsky, who with her husband and son, live at 1122 North Euclid avenue, is now starting a dancing school with the primary purpose of bringing her mother to join her and the hope of enabling other relatives to emigrate.

Mrs. Boorzhinsky was willing to express her own views on communism, though she hastened to say she could not speak for her compatriots, who may, indeed, not hold similar views.

"My family were all members of the military order under the Czar," she said, "but it so happened none of us were in the White Army or took any part in the counter revolution. We are not, therefore, definitely proscribed by the Communists. My father, who had been a Governor in Turkestan, was too old for the army. He has since died, just let himself die of a broken heart. My brother, an officer in the army had caught malaria in the Masurian swamps during the World War. His regiment was practically wiped out by malaria and he was disabled so he could not join the White Army. My husband was in this country, having come in 1916 to inspect munitions and artillery being purchased here and did not get back to Russia before the revolution. All our estates, money in the bank, all our property and pensions, of course, were confiscated. Members of my family never have joined the Communist Party, but while they are producers they are permitted to live and work for the Soviet enterprises, under all the difficulties and indignities that can be heaped upon them. My brother is in a bank, his wife a telegrapher. A cousin, a very good architectural engineer, is obliged to work at his profession under guard in prison. A niece after having been put through the most severe training, such as would not have been required of a member of the party, and after the most difficult examinations, is now an accredited chemist.

"I doubt if we will ever be able to obtain the release of these useful, producing members of the family but I hope to buy the release of my mother who is 70 years old. The price will be $500. The Soviet demands that price for a visa just because it can and as a source of revenue. Many of the old nobility escape when they have not so far to go to the borders but that is hardly possible for my relatives who live far in the interior, in Turkestan. When we used to send them $5 before American went off the gold standard we were told it equaled the combined monthly salaries of my brother in the bank, his wife, the telegrapher, and my niece, the chemist. This was partly because they could, with gold, trade at the Torzsin, stores established for the many foreign specialists, beautiful stores where goods are sold at prices half as high as at the native stores but at which the natives cannot trade because these stores will not take roubles. They will take gold in any form and for a long time my relatives traded with old gold objects which they had sequestered." Her chief objection to the new order, Mrs. Boorzhinsky said, is that it is founded on a denial of God and the exaltation, instead, of the State above everything. And the denial of family relations and obligations. "The children are taught they should not believe their parents. Children are even set to spy on their parents and report any lapse to the old order. I believe these principles are not the true foundations for citizens or governments. They are fundamentally wrong.

"I do not say everything in Communism is wrong," she continued, "nor that things won't improve. That they are always changing their laws and rules proves this. They have largely abandoned the theory of equality for everybody. At first every worker was to receive the same income,no matter what he did. Now they are basing income on skill. At first everybody was to be admitted to the universities, and they had the spectacle of students trying to learn higher mathematics who had not learned their A, B, C's. Now they still believe in universal education, which is right, but they are grading students and letting illiterates begin with elementary subjects. At first all members of a commune were required to put all their earnings into the communal fund to be dispensed for the benefit of all equally. That practice has been abandoned. The collective character of the commune remains, but people are allowed to do what they please with their individual earnings. So they are getting back to the theory of private property."

MRS. BOORZHINSKY came to America with her husband in 1916. She is a tall, handsome woman with large gray eyes, regular features and a lot of dark hair worn in thick coiled braids. She is of remarkably fine carriage, holding her head high and showing none of those tell-tale lines beneath the chin which usually are the first sign of age in a woman. This is due, no doubt, to superior physical training in the imperial ballet schools where she studied under the master M. Fokine and which were so important a part of a girl's education before the revolution.

When their income suddenly was cut off by the upheaval at home, the Boozhinskys were left stranded in New England. They first sought refuge on a farm run by Russian emigrants and worked as day laborers, the delicately brought up aristocrat milking the cows, feeding the pigs, working in the fields. Then the husband got a job with the General Electric Co. and Mrs. Boorzhinsky decided to put her dancing, which she had always thought of as a social accomplishment, to practical account. For nine years she taught in private schools around Northampton, Mass. Then the depression, luxury professions done away with and natives preferred to alien employes in industry. Out of work, they came to St. Louis. Irregular employment at the Moloney Electrical Works and physical education classes at the Principia School off and on have enabled the pair to pull through, though with frequent lay-offs it has been a struggle. Now things look brighter at the electrical works and Mrs. Boorzhinsky decides to launch a dancing school of her own. She has fitted up studios in the Academy Arcade Building, 5540 Vernon, scene of previous dancing schools, where she will teach Russian ballet technique, modified by her leaning toward the more natural Isadora Duncan school. Physical health exercises, development of poise, body building and reducing are to be part of the curriculum. Mrs. Boorzhinsky is much interested in improving the posture of American working girls, which she thinks is so bad it is a wonder it does not interfere with their health.

Black Jersey Is Stylish and Very Durable

Silver Chains and Tassels Are Popular Winter Trimmings.

By Sylvia

IF you want a dress that will withstand plenty of wear and always look trim, black jersey is the fabric to choose. This season's versions of this utility fabric are much more impressive than they have been before. A typical frock made of the material has silver chains and red leather tassel trimming. The chains are attached at either side of the front lapels to pull them together. Tassels of the red leather dangle at each end.

* * *

Another black jersey frock adds some frilly touches. Two ruffles of the material circle the back of the neck and cascade down the front of the blouse. You may pull them together to form a high neckline and jabot effect or let them fall loose as rippled revers. Silver metal buttons the size and shape of marbles fill in the space between the ruffles and ornament the belt buckle.

* * *

A hat to wear with a black wool dress should be a very trim toque. The higher it is the greater its chic according to the latest millinery edicts. One that looks like an overseas cap grown taller has a crown that may be peaked or crushed. The material is hatter's plush and there are large, tailored bows of black grosgrain at either side.

* * *

The woman who insists upon a hat with brim but is tired of the Tyrolian influence, can get herself a funny little sailor. Its brim turns up all around so that it is as round as a rubber tire. Hatter's plush again is used for this very striking chapeau with grosgrain ribbon banding the moderately high crown.

The vogue of capes is proving more than a passing fancy. If it continues at the rate it has started a woman won't be content this winter without one in her wardrobe. The latest style is at least hip length. A St. Louis furrier has one of Persian lamb on exhibition and adds a tiny muff of matching fur to make it look quainter. A shorter cape of beaver is moulded over the shoulders and shaped so cleverly that it resembles an Eton jacket.

Pumps can't be too high to suit the girls this season. To have them expose the instep is regarded almost as indecent. Quite according to the rules is one pair with tiny patent leather strips buttoning from the toes to the top. Elastic insets are deftly provided at either side, so that unfastening the buckles becomes merely a pastime rather than a necessity. The shoes are made of brown suede and the layer leather heels are boulevard height.

To look as much as possible like a grand lady of a hundred years ago is the ambition of this season's debutante, especially when she gets dolled up for the evening. A formal frock that will be of great assistance is rightly dubbed a "robe de style." The full skirt and basque bodice are of white satin taffeta. Around the skirt above the hemline is a wide band of blue velvet. The same luxurious material forms a Bertha and drops low on the shoulders and a flower at the waistline.

* * *

High Russian hats call for Russian coats or vice versa. Anyway, one of the most stunning winter coats on display here is of black suede cloth that is cut in the Russian styling. Bands of Persian lamb emphasize its inspiration. One marks the side closing, reaching from the neckline to the hem. Another forms a standing collar, and there are others to decorate the sleeves.

Cold Cocktails

Liquid cocktails, such as clam, vegetable juice or fruit juices, should be served thoroughly chilled. Small crackers or tiny sandwiches may be served with them, but are not essential.

This type of cocktail can be served in the living room or as the first course at table.

Dietrich and Von Sternberg Come to Parting of Ways.

By Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.

MARLENE DIETRICH and Josef von Sternberg, heretofore considered an inseparable team in motion pictures, are parting company. Not a battle, not even an argument but each has decided to go a separate way. Their contracts end with the completion of "Caprice Espagnole," a Spanish picture which he directs and in which she stars. Paramount is negotiating with Marlene at the moment and the contracts are pretty certain to be signed. As for Von Sternberg, he has made no plans. He makes only one picture a year and he will not sign any contracts unless he gets just the story he wants to direct. But his next picture will be minus the glamorous Dietrich.

If Maureen O'Sullivan and Johnny Farrow aren't married, then a lot of Hollywood's guessers are completely wrong. Maureen is expecting her father to visit her within a few weeks and I am told that Johnny made a good impression on the family and that Maureen and he were secretly married while abroad. But, of course, until they admit it we'll have to put it under the head of Hollywood gossip.

Reports to the contrary, B. P. Schulberg is going right ahead planning Sylvia Sidney's productions. There has been a lot of talk that Sylvia would make one more and then go either to New York or tie herself up with another film company. But I happen to know B. P. purchased "Weep for Me," by Katherine Shepard, and has turned it over to Adela Rogers St. John to write the screen play. Adela, who talked of returning to New York, seems to be a fixture at Paramount, and I am told, unofficially, that she is persuading Enzo Fiermonte to train again and longer this time, for another fight. Gilbert Roland, who has had a bad cold, but then haven't we all, is back in town again after giving the Palm Springs sun a chance to get him well. I happened to see him lunching with Constance Bennett at the Brown Derby a day or so ago and he is getting ready to begin work in "Twenty-Four Hours," at Fox.

Arthur Jarrett with the voice that charms the birds off the trees, is back after 10 weeks of personal appearance. He is out on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot ready to sing "Mississippi Honeymoon" in "Repeal," the newest screen opera of Carole Lombard and Chester Morris. "Mississippi Honeymoon" is by Gus Kahn and Walter Donaldson and was written the same day on which Kahn renewed the copyright on his first song, "Gee, I Wish I had a Girl." Hollywood is delighted that Mrs. L. B. Mayer was well enough to go directly from the train to see her daughter, Mrs. William Goetz and the new grandchild, Barbara. Victor Jory, was rushed to the hospital when he was shot in the eye on the "White Lies" set at Columbia; fortunately the cartridge, fired by Leslie Fenton, was only a blank and Jory returned to work the same afternoon. Louis B. Mayer was dazzled by the glistening whiteness of the MGM studio. The buildings got a coat of new paint during his absence in Europe.

The Harpo Marx-Susan Fleming romance is going strong. When Harpo went to Russia and stayed away for half a year and then lingered in New York, everyone said, "It's all cold. He and Susan won't see each other again." But they are seeing each other plenty.

Probably the closest figuring on record is being done by Walter Wanger for his picture, "Private Worlds." Charles Boyer finished "Le Bonheur" for Bernstein in Paris Nov. 12, he gets here Nov. 22 and begins work Nov. 27 on "Private Worlds." That is why Walter is looking around to get a leading lady.

A Complaint At Misused Hospitality

When Uninvited Guests Impose, Less Generosity May Discourage Them.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

WILL you help me undo something I should not have started 19 years ago when I married? My husband's relatives have kept us poor all these years using our house for a hotel. I have always taken unannounced visitors in lots of anywhere from two to a dozen, with reasonably good grace, but I've reached the point where smouldering resentment is about to burst into flame even if it does burn the house down about my ears. Last week four of one family left after staying three days with us, and now a letter (almost overwhelmingly thoughtful) arrives from a brother announcing that he and his wife and their five children will come for all of next week. This particular family have nothing in common with me, anyway, except as a dispenser of beds and board. But even if they really liked me, I think inviting themselves is a high-handed infringement upon good nature. When I told my husband so, all my protest brought was that I am just mean about it and that I can perfectly well manage the food bills and the extra work of beds to make and linen to wash. And he says I can't tell them not to come. The extra work that all these relatives made did not leave me so tired in my young days. It is hard that when my husband had high pay we put by only a little of what we ought to have saved because all the extra he could have put aside had to go to feed the hungriest crowd you ever saw. And now we can barely manage food and heat and light for us two. Before I let relatives continue to use up our last savings and break up my home after all these years, I am appealing to you for a way, because I can't endure it any longer.

Emily Post

Answer: It is a sorry thing when a generous person comes to the point where she regrets the one thing that should never be regretted—kind behavior. After 19 years it's very hard to change, but in the present times it seems to me that you have a perfectly valid excuse for refusing to receive uninvited guests. At all events, I would not dip into my savings if I were you. I should take my weekly budget and let it spread as thin as it must. Perhaps it may work out for the best if you limit your table to exactly what your allowance for two must be when made to supply nine. It is likely that your visitiors will neither stay long nor come soon again. Moreover, your husband may very well take less interest in hospitality to his relations than in three good meals for himself.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

THERE was no further doubt about it. Helen was to be a mother. Dr. Johnson was a fatherly, good-natured fellow with a bluff, hearty manner.

"Go home and enjoy yourself," he advised her. "Exercise in moderation. There's nothing to it. Laugh a lot. Laughter makes a good baby, and go places, do things. There's nothing to it, I tell you. And you'll come to see me every other week and tell me how fine you feel!"

He sent the two girls home in high spirits.

"Isn't he marvelous?" Helen exulted. "I know I'm going to love every minute of it. Belle! A baby of our own! I'm so thrilled I could cry and shout for joy."

"When are you going to tell Walter?"

> Helen Schiller, pretty manicurist in the Forty-fourth street branch of the swanky Anastasia Beauty Salons, so far forgot discipline one morning as to dance a few steps before the work-day began—and was seen by Walter Riley, owner of the salons. He did not speak then about this, but returning that evening to the shop, went to her—and found himself disarmed by her smile, and attracted to her. He asked if he might take her to dance, and she assented.
>
> After one evening at the theater, Helen fell asleep as he drove her to her home in Bay Ridge—and he awakened her with a light kiss. She pushed him away, but he would not be denied, and he kissed her again. Events in the Riley family followed fast, with Irene, who managed the swanky Fifty-seventh Salon, marrying the socially-elect Dirk Terhune. After the ceremony, Walter took Stella to the Forty-second street branch. He meets Helen that evening—and they become engaged secretly, because he fears his sisters and mother. Helen, who becomes afraid, goes away for two weeks to test their love. It is no use. She returns and promises to marry Walter on July 4th. During this time Irene marries Dick Terhune.
> Helen and Walter decide to get married immediately. After the marriage they go to Plaza Hotel, and Helen is overcome by the luxury. The next morning they go to see Walter's family. Walter's mother faints on hearing the news. Dirk is the only one nice to Helen.
> Helen finally gets used to the family. She and Walter decide to rebuild the country house. Dirk will help them. When the home is finished, the Rileys move in for frequent visits, much to Helen's discomfort.

Helen's eyes grew dreamy. "I'll tell him soon. Maybe Sunday. I wish Agnes weren't here. She brings that harassed, worried look to his forehead when she begins to nag about the shops. Oh, I want to get Walter in one of our golden moods. Sunday, when he doesn't have to rush off, I'll tell him, oh, so beautifully . . . he'll be so pleased."

"I'll bet he will. Honestly, I'm so thrilled I can hardly keep from bubbling it out," said Belle.

"Oh, no; you mustn't. I don't want him to have a hint of it before I tell him."

"I wouldn't spoil your effect for the world, darling. You shall have all the joy in telling him yourself."

When they got back to the house Agnes said curiously, "A Dr. Johnson called up to say that you forgot the prescription he wanted you to have, so I sent Anton over for it in the small car. What prescription, Helen? Are you sick?"

"I . . . I have been having headaches lately, so I thought I'd better see Dr. Johnson."

Agnes grunted. "Humph, you run around too much."

"Yes, I guess that's it," Helen agreed, relieved. "I'm going to rest more. Thanks for sending Anton Agnes. It was very thoughtful of you."

That night as they sat at dinner Helen was in a panic lest Agnes mention her visit to the doctor. She chatted with forced gaity all through dinner so that Agnes wouldn't have a chance to bring it up until she got Walter off by herself and told him. She wanted to tell it to him alone. She could imagine his ecstasy, his tender kisses when he heard.

Suddenly the table began to go round and round. She dashed out of the dining room.

"Helen, what's the trouble, darling?" Walter rose to follow her.

"Let her alone, Walter," Agnes commanded, "she's going to have a baby, I bet."

Walter rushed out after Helen.

"Agnes said you were going to have a baby, dearest. Oh, my dear, are you?"

"Agnes told you! Oh, Walter! I wanted to tell you beautifully. I wanted to tell it to you so beautifully." Helen burst into tears.

He gathered her into his arms and soothed her.

"What difference how you told me? I'm so happy. I'm so pleased and thrilled. Oh, Helen, our own little baby. Stop crying, darling, you'll make yourself sick."

"I wanted to tell you," she sobbed brokenly. "Not in the bathroom. I wanted to tell you so beautifully."

He led her weeping up to their room. Belle got up abruptly from the table and walked into the living room. Agnes finished her dinner.

OVER Labor day Irene and Dirk motored out to the farm. Agnes was still there. Belle had left a few days before Labor day. Agnes' whole attitude had changed. She was less guarded in her criticisms, and yet even these were veiled in such honeyed accents that no one except Helen could appreciate the full sting of their darts. Helen raged with impotence to retaliate, but without Belle to bolster her up she was at a loss to know what to do.

She complained to Walter finally in sheer desperation.

"Oh, my darling," he said unhappily, "what can I do? She doesn't mean anything. She's got a heart of gold. I admit she's tactless, but you've simply got to overlook it."

"Why must I overlook it?" Helen asked.

"Please, Helen, don't upset yourself. It's not good for you in your condition. Just try to think of her life; she's had this accident that's made an invalid of her and then she's always stewing because she's older than Carl and now she's probably jealous.

"I know all that, Walter. If I didn't, I couldn't have stood it this long. But do I have to suffer because she's frustrated and miserable? Why can't she be a little sympathetic to me? Why must I do all the compromising, all the understanding?"

"You're younger for one thing. And you're my wife. In a way you ought to share my debts too. Is it too much to ask you to be tolerant and kind for my sake?"

"It's not fair, Walter. You're not being fair to put it that way. I'll do anything for you because I love you, but this isn't fair. You're taking advantage of my love," she protested. "Oh, if I were only clever. If I could only make you see that your crazy sense of what you owe them is making us both slaves to them."

"Helen, you're hysterical. I cannot reason with you when you're in such a state of nerves. You just imagine it. I have eyes and ears too. So far as I can see, Agnes has been unusually nice to you and to Belle too. Belle was here all summer. I was only too glad to have her; too glad to make her welcome and I expect you to do the same for my sisters."

"You compare Belle with Agnes! Belle who is so tactful that she's incapable of saying an unkind thing!"

"Well, what do you want me to do? Throw my sister out?" Walter's lips were a tight line. His forehead was a maze of wrinkles.

"You won't see," Helen despaired, her voice breaking.

"You won't even console me, agree with me, make it easier for me!"

"You're being stubborn and spoiled, Helen. It's unlike you and I don't like it at all."

He turned and left her sitting there, her eyes wide with horror.

"Walter, Walter Don't leave me like this. Walter! Walter!

Irene said, "Why, Helen, how pale you look? Aren't you well?"

Walter put his arm about his wife's shoulder. "Don't tell her that, Irene. Helen has a very special kind of paleness now. She's to be congratulated, not commiserated with. We're both to be congratulated, aren't we, darling?"

Helen smiled. "It's not a secret any more, Irene, so I might as well tell you. I'm going to have a baby."

"Really. Well, well! Walter, dear me, a daddy! Well, congratulations, of course."

"How are you, Helen? You lucky devils, both of you. This is news for rejoicing. You look splendid, Helen."

"THANKS, Dirk. I appreciate your tact. I'm still in the worst stage, but it it is nice of you to pretend that I look well."

"But I'm not pretending! On my honor! There is a new loveliness in your face. You look spiritual and angelic."

"Rot," said Irene as they walked into the house. "Dirk is old-fashioned, Helen. He still regards motherhood, even approaching motherhood, as something quite exalted and saintly, don't you, darling?"

Dirk smiled. "Don't you believe it, Helen? It's going to be fashionable after a while to be a mother and then won't Irene be wild that you got in the swim early."

"Oh, hello, Agnes, you still here? How's the knee?"

"Not so well, thanks."

After luncheon they all rambled over to the pool for a swim. Dirk left the others laughing and disporting themselves in the pool to come to Helen's side. She was stretched out in a canvas sun chair, her sand-colored hair in two braids down her shoulders; the apple-green bathing suit she wore was reflected in little green flecks in her wide gray eyes.

"Well, little Gretchen, our little scheme didn't work out as well as we expected, did it?"

"I'm afraid it didn't, Dirk." She laughed ruefully.

"I'm sorry."

"I think it will be better, though, later, Dirk. I'm staying on here over the winter. The baby is expected in March. I think the winter will be a long and peaceful one!"

He dropped his voice a key "How long has Agnes been here?"

"Three weeks, Dirk. It's been like three years."

"What does Walter say?" he asked swiftly.

"I don't know what to say, Dirk. You understand, I know. But I can't make Walter see it. We almost quarreled last night. I've been miserable about it. What can I do, Dirk?"

"What do you want to do, Nellie?"

"How can I learn to feel adeate? I think that would help. If only they didn't reduce me to a nonentity. If I only were clever like my sister Belle. Of course, when I keep away from them that helps. I try hard to keep away, but Walter sees them every day."

"That's not solving the problem. That's running away from it."

"I know it, Dirk, but I'm no match for them. It may solve itself after the baby's born, but they just reduce me to an atom. I'm all confused and I can't even hold my position before them."

"Listen, Helen," he told her swiftly, "just remember this; that knowing you are in the right will give you poise. Always remember when you're in a discussion with one of 'em that when you're right nothing can shake your position. That will give you poise and will baffle 'em. Also never lose your temper, and, above all, never cry. You're such a sensitive child, Nellie. It's a pity that you have to fight. My advice, however, is to face reality and not run away from it. When a situation arises and you know you're right, face it! Speak up! Don't weaken! When you're sure you're right, be firm!"

From the pool Irene threw a ball at him. "Come on, Dirk, play! What are you doing? Making a speech?"

"I'll talk to you later, Nell," he flashed at her as he leaped into the pool.

Old Clothes Party

If you live near the sea or a lake, a childrens beach party will combine fun and healthy exercise.

Old clothes and sweaters are the order of the day. Pails and shovels, and prizes for the best sand castle built, or the most original piece of sand architecture, are all part of such a party.

If you plan a fire and supper on the beach, arrange games that won't last until nightfall. Toasting marshmallows can top off the meal—and provides fun for the youngsters.

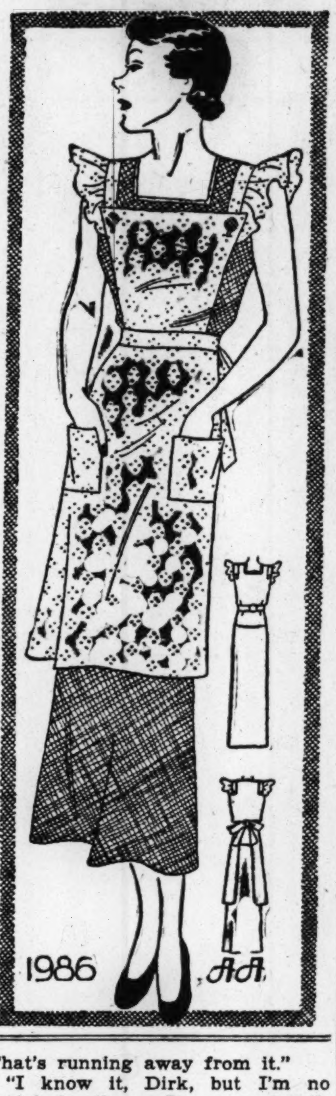
Amusing games to play are novelty races, such as racing backward, or a "crab" race, crawling sideways to a specified goal.

Ice Cream Cone Novelty

Ice cream cones can be used for holding individual salads or desserts to provide a festive air to the meal's end.

TODAY'S PATTERN

Frock and Apron



DRAMATIZE yourself a bit as you do your duty to the house and household. It helps a lot. The morning will fly twice as fast and you will probably hum a song right straight through it, the days you wear this pretty and amusing kitchen ensemble frock and apron. You will find it fun to button up your apron onto the little matching shoulder bands knowing how devastatingly becoming it is, repeating the material of those crisp over-arm ruffles. And when visitors come unexpectedly you can remove the apron in a jiffy to show a dainty house frock.

Adequate Diet Plans on Four Levels of Cost

A Summary of Balanced Rations Worked Out on Scientific Basis.

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

HERE are four plans each for an adequate diet, but at four different economic levels, as worked out by Dr. Hazel K. Siebeling and Medora M. Ward, of the Department of Agriculture.

Plan 1 is minimal in cost, but adequate in nutrition, for a moderately active man: $62 a year, $1.19 a week, 69 cents a day.

Or for a family of father, mother, boy 13 years old, girl 10 years old, the cost of Plan 1 is $245 a year, $4.72 a week, 67 cents a day.

Plan 2 furnishes a more liberal supply of food and more of the protective foods—vegetables, fruits, milk. There is more protein (for body building) and enough minerals and vitamins not only to meet rock-bottom needs, but to provide a margin of safety.

Plan 2 for one person costs $86 a year; $1.66 a week; $0.236 a day. For the family, $335 a year; $6.44 a week; $0.92 a day.

Plan 3 is a plentiful diet at $152 a year, $2.91 a week, $0.415 a day. For the family, $565 a year, $10.83 a week, $1.545 a day.

Plan 4 is a liberal diet—$185 a year, $3.56 a week, $0.508 a day. For the family, $667 a year, $12.83 a week, $1.83 a day.

In detail these plans divide the food dollar between five classes of foodstuffs:

Milk and cheese.
Fruits and vegetables.
Lean meat, fish and eggs.
Bread, flour, cereals.
Fats, sugars, accessories.

In a diagram in Gove Hambidge's book, "Your Meals and Your Money," the way the food dollar is spent in different items is shown. For instance, in the bread column in Plan 1, 20 cents is spent on bread, while in Plan 4 this is reduced 7½ cents, while the proportions are just reversed for meat—Plan 4 spends 25 cents on meat, Plan 1 10 cents.

The plan is a scientific one, the prices estimated from such sources as retail prices from 51 cities during one year; prices of cash and carry stores in 14 cities.

The plans are fully described in a circular of the Department of Agriculture called, "Diets at Four Levels of Nutritive Content and Costs." This circular is, however, too technical for the average reader.

Questions From Readers.

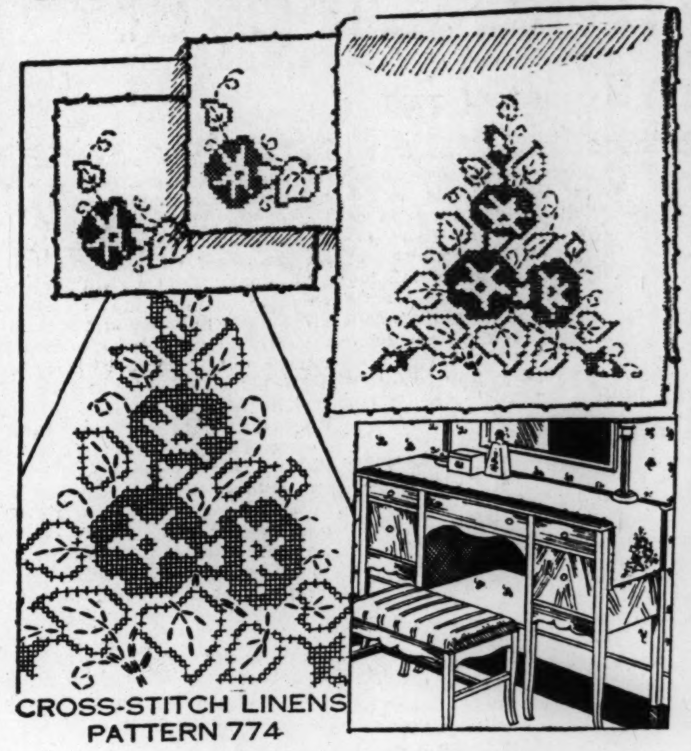
J. H. L.: "Is pyorrhea contagious? Is it possible for a teacher in school to communicate it to her pupils?"

Answer: I think not. Pyorrhea depends partly upon structural changes in the gums, and on the diet, and unless these conditions are established, I do not believe that the infection could be communicated.

Several readers have asked if there is any treatment for unilateral eye control. Exercises of the external muscles of the eye, under the direction of an oculist, have been found helpful.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CROSS-STITCH ACCESSORIES



CROSS-STITCH LINENS
PATTERN 774

CROSS stitch that ever popular needlework is used most effectively in these attractive motifs. The opportunity for color is given in the massed crosses that form the flowers; the single crosses daintily form the leaves. The motifs lend themselves to a variety of those linens every housewife finds herself so in need of. Buffet sets, in-between cloths, scarfs, pillow tops—these are but a few of the things that can be effectively decorated. The crosses are six to the inch, so you can have them done in no time.

Pattern 774 comes to you with a transfer pattern of four 10½ inch motifs, four 5¼ inch corners and four 2¼ inch corners; suggestions for using the motifs; material requirements; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches used.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE CONTRABAND CITY—Lerwick, capital of the Shetland Islands, Scotland, was originally built as a trading post for Dutch fishing vessels. The houses were built either on seashore or actually in the sea, with the back door opening towards the harbor. This arrangement was made for the convenience of Dutch smugglers in landing the contraband portion of their cargoes without much fear of interference from revenue officers. Most of the old houses are still provided with ingenious places of concealment for smuggled goods and some have subterranean passages for the same purpose.

TOMORROW: THE CITY OF LONDON IS NOT THE CAPITAL OF ENGLAND.

Plain Dumb

By Donald Northwood

THE trucking business was pretty good, so Joe Bonner thought he'd get married—that is, if Mamie would have him. And, as he could see no reason why Mamie should refuse, he decided he'd ask her tonight on the way home from the dance the Truckmen's Union was holding.

"Mamie," he took hold of her hand and pulled her a little closer as they stood on the small balcony that hung over the light-swept street just off Hollywood boulevard, "let's scram. It's pretty near 12 o'clock now and I wanta get some shut-eye. Tomorrow's Sattiday, kid. Don't forget we're going to the beach."

Joe watched her swish away through the crowd with that easy graceful swing of her shapely body. He grinned and thought there wasn't a prettier girl than Mamie anywhere. Then he frowned. Mamie had one drawback, and that defect had been embarrassing to both of them many times. Joe claimed she didn't use her head. She claimed her mind just worked differently. Anyway, Joe couldn't get rid of the thought that Mamie at times was just plain dumb.

Joe piloted her from the dance hall entrance to the corner, then to his little coupe parked a block away on a dark street. Just as he dug a big hand into his pocket for the car key, something struck him in the back.

"Grab a star, fella!" a harsh voice told him.

He heard Mamie groan and when he turned his head he saw her raise trembling arms above her head. Rage flooded his head, made a mist dance before his eyes. Clenching his fists tightly, he tensed himself to strike at the man who held the gun in his back.

"Joe!" Mamie managed to almost shout. "Don't try to hit him! He'll kill you!"

Ten minutes later Joe and Mamie were homeward bound.

"Dontcha ever use your head, Mame?"

Mamie gulped and wedged herself into the far corner away from Joe. "Yeah. That's why I told you not to try anything. I could see him and you couldn't. He was just waiting for a chance to sock you."

When Joe honked the horn in front of Mamie's house the next morning and she came pattering down the walk to him, he was still mad. So mad he didn't see the dark circles under her eyes and the pink nose that was four shades lighter than her reddened eyes.

Driving slowly, Joe suddenly gasped. From the bank entrance two men came and started to run toward a car parked on the far side of the street. One of the men held a gun, while the other carried a black satchel. The one with the gun looked over his shoulder and fired at someone who rushed from the door.

Joe's mind worked quickly. With a jerk he swung the coupe to the left and toward the two running men, trying to cut them down. Fifty feet, 30 feet, he was on top of them!

So concerned with running down the bank robbers was Joe that he had forgotten Mamie. Until now. Mamie grabbed the wheel and the coupe lurched sickeningly to the right. Before Joe could swing it back it had missed the two men and crashed into an ornamental light standard. Shouts came to him dimly. Whistles and cries were but tiny noises.

Joe shook his head, rubbed his eyes and climbed out of the car.

"Mame!" he poked his head in the window to find her crouched low in the seat. Her face was toward him and he could see tears streaming down her cheeks. "Mame! Get out! Come on, Mame! Snap out of it! You and me is all washed up."

"Joe!" she sobbed and hid her head.

"Make it snappy! You've butted in once too much. I'm putting you on a bus and you can get home. I'm through!"

Somebody grabbed him by the shoulder and whirled him around. Joe saw it was a pretty hefty guy, but that was O K. He'd sock him just for fun.

"Listen, you big apple knocker!" the big guy said, sticking his face close to Joe's. "What's the idea of making that kid walk home?"

"Beat it, guy!" Joe told him harshly.

"Joe!" Mamie wailed. "Listen! That guy's all right. You didn't see it all."

"I saw two bank robbers."

The crowd that had gathered laughed.

"No, you didn't, Joe. You saw two guys running from the bank and one of them took a shot at another. You didn't see what I saw. Look down there."

Joe looked down where Mamie was pointing. There were two moving-picture cameras hidden by another car.

Joe grinned, got into the car. "Am I dumb?"

DO WOMEN RECOVER FROM A GRIEF OR DISAPPOINTMENT MORE QUICKLY THAN MEN?

2 YES OR NO

I'M GOING TO TEACH JUST FOR A FEW YEARS

SHOULD SCHOOL TEACHING BE PERMITTED TO YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO DO NOT EXPECT TO MAKE IT A LIFE PROFESSION?

3 YES OR NO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1.—Some scientists have announced this opinion, particularly J. B. S. Haldane, the British biologist, chemist, mathematician and writer, recognized in all these fields. I think chiefly because he has the most distinguished heredity of any man in England. He has said, maybe he was joking, for he is also a wit, that in time the universe would cease to be interesting because the scientists would have taken it all apart and seen how it works. Well, don't let the matter worry you, it won't happen in your time.

2.—Many years ago Prof. Edward L. Thorndike made a study of how men and women differ and found what all subsequent studies have found, namely, that men and women are naturally almost exactly alike psychologically. It's the poets and novelists who trump up the startling differences in their natures. However, he did find that 66 per cent of the men recovered more quickly from a grief than the average woman. Very likely this is due to the fact that men have more contacts with outside life and people and do not have the chance to brood over their troubles as much as do women.

3.—No. Our schools are filled with young women who plan to teach just long enough to find a husband. This is much more common among women than men, and is one of the weakest spots in our public school system. Teaching is the most difficult of all the professions and yet we require much less preparation than we do for engineering or law or medicine. The qualifications must be raised . . . and the salaries also.

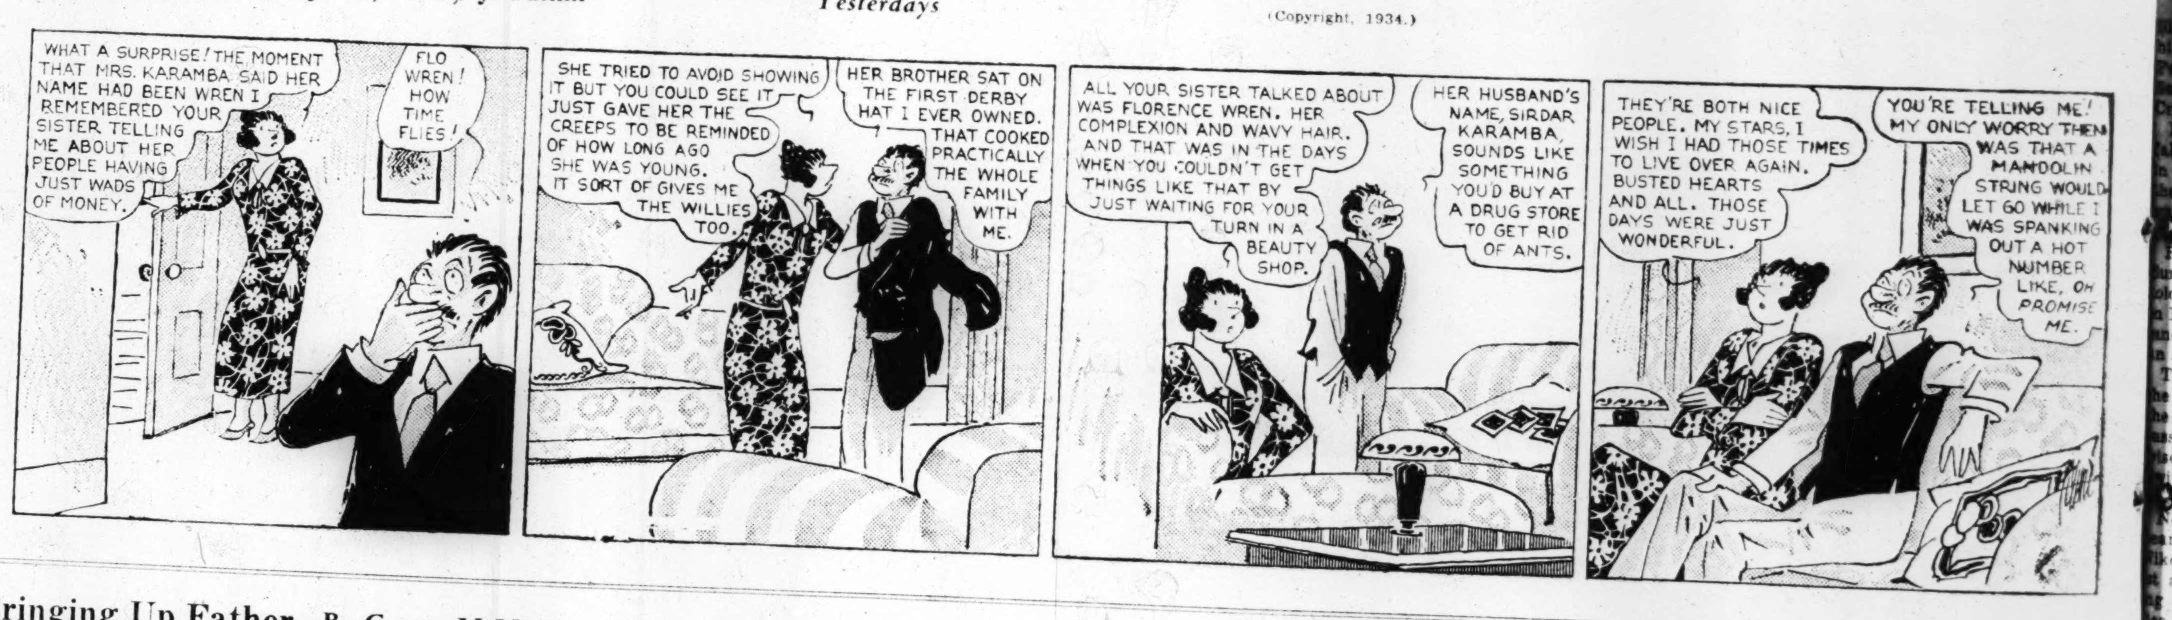
Yesterdays

(Copyright, 1934.)



WHAT A SURPRISE! THE MOMENT THAT MRS. KARAMBA SAID HER NAME HAD BEEN WREN I REMEMBERED YOUR SISTER TELLING ME ABOUT HER PEOPLE HAVING JUST WADS OF MONEY.
FLO WREN! HOW TIME FLIES!
SHE TRIED TO AVOID SHOWING IT BUT YOU COULD SEE IT JUST GAVE HER THE CREEPS TO BE REMINDED OF HOW LONG AGO SHE WAS YOUNG. IT SORT OF GIVES ME THE WILLIES TOO.
HER BROTHER SAT ON THE FIRST DERBY HAT I EVER OWNED. THAT COOKED PRACTICALLY THE WHOLE FAMILY WITH ME.
ALL YOUR SISTER TALKED ABOUT WAS FLORENCE WREN. HER COMPLEXION AND WAVY HAIR. AND THAT WAS IN THE DAYS WHEN YOU COULDN'T GET THINGS LIKE THAT BY JUST WAITING FOR YOUR TURN IN A BEAUTY SHOP.
HER HUSBAND'S NAME, SIRDAR KARAMBA, SOUNDS LIKE SOMETHING YOU'D BUY AT A DRUG STORE TO GET RID OF ANTS.
THEY'RE BOTH NICE PEOPLE. MY STARS, I WISH I HAD THOSE TIMES TO LIVE OVER AGAIN. BUSTED HEARTS AND ALL. THOSE DAYS WERE JUST WONDERFUL.
YOU'RE TELLING ME! MY ONLY WORRY THEN WAS THAT A MANDOLIN STRING WOULD LET GO WHILE I WAS SPANKING OUT A HOT NUMBER LIKE, OH PROMISE ME.

MY DEAR! I WAS VERY BUSY AT THE OFFICE—
THAT'S HER NOW!
YOU KNOW YOUR FATHER HAS LOTS OF WORK TO DO THESE DAYS—
WELL—DADDY! IF YOU KEEP ME WAITING AGAIN LIKE THIS, I'LL FORGET I AM "TOOTLES" JIGGS AND SCOLD YOU—
